Big Daddy In Profit Paradise

By JACK SCOTT, Times Staff

(Third of a Six-Part Series)

ZAMA, Japan — One of the brochures of the Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., which makes the Datsun here at Zama, 30 miles west of Toyko, and at nine other huge plants throughout these crowded islands, talks of the car's "Oriental elegance."

There's nothing remotely elegant about the lives of the Orientals who make them. Many of the 4000 single Japanese in the payroll of 7700 workers here live, in fact, in grim dormitory cells no more than 12 feet square, rooms without furnishings except the tatami, the traditional Japanese sleeping mat. What's more, they share the rooms, day-shift worker alternating with night-shift worker.

If you'd guess that they're unhappy about it, as elite, skilled union men in the world's fourth largest automobile company, you'd probably be a foreigner without an appreciation of how The Big Daddy System works so exquisitely in modern Japan.

These particular craftsmen get something less than half the take-home pay of an equivalent auto worker in Oshawa or Detroit, but there hasn't been a strike here at Zama in the past 20 years, then only a brief walk-out. "I think it was 20 years ago," contentedly reflects Seizo Akiyama, a Nissan executive, "but it may have been longer." Akiyama remembers, too, a picket line around another industry that patrolled the plant right up to the time to start work.

A single worker here pays about four dollars a month for his dormitory room. The company picks up most of the tab, too, for the good, hot meals in the dining hall. There are wide, tiled, communal baths for the customary hot soak after a hard day on the assembly line, a tea room, a library, a ping pong room. If the fellow takes a bride he'll probably get a small company house or a small company apartment for a rental of about eight dollars a month.

Nearly 12 million of Japan's 36 million workers belong to unions—to 62,400 of them, to be exact. The percentage of the work force in unions is, in fact, slightly higher than it is in Canada. They negotiate once a year and they do pretty well. Though they still work, on average, 20 hours a month longer than Canadian union men, they've made steady financial gains. It's become almost automatic in the "shunto," the Spring wage offensive, as its called, to ask for a 20 per cent raise and to get 17 per cent though, considering Japan's galloping inflation, a doubling of productivity capacity in the last eight years and the profits of most exporting companies (Nissan, for example, made profits last year in the nice neighborhood of $900 millions) it seems a figure that's not too punishing for management.

Though labor unrest is growing in an attempt to win the five-day week, Japan remains a paradise for those who make the profits in the world's most secure capitalism.

Housing is just one factor in the system, though a big one since it ranks with industrial pollution as the nation's major problem. With few exceptions companies offer subsidized living quarters for their workers.

There is, too, a bonus system for every employed man or woman, union member or not, right up to the prime

Gov't Pipe Urged

By CAROLE SHIFRIN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sen. Henry Jackson (D—Wash,) said Monday he would propose federal construction and ownership of the $3 billion trans-Alaska oil pipeline if actions by either congress or the courts delay work on the private project beyond next spring.

"My concern is to get that oil moving out of Alaska," Jackson told a press conference. He also said his senate energy policy study group would look "closely" at federal oil policies — oil import quotas, the depletion allowance, foreign tax credits — in light of a Federal Trade Commission staff report charging that government policies have helped create the current gasoline shortage. (See Page 8.)

In related developments Monday:

—The U.S. Senate, seeking to ease Canadian and environmentalist fears of oil spills, voted Monday to speed up the application of tough new controls on tankers carrying Alaskan oil. An amendment approved by voice vote would require that a 1972 law calling for double-bottom tankers by Jan. 1, 1976, apply to Alaskan tankers by June 30, 1974.

—The state of Florida filed an antitrust suit charging that 15 major oil companies conspired to create a gasoline shortage to drive out their independent competitors. "Our position is that the gas shortage is a direct result of anticompetitive practices manipulated by the major oil companies to protect their profits," Florida Attorney General Robert Shevin said. The suit seeks divestiture of the companies' crude oil pro-

Extended Blanshard Goes Underground

An 800-foot tunnel beneath the parking lot of the Town and Country Shopping Centre will be built by the provincial government to link the Trans-Canada Highway with an extended Blanshard Street, Highways Minister Graham Lea said today.

Lea announced the route the extension is to take to join the highway (see map), with the extension of Blanshard Street running from the Blanshard - Tolmie intersection to a point near the intersection of Oak Street and Saanich Road where it will go underground beneath the Douglas Street-Pat Bay Highway route.

The highways minister said the route was one of three considered and will probably involve more expense than the other two. But he said use of either of the other two proposed routes — along Seymour Street or Vernon Avenue — "would have caused serious social disruption and displacement of people and private homes."

Lea said there will be a level crossing at the intersection of the new route with Cloverdale. He said no decision has yet been made about the Blanshard-Tolmie intersection but said an overpass is a possibility.

The route chosen, marked by the thick line on the map, "will affect fewer private homes and have much less social impact on people living in the vicinity," Lea said.

The minister was not able to give cost figures for the project which he said will not be under construction for at least a year. Detailed engineering studies and cost estimates have yet to be done but design work will start shortly.

Asked if landowners along the new route have been advised of the government's need for their properties, Lea said they had not. He said only that there are about 20 properties affected by the new route as well as several industrial and commercial concerns.

He said the owners of private and commercial properties affected by the construction will be contacted "as soon as possible."

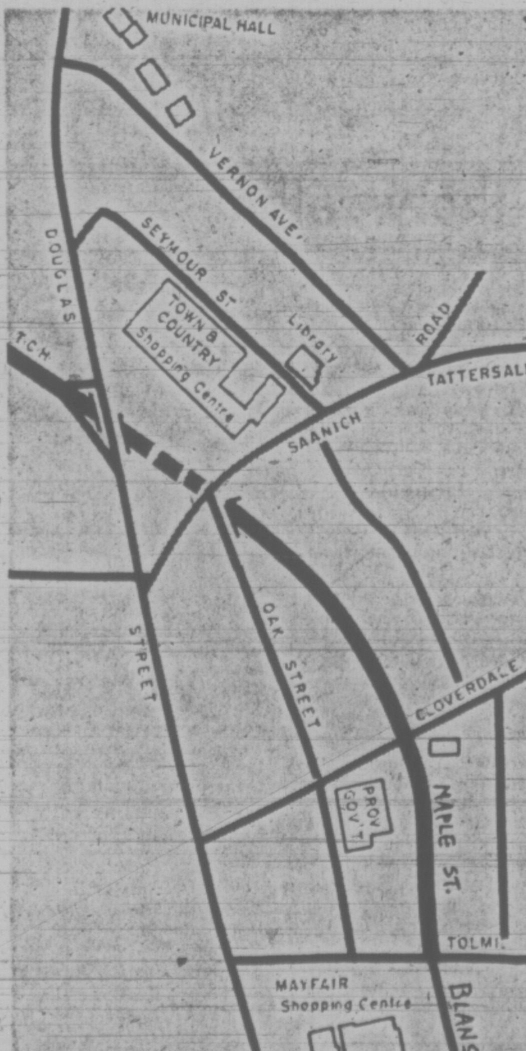
Lea said there will be dramatic increases in property values in the area, adding that prior knowledge of proposed rights-of-way is not as important in making money as it has been in the past. Final settlements would be arrived by arbitration if negotiations between the government and property owners was not successful.

Lea said he expects the entire cost of the highway project will be borne by the provincial government, but said he will approach Ottawa for participation since the Trans-Canada Highway is under federal jurisdiction.

"Ottawa seems quite susceptible during these days of minority government to giving large sums of money to the west," he said.

Extension of Blanshard Street to the Trans-Canada will result in two separate direct routes from downtown Victoria.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, contacted today in Dawson Creek, called the route "excellent" and said it was the one favored by Saanich officials in their discussions with the provincial government.



THICK LINE is the new Blanshard route, a four-lane divided highway. Dotted line is 800-foot tunnel beneath Town and Country Shopping Centre parking lot.

IT'S A DANDY JUNGLE GYM for the moment, as these youngsters have discovered, but this metal frame in Oak Bay soon will be taken over by the sea lions at Sealand. It will be covered with chain-link fencing, be lifted by crane and placed under water. (Bill Halkett photo)

Food Cost Up 16.7% In Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Food prices rose two per cent from May to June, up 16.7 per cent over their level of a year ago, Statistics Canada reported today.

This means that $13.75 cents of groceries in June, 1972, would have sold last month for $16.05.

The spiralling food price rise was the major factor in raising the all-items consumer price index for June by 0.9 per cent to 149.7. This was a faster-than-normal increase for this time of year and pushed the index up 8.1 per cent over June last year.

All other items included in the index except transportation costs, which increased 0.9 per cent, were lower than the all-items total.

The increases prompted Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield today to repeat his call for a 90-day freeze on prices and incomes.

He also said in a news release the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and federal sales taxes on all clothing should be removed.

"But though the signal is louder and clearer than ever, there is no indication of any effective action by the Trudeau government. The government is in a state of confusion that has led to paralysis."

He said that during a 90-day price and wage freeze, the

Canadian Billion To Assist U.S. $

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has put up an additional $1 billion to help the United States combat downward pressure on the dollar in international currency markets.

The Bank of Canada announced today that total funds pledged to U.S. money authorities under so-called currency swap arrangements had thus been doubled to $2 billion.

The U.S. federal reserve board announced in Washington that its major trading partners have pledged altogether an additional $6.25 billion in swap arrangements for possible use in supporting the exchange value of the U.S. dollar in international transactions.

Total swap arrangements thus were increased to $17.98 billion .

Such swap deals, used off and on for years among central banks of western industrial countries, mean that one country can draw on currency of a pledging country to intervene in foreign exchange markets and stabilize exchange rates.

In the current situation, when the exchange value of the U.S. dollar has been declining in relation to other major currencies, carrying the Canadian dollar down with it, U.S. money managers are assured of a bigger line of credit to intervene.

The U.S. dollar moved sharply upward on the world money markets today.

Along with the dollar, the British pound also gained strength.

The dollar's price against the all-important West German mark was fixed today at 2.354 marks, highest in a

BEER TAPS DRY

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — There's no draught beer at 16 beer parlors in the Lower Mainland and another 44 likely will run out by the end of the week if the illegal walkout of workers at Labatt Breweries Ltd. here continues.

A company spokesman said no beer was produced at the plant Monday as some 200 members of Local 300 of the Brewery and Soft Drink Workers' Union continued to ignore a joint company-union request that they return to work.

Labatts applied today for an injunction against the striking workers. The company's case will be heard Wednesday in supreme court.

The company said in a statement today the dispute over retiring Local 300 president Alex Lipp's pension should be settled by grievance procedure and arbitrations. Lipp says the union refuses arbitration. He also says the company is reneging on a pension agreement signed May 31.

The agreement provides a minimum $480 monthly pension for workers with 30 years employment at age 60 and rediced benefits for those retiring earlier.

Mitchell Admits Cover-Up Role

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. attorney - general John Mitchell testified today that he helped hush up the Watergate incident and kept information about the burglary and break-in from President Nixon to protect Nixon's re-election chances.

"Maybe in retrospect I was wrong (in not telling Nixon)," Mitchell told the Senate Watergate committee, "but I thought the best thing to do was to keep the lid on until after the election."

He said he did not tell Nixon what he knew about the burglary and its subsequent cover-up "for the simple reason that there was no necessity of scarring the president, who was not involved."

Mitchell said that not only did he shield the president from information about Watergate, but he also did not believe Nixon knew anything about the cover-up "based on my faith and knowledge of the man."

Indeed, Mitchell said he never got to the bottom of Watergate himself, even though he acknowledged participating in three meetings at which spy plans were discussed. He said he rejected them every time.

Mitchell also contradicated as a "palpable, damnable lie" testimony by Jeb Stuart Magruder, assistant Nixon campaign director that he was shown wiretap logs, and that he had suggesteed earlier this year that Magruder might get executive clemency if convicted for his admitted perjury in the cover-up.

But the central dispute remained the decision made at a meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla., March 30, 1972, where political spying was discussed.

Magruder testified that "Mr. Mitchell agreed to approve the project . . . It was specifically approved for initial entry into Democratic national committee headquarters in Washington . . ."

Mitchell's account today was directly contrary to that testimony.

Mitchell said when the spy plan came up, his reaction was:

"We don't need this. I'm tired of hearing it. Out. Let's not discuss it any further . . . In my opinion it was just as clear as that."

Mitchell said any problem about his verdict on the espionage plan was one of misunderstanding or of contravention of his orders by Magruder.

Chief committee counsel, Samuel Dash, asked whether Mitchell was aware that Ma-

—Administration sources confirmed that a rollback of prices for petroleum products —including gasoline — to the May 15 level is being considered. Companies would be allowed to raise prices in order to "pass through" any increased costs dollar-for-dollar but not a profit markup. One concern, however, is whether the action might not have a negative effect on supplies, as has the freeze on some agricultural commodities.

—Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon reaffirmed that the administration is "absolutely not" considering gasoline rationing. "It is neither necessary nor desirable . . ," he said on the NBC-TV Today show. "I absolutely do not consider rationing even a possibility." A decision on whether to continue the voluntary allocation system as-is or change it any will be made in the next two weeks, he said.

Simon said he didn't believe — with inventories at their present level — that there would be anything but "spot" fuel shortages. Asked whether stranded, gas-less motorists could call him collect, he replied, "Oh yes, I wish he would, please. Said another treasury official: "He may be sorry he said that."

—The Internal Revenue Service price stabilization office in Cleveland said Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) and other companies which lowered gasoline octane without reducing prices may have violated the price freeze. Other companies which have reduced octane levels include Gulf, Mobil and British Petroleum. Also being investigated is the elimination of trading stamps and raising of the number of gallons needed for free or discounted car washes as possible violations.

Sen. Jackson called the FTC staff report, which suggests that the major oil companies engage more in "co-operation" than "competition," an "important document" which sets the stage for "sweeping reforms.

"This is the first time," Jackson said, that a government agency report "has formally concluded that time-honored and, until now, almost sacrosanct federal oil policies have benefitted the major oil companies while working hardship on the average American and the independent small businessman."

The report suggests that the vertically integrated structure of the industry — that is with the largest companies operating in every area — and a variety of anti-competitive practices, allow the major companies to limit supplies of crude oil available to independents and to fix prices.

The FTC staff is said to have recommended that the FTC sue eight major companies seeking the divestiture of some of their functions to foster competition, as does the Florida suit filed Monday. Jackson said Monday he would "reserve judgment" on a similar proposal pending before Congress.

"I think I can put it on the basis that I had a pretty strong feeling that his testimony was not going to be entirely accurate," Mitchell said.

Pressed by Dash, Mitchell admitted he had no direct knowledge — either from his own conversations with the president or those of others — whether Nixon knew either of the bugging plot or the subsequent cover-up.

"The only thing I can say is that as far as I know, he does not know about either of those circumstances," Mitchell said.

Asked by Dash how he could be certain, Mitchell replied, "I think I know the individual. I know his reaction to things. During the period of time I was in association with him and had telephone contact with him, I don't think he had that information."

"Based on your faith and knowledge of the man?" Dash asked.

"I do have faith in the president," Mitchell replied. "I do think I have knowledge of the man. I do think that in general discussions in the general area it would have come out if the president had knowledge."

Dash's questioning took the entire morning.

Mitchell testified earlier today that when G. Gordon Liddy first broached plans for 1972 political espionage it was "a complete horror story" that involved wiretaps, call girls and code names.

Mitchell told the committee that in hindsight, he not only should have thrown Liddy "out of the office, I should have thrown him out of the window."

Testifying about a meeting Jan. 27, 1972, Mitchell said Liddy outlined a political intelligence proposal that "just was beyond the pale."

Mitchell said as he recalls the meeting, "I told him to go burn the charts," and said what President Nixon's campaign organization was interested in was information gathering and protection against demonstrators.

Mitchell also said, "I violently disagree" with the testimony of Magruder that at a Feb. 4 meeting, the then-attorney-general was involved in discussions of the Democratic national committee as a target for electronic surveillance.

Mitchell said he made major decisions about Nixon's re-election campaign while he was still head of the justice department.

Testifying under subpoena, he said Nixon had asked him "to keep an eye on the campaign committee, to see that they didn't get out of line over there."

Mitchell thus appeared to contradict his own previous testimony before the Senate judiciary committee, where he testified March 15, 1972, that he had "no re-election campaign responsibilities."

At the start of his testimony at the committee's hearings, Mitchell said he joined the late J. Edgar Hoover in opposing a domestic intelligence plan that contemplated burglaries in the name of internal security.

He said that not until recently did he know that Nixon had ordered the plan put into effect for five days before bowing to objections from Hoover.

As an intimate confidant of Nixon—as well as being his campaign manager in 1968 and 1972 and his first attorney-general — Mitchell is in a position to know as much about Nixon's knowledge of the Watergate affair as any witness likely to be heard by the committee.

He has denied previous testimony that he approved the Watergate burglary, but while being questioned Monday in a closed meeting with the committee staff, he acknowledged for the first time knowing of the cover-up which took shape shortly after the June 17, 1972, arrest of the Watergate burglars, committee sources said.

In other developments:

—Lawyers for Mitchell and Maurice Stans asked Monday that conspiracy and perjury charges against them be dropped, charging the government asked improper questions about the Watergate affair.

—In Miami, Fla., Dade County prosecutor Richard Gerstein said a Cuban exile leader has made a sworn statement that he delivered $21,000 to four of the Watergate burglars.

—Representative Henry Reuss (Dem.—Wis.) asked the Internal Revenue Service to freeze the remaining assets of the Committee for the Reelection of the President, saying the campaign organization's funds may be found to be taxable if they were given in expectation of favors rather than as gifts.

... DOLLAR

week. The fixed price Monday was 2.2835 marks. The pound, in terms of Canadian funds was trading at $2.54.

Gold dropped in price in free bullion markets as the dollar moved substantially upward in currency exchanges in Amsterdam, Paris, Brussels, Milan and Tokyo, and slightly higher in London.

Prime Minister Edward Heath met his cabinet's key economic and financial ministers in London today but no decisions were announced.

In Paris the dollar climbed back above the four-franc level and continued upward. It was trading at mid-day between 4.025 and 4.035 francs.

In Brussels the dollar gained another .68 per cent; in Milan it climbed 1.5 per cent from Monday's closing price to trade at 580 lire.

China, in the third revaluation of its currency in two months, revalued the renminbi (formerly called the yuan) by 5.23 per cent against the Hong Kong dollar, leading Hong Kong bankers to predict a change of that currency's rate in trades for U.S. dollars.

American dollars held steady on Hong Kong's markets today. In Tokyo the dollar regained the eight yen it lost Monday and closed at 262.10 yen.

In London and Paris as well as Frankfurt, dealers said the chance of government — particularly American — official support for the dollar boosted the currency's value.

Meanwhile, a Swiss banker says the Soviet Union is believed to have sold about 160 tons of gold through the free Zurich market in the past eight months and that this has kept gold prices from soaring even higher.

Walter Frey, central director of the Swiss Bank Corp., predicts the Soviets are likely to stick to this sales volume for the rest of the year.

Many international money experts are dubious about the beneficial effects of intervention. The history of the recent past is that efforts to prop up exchange rates have been costly, usually resulting in a crisis followed by establishment of a new set of rates.

Others argue that things are different now, in the sense that the dollar has floated — or sunk — to such a low level that it is clearly undervalued, and thus is at a point where even moderate support could give it considerable strength.

Export Ban Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — In continued reaction to a series of control measures taken in the United States, the government announced Monday night it is widening the export controls it imposed June 29 on soybeans, flax, rapeseed, cottonseed and linseed oils and their byproducts.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said the list would be extended, effective midnight Monday night, to a series of edible oils, animal fats and livestock protein feeds.

Esmond Jarvis, co-ordinator of the trade department grains group, said the main effect of the controls will be "to generally hold the prices down to the farmers."

The new commodities include sunflower seed, cake and meal; alfalfa products; packing house products such as meat, bone, blood and feather meal; vegetable oils, all mixed feeds for livestock and poultry, lard in 20-pound units or over, tallow, brewing byproducts such as distillers' solubles and brewers' and distillers' grains, corn gluten feed and meal, soybean lecithin and methionine.

Speaking in the Commons, Gillespie described the controls as "further precautionary measures" and said they are being imposed in light of the U.S. decision last week to place 41 commodities under export restrictions.

However, exporters with contracts signed before June 29, the date the first series of controls went into effect, will be able to apply for an export licence to meet their commitments, the minister said.

All applications would be examined on a case-by-case basis but no further exports of soybeans or soybean meal would be allowed.

Food Jumps 2% in Month

government could work with the provinces, labor and business to establish "a follow-up program of controls which would apply over the next 18 months to two years." This would not require a massive new bureaucracy to administer, he said.

The index is based on 1961 price levels, which were set at 100. Since then, the purchasing value of one dollar has declined to 67 cents, government figures indicate.

The all-items index stood at 149.7 in June, up from 148.4 in May. This means that household goods and services costing $14.84 in May were $14.97 in June.

The two per cent increase in food prices between the two months contrasted with 0.2 per cent and 0.1 per cent rises between the same two months in 1972 and 1971.

But in 1969, the change in food prices between the two months was 2.2 per cent.

Statistics Canada said all main elements of food consumed in the home rose in price between May and June but indicated that fresh produce, beef and poultry costs increased the most.

Although fresh vegetable and fruit prices normally rise between the two months, there was a marked increase this year.

Potatoes, lettuce and tomatoes all jumped by about 8.7 per cent on the average, the bureau reports, outweighing decreased prices for some other vegetables. Fresh fruit increases stood at 5.1 per cent.

In the last year, the price of fresh vegetables and fruit has risen by 51 per cent and 23 per cent respectively.

Meat, poultry and fish prices, which eased slightly in early May, climbel back up by 2.7 per cent, with beef increasing by 5.1 per cent and poultry rising 2.3 per cent.

Eggs cost 61 per cent more than a year earlier, beef 21 per cent more than in June, 1972, pork was 22 per cent higher and poultry 26 per cent more costly.

Lesser price increases between May and June were registered for cereal and bakery products, beverages, sugar, dairy products and fats and oils.

Major factor in the transportation costs to the consumer was a 1.4 per cent increase in cost of automobile maintenance due to higher gasoline and motor oil prices. Further increases in these fuels are expected this month.

Increased train fares and inter-city bus fares and higher prices for new cars imported from outside North America due to devaluation of the dollar were other reasons for the transportation index rise.

Housing costs, which make up 31 per cent of the price index, rose by one-half of one per cent as shelter and household operating expenses rose by 0.6 per cent and 0.4 per cent respectively.

Furniture costs increased 1.3 per cent and fuel oil prices rose in cities in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Increased mortgage interest rates, higher prices for new homes and home owners repairs increased 0.4 per cent or four cents per $10 spent.

Since June, 1972, housing costs have risen 6.7 per cent.

Clothing prices jumped 0.4 per cent between May and June largely because of higher costs of laundry, dry cleaning and shoe repair.

Men's suits, shirts, underwear and socks, as well as children's clothing, increased in price but women's wear remained unchanged.

Clothing costs are 11 per cent of the total index.

Increases in magazine prices and higher driving lesson costs offset a drop in television set, stereo, boat and motor prices to raise the recreation, education and reading component of the index slightly.

Tobacco and alcohol prices, which make up six per cent of the index rose 0.1 per cent.

The only good news for consumers was in the health and personal care component of the index, at five per cent the smallest of seven categories, where prices remained unchanged between the two months.

Bud Cullen (L—Sarnia-Lambton), chairman of the Commons special committee on food prices, attributed the increased cost of fresh vegetables and fruit largely to shortages of supply.

The committee was meeting today to continue thrashing out a report after weeks of hearings from consumer, producers and industry groups.

Mr. Cullen said the committee was looking at the role of the chain store in food distribution now. The MPs are trying to reach conclusions on what factors have the greatest impact on food prices and may try to set out roles for government and industry to play in keeping prices down, he said.

RAPID TRANSIT URGED

EDMONTON (CP) — A general transportation plan calling for more emphasis on rapid transit, tighter regulations on roadway construction and construction of a satellite airport was presented to city council Monday.

The plan is based on a report given council in May and briefs and recommendations made to the utilities and engineering committee in June.

The new airport it recommends would not replace the downtown industrial airport which would remain in operation.

Villagers Massacred By Portuguese—Priest

LONDON (Reuter) — At least 400 men, women and children were slaughtered by Portuguese troops in a "systematic genocidal massacre of people" in the Mozambique village of Wiriyamu, a Roman Catholic priest says in an article in The Times.

In the most recent mass killing, in Wiriyamu last December, more than 400 persons died at the hands of the troops, says the report written by Rev. Adrian Hastings, a priest in Birmingham, England.

Father Hastings says his article was based on reports received from Spanish missionaries working in the Portuguese territory where, he says, troops were killing villagers of Frelimo, the Mozambique liberation organization.

The article lists the names of hundreds of villagers from Wiriyamu said to have been shot, burned and kicked to death in December.

In his article, Father Hastings describes the Wiriyamu massacre, as secretly reported by the missionaries, saying the village was first bombarded and troops who had arrived by helicopter then "invaded it with ferocity."

"Once inside the village the soldiers started ransacking the huts, and this was followed immediately by the massacre of the people," the report says.

OFC Canadian whisky is 8 years old.
Picked in its prime.

At 2-years old Canadian whisky is pale, harsh, unmatured — and around 12 is darker and beginning to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between this time, it becomes golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied. In our opinion OFC is the prime Canadian whisky.
That's why OFC is only 8 years old. The prime time for taste, try it.

Saving, Not Pension

minister, that does much to soothe the working man. This amounts to an average of four months' extra pay annually, paid twice yearly in mid-July and mid-December, but it may go as high as an extra six months' income if a company has had a banner year. It says something about today's Japan that the top bonuses this year are going to Tokyo construction workers and to securities salesman in the Toyko Stock Exchange.

The bonus payment, increasingly subject now to union negotations, causes a stampede to every department store, often is used for a holiday trip abroad, but an astonishing percentage of the extra loot—some estimates put it at fully 50 per cent—ends up as bank savings.

Some of these savings are for a down payment on a car or for the house for which every Japanese yearns, but mainly the motivation is fear of sickness or old age in a society that, affluent as it is, offers no more than token security through social legislation.

Company health schemes protect most workers, but if a wife or child suffers a major illness the doctor and hospital bills can wipe out the savings of years. Retirement pensions are so low—$15 a week in the case of many of the elderly men I met—that savings are the hedge against an impoverished old age.

Though almost all the tycoons in Japan seem to be going strong in their 70's and 80's there's a mandatory retirement at 55 or 60, depending on the industry, for the workers. With a life expectancy now of 70 years early retirement can mean 15 or 20 years on an inadequate pension or with a menial, low-paying job.

Auto workers . . . 20 strikeless years

Whatever the reason may be, this high rate of savings gives the average Japanese a feeling of having a stake in his country and his company.

"We are not a people," says a young Nissan executive, drawing on a colloquialism learned in two years of setting up Datsun dealerships in the U.S. and Canada, "who rock the boat."

Management has the edge, too, not yet challenged, in wage negotiation. While the unions are grouped into four major federations, bargaining is always on a plant-by-plant basis, never on a company-wide or industry-wide scale that might strengthen the clout of the labor movement.

Deeper, much deeper, than these surface considerations is the tradition of old-school-tie loyalty and genuine dedication to the company.

Some firms are finding now, in this era of full employment, that university graduates, particularly, are depressingly "western" in their concept of making a living. Toyota, for example, reports that one in every 10 workers in the 20-to 24-year-old age group moves on to other employment if the monotony of the assembly line is not to their liking. "Fulfilling jobs," was the first requirement specified by 34 per cent of men in that same age group when they were polled by a government economic planning agency.

But the great mass of Japanese employees stay with one firm all of their working lives and the companies take great pains to see that they do.

The occasional bright young man may be singled out for a special post, but almost all promotion is based rigidly on seniority. The end of March, completion of the fiscal year for most Japanese corporations, is the traditional time for moving up the ladder, a time when millions of Japanese consult the company bulletin board to see personnel changes that affect virtually every staff member.

Management organizes a bewildering variety of recreational and cultural pursuits. The tennis courts, the calisthenics, the golf driving ranges, the bowling leagues, the company theatre and glee club activities, the group tours that you see on almost every train or plane are all part of fringe benefits designed to give every worker a familial feeling of belonging and involvement.

Here at this Datsun factory they have their own company song and so do the boys and girls at Matsushita Electric who, each morning, chant these lyrics: "Grow, industry, Grow, grow, grow! Harmony and sincerity! Matsushita Electric!"

Time after time the visitor will be told proudly that this is a "vertical" society. Nowhere is it more evident than in the company structure. A man's close friends are invariably those with whom he works. The lines of loyalty and communication are to the man above, yet every worker, from top to bottom, is invited to have his say in company decision-making.

The result is a stable work force in which even the more militant labor leader identifies with the company.

One shop steward here, explaining how it all works, paused to admire a Datsun pick-up coming off the line. "A very durable machine," he was moved to remark. "We all take pride in it."

The Japanese, themselves, willingly concede that this all but feudal harmony between owner and worker is a major factor in the country's uninterrupted growth as an industrial power, but, of course, there are many contributing reasons.

Like West Germany, Japan was able to build with a brand new technology from the ruins of U.S. bombing that spared only the shrines of the ancient capital of Kyoto.

It was free of any sizable military commitment by order of the occupying force.

It was, and is, ruled by a government with the single-minded goal of creating wealth through the inventiveness of its technicians, the dedication of the masses and the zeal of super-salesmen who roamed the earth. It was, and is, as a leading writer has critically described it," a people who live to work and work in order to buy."

Much of that sensational prosperity comes right from the grass roots of the union man, the unorganized worker and the hundreds of thousands of Japanese who have small businesses or shops.

A long-time Canadian import-export trader here gives me the best example of how that Big Daddy System works.

"There was a small specialty factory here that got the bright idea of making plastic replicas of the RCMP for sale in Canada, mainly to American tourists," he recalls. "The banks here, as you know, are bulging with the savings of the so-called little man and they make loans that no Canadian banker would dream of making. So they made a loan to this factory, the plastic Mounties went off to Canada, sold extremely well, the profits came back here in Canadian dollars, then promptly went right back to Canada to buy our copper and coal."

New Fish Offer Hint From Union Team

Negotiations affecting 3,000 fish plant workers will continue Wednesday, the sixth day of the strike by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) against the industry.

Meanwhile, talks were being held today in the 500-member tendermen's strike and 3,500 fishermen were to complete voting Wednesday night on a new offer which union leaders are urging be rejected.

Negotiators for the UFAWU and the Fisheries Association of B.C., representing fishing companies, met Tuesday in the shoreworkers dispute.

NOT WELL

UFAWU secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol said the talks did "not go very well" with the association wanting to "talk on some minor issues and in some major issues they made minor moves."

He said the union told the companies' negotiators that more significant moves must be made and there was an indication a new package offer might be made Wednesday.

PROGRESS

Association manager Ken Campbell said, however, that "some progress was made" and that the two sides are "not just meeting for the sake of meeting."

He couldn't say today if a new package will be offered Wednesday.

Major issue in dispute is wages with the companies offering an increase of $1.10 an hour in a two-year contract and $1.54 an hour for women to eliminate pay discrimination. Most plant workers earn less than $3.50 an hour.

Union members rejected this offer last week and said they want an increase of $1.60 an hour over two years plus elimination of pay discrimination against women.

Tendermen, who earn $583 to $784 a month on fishing boats, have rejected an offer of a 14 per cent raise this year and 11 per cent next year. They want $120 a month this year and $120 a month next year.

Fishermen and the companies are between two and nine cents a pound apart on new prices for sockeye, coho, pinks and chums.

Victoria UFAWU fishermen will vote on the latest offer Wednesday at 1 p.m. in the Union Centre. Results of coast-wide voting are expected to be known Thursday morning.

Pulp Workers Accept Two-Year Package

Members of the major union in the British Columbia pulp and newsprint industry have voted to accept a new two-year contract with the mills, it was announced today.

Over-all acceptance was voted by members in 17 out of 18 locals, said A. K. Stelp, an international representative with the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU).

He said the union's regional headquarters in Vancouver is awaiting the result of the last local, at Kamloops, "but it won't alter the result."

He declined to release figures on the voting until Kamloops has reported.

Stelp expected the new agreement, which provides for wage increases of 8.5 per cent this year and 8.5 per cent next year, will be signed shortly.

UPIU represents 7,200 workers at 11 mills, including all newsprint production, and negotiators had recommended acceptance of the new contract.

However, the 4,500-member Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, which holds bargaining rights at eight pulp mills, is recommending rejection of the same offer from the companies at membership meetings mext week.

The Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, bargaining agency for the mills, has said its last position to both unions was a final one.

At Port Alberni, meanwhile, 1,100 UPIU members at MacMillan Bloedel's huge pulp and newsprint mill were meeting this afternoon to decide their next step.

About a dozen millworkers began unofficial picketing of the mill last Thursday night and the plant closed Friday when other workers refused to cross the picket line. The employees were reportedly unhappy with the proposed contract.

Symphony Concerts Coming to Schools

A $2,000 subsidy in support of four symphony concerts in schools next year has been recommended by Greater Victoria school board.

The concerts will be sponsored by Victoria Symphony Orchestra and held in four centrally located high schools—Oak Bay, Victoria, Esquimalt and Reynolds.

It's the first time full symphony performances have been planned for Victoria schools and concerts will be on weekday afternoons so students from surrounding schools can also attend.

The board subsidy represents one-third of total costs of the performances and the remaining costs will come out of symphony funds.

Music for the concerts will be selected "to meet the interests of pupils generally," according to the proposal, and the theme for each concert will be determined by a small committee made up of conductor Laszlo Gati, school music co-ordinator Harry Bigsby, teachers, principals and pupils.

Elementary school pupils will be allowed again next year to attend symphony rehearsals at the Royal Theatre on certain Saturday mornings.

Early Flight Comeback Likely

Air Canada announced today it likely will reinstitute its early morning flight to Vancouver, starting in October, in response to protests from Victoria citizens.

"We are seriously considering reinstituting the flight starting Oct. 28," an Air Canada spokesman said.

He said it was "almost certain" the flights would resume, probably at 6:45 a.m. or 6:55 a.m.

The morning flight was cancelled April 29.

The cancellation brought protests from the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, which said the early flight was a vital link between Vancouver Island and eastern points.

The early morning flight to Vancouver means that connections can be made arriving in Edmonton at 9:21 a.m. instead of 12:30 p.m., arriving in Winnipeg at 11:25 a.m. instead of 3:30 p.m. and arriving in Montreal at 4 p.m. instead of 10 p.m.

The chamber argued that businessmen with early meetings in eastern Canada had to fly to Vancouver the night before to catch an early flight east.

Chamber transportation committee chairman Jack McKernan said he was surprised and delighted by the Air Canada statement today.

"A large number of people have been working many months to get this flight restored, including the two local members of parliament and the chamber."

CASSIAR CLERKS STILL OUT

CASSIAR (CP) — A retail clerks' union strike, which shut down this northern British Columbia town since Friday, continues without any immediate sign of a break in the stalemate.

The nine clerks, employed at the store operated by Cassiar Asbestos Corp. Ltd., are bargaining for their first contract. They want four weeks vacation, which the union has said the company refused to include in the contract.

Union spokesman Rudy Krickand said Monday the union wants to return to the bargaining table. He said the vacation clause is such "a small matter," but the company seems reluctant to solve it.

About 100 men returned to the asbestos mill Monday to provide essential maintenance.

Operations at the mill were stopped Friday night after truckers refused to ship fuel for the mill past a picket line established by the strike clerks on the town's only access road. The company laid off 500 men.

Other men who did not return to work Monday have said they will leave the town within the next few days if the strike is not ended.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Voice From the Classroom

The proposal to have students play a role in suggesting changes in the public school system is an experiment that might produce some refreshing concepts. Provincial Education Commissioner John Bremer says every B.C. secondary school will be urged to set up student study groups on any aspect of education that concerns them. They will send their recommendations directly to him.

Mr. Bremer's announcement is timed so teachers and principals can integrate the proposed study groups into regular academic schedules. That sounds strange. Academic schedules are already crowded. If students are really interested in bettering the system, couldn't they use a little of their own time for the study groups? And from the student point of view the announcement couldn't have been more badly timed. After two weeks out of school most students have either taken a summer job or gone holidaying. Summer fun will probably take precedence over educational fervor for the next two months.

In September it will be up to the students. While individual school boards have to approve the study groups, once constituted the students will be on their own. If they come up with constructive ideas on curriculum changes, better use of school facilities or inventive approaches to learning, the experiment will be successful. But they will also have to guard against making a mere pet peeve into a cause celebre.

Perhaps it would have been better to conduct such study groups among university students and those who have graduated to the work-a-day world. They have been through the system and would be more aware of deficiencies than students still immersed in high school. But times have changed and the high school student of today often has charge accounts and a part time job. Since most students can handle these responsibilities as well as school work, the experimental study groups may surprise cynical older people. But many a parent may have heard the material already.

The Bahamas Hoists a Flag

Britain's 300-year-old rule of the Bahamas Islands ended today with full assumption by the government at Nassau of defence and foreign affairs. These departments had been Britain's administrative responsibility since the Bahamas took over internal autonomy in 1964. The Bahamas will remain in the Commonwealth, but the 190,000 inhabitants of the 700-island chain — only about 30 of which are populated — will face some old problems in their new independence.

Unemployment is one of them, as it is for many western nations. Sea boundaries and fishing rights — in which Cuba is particularly interested — will be other major items for decision. There has been a decline in the tourist business, as a result of a recent upsurge of black-power nationalism, and a sizable withdrawal of foreign investment for the same reason. Some racial tensions still linger in the islands.

Canada has a considerable investment in the Bahamas, amounting to some $300 millions — more than the British involvement. But the United States has by far the largest financial interest, to the tune of $1 billion. In addition, the U.S. — with British participation — maintains one of the world's largest anti-submarine research centres on one island, and has missile-tracking and underwater test range facilities in coastal waters. The Bahamas government is expected to try to negotiate higher rentals for these interests.

These are not easy times for newly launched countries, and they will be no easier for a national entity stretched thinly over 800 miles of ocean. But the sea-girt situation may also be a factor in helping the country to achieve an internal psychological unity which it has not enjoyed in recent years under British sovereignty. Certainly Canada can welcome a new version of its Commonwealth associate in the Western Hemisphere, and may find occasions when a helping hand or word — if they are accepted — could be valuable to its West Indies neighbor.

A Place to Walk, Not Ride

It's a toss-up in recent days whether there is more shouting in city council than on the Causeway. But council's traffic committee recomendation to eliminate all parking on the Causeway's harbor side is long overdue. While the crush of tour buses is the major problem in recent years all manner of hucksters have concentrated their efforts in that prime location — something which Mayor Pollen correctly refers to as a "jungle" of tourist exploitation.

Victoria's Inner Harbor is the city's focal point. A great deal of money and effort have gone into preserving the area's beauty and tranquillity. If the Causeway is allowed to degenerate into a circus-like atmosphere the goal of the planning and carefully considered projects will have been lost. The bickering among the bus companies over two parking places puts the unseemly affair in focus. But the tour bus operators naturally want the most advantageous place from which to conduct their business.

Perhaps the whole problem could be settled if council dispersed the buses over broad thoroughfares such as Yates Street, or less-used routes such as Menzies. Both are within walking distance of the Inner Harbor. And that is what the Inner Harbor is designed for — walking, not riding and commercialism. In any case, much of the bus promoters' problem with the authorities might be dissipated by a quieter, less aggressive approach to prospective clients.

An Over-the-Horizon Look

When most Canadians were shrugging off winter and thinking about their income tax last April, Defence Minister James Richardson extended the North American Air Defence Command Treaty for another two years.

No one really cared, despite the $140 million annual price tag attached to the agreement. NORAD has been with us since 1957 when Canada first signed the 10 year agreement. In May 1968 the treaty was given another five years of life. And now Canadians will shell out $280 million to secure the country from manned bomber attack until 1975.

Is it really worth the price? NORAD Commander in Chief Seth McKee said in Victoria recently the Russians are modernizing their bombers and NORAD has to be ready to deal with attacks if they come.

Destroy an Invader

"Sound the alarm and defend the continent. Detect ... identify ... destroy an aerial invader," says one of the voluminous blurbs from NORAD's public affairs department.

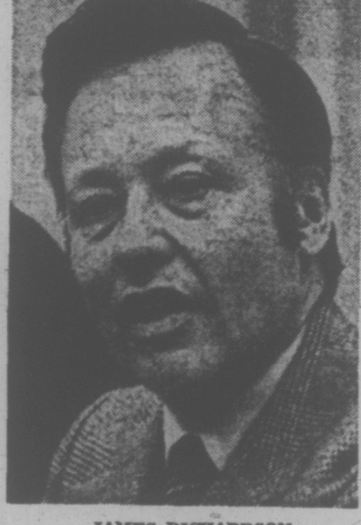
What was it somebody said about military men always preparing for the last war?

Red contrails in the sunset were a definite possibility in the fifties and early sixties. Nikita Khrushchev was shoe-pounding at the United Nations and a few years later an Eisenhower-Khrushchev summit meeting was scuttled because of American contrails over Russia.

But let's face it. In 1973 Leonid Brezhnev addressed the American people, European spheres of influence have been decided among the superpowers, and the Soviet Union has agreed to sell $10 billion worth of natural gas to the U.S.

That's not exactly the climate for a bomber's moon.

And what about those red star bombers? London's Institute of Strategic Studies estimates Soviet intercontinental bomber strength at about 900, including 90 Tupolev Tu-95s, 90 Myasishchev Mya—4s and 700 Tupolev TU-16 and Tupolev TU-22s.



JAMES RICHARDSON
.... extended the treaty.

Most of these machines were produced in the late fifties or early sixties, according to Jane's aircraft. Only the TU-22s are relatively new and supersonic.

That amounts to a fair amount of bombing hardware. But the Soviets also have 1,300 intercontinental ballistic missiles which are far less vulnerable to attack. If they were ever really serious about attacking us with missiles NORAD could give us only a few minutes warning.

Another perspective comes from Dr. Colin S. Gray, a British scholar who has done research on NORAD.

"The Soviet Long Range Airforce may be maintained solely to generate cost-ineffective expenditures in North America, to promote the expenditure by the United States and Canada of $1.2-$1.4 billion per annum on air defence ..."

Despite these doubts as to NORAD's effectiveness we might ask what protection Canadians would get if a manned bomber attack occurred.

Three Squadrons

The answer is hardly worth $140 million per annum. Three Canadian squadrons of F-101 voodoos are maintained at Comox, B.C., Bagotville, Quebec, and North Bay, Ontario. The rest of Canada is defenceless against attack, unless the Americans came to our aid in droves.

NORAD provides for U.S. aircraft defending Canada, but shooting down enemy aircraft over Victoria would be more strategic than letting them hit Seattle.

If Canadians really feel the threat of foreign air attack is serious we will have to get into over-the-horizon radar and anti-ballistic missiles—an alternative clearly beyond our financial capabilities.

If we don't feel any severe threat by 1975 we should pick up our dollars and spend them on something less paranoid and more productive for the good of the country.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

The Price of Soviet Control

HELSINKI — Thirty-five nations came to Helsinki this past week to seek an end to the cold war. Many are leaving in the belief that more liberalized Communism is a necessary first step.

It has been obvious all week that the Soviet Union and its allies are going to resist liberalization as long and as hard as they dare. Little by little, however, the idea is beginning to penetrate that there can be no meaningful relaxation of tension between East and West until Communism does relax its rigid grip on human beings.

This thesis does not come solely from the West. On the eve of the conference, a remarkable document surfaced in Czechoslovakia in which a group of Czech intellectuals set it forth with much force.

"We declare," it said, "that European security is unthinkable without the full security of the citizens of any European country. As long as there exist, in any European country, legal uncertainty and tyranny, there can be no real security and order in Europe."

Repeatedly Argued

Westerners have repeatedly argued this case to their Soviet opposite numbers here and during the six months of preparatory negotiations which preceeded the current conference.

They succeeded in getting the Soviet Union to accept, on paper, the idea that human rights and detente are parts of an indivisible package. Then even elicited from some Russians, in private, acknowledgements that there might indeed be an authentic connection.

But all this was accomplished in the face of great reluctance and heel dragging. Virtually throughout the preliminary talks, from November 1972 to June 1973, Soviet delegates tried to edit into the agenda qualifying phrases which would make human rights dependent on the will of governments and limit foreign interference in the free exercise of that will.

The West held out for deletion of these qualifications, and in the end had its way. The Russians badly wanted the conference to take place, and this was clearly the price the Kremlin was going to have to pay to get it.

But it was a death-bed confession. No sooner did the conference convene than the Russians began taking it all back.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko reintroduced the idea of a freer information flow "between states" (rather than peoples). And he followed with a new draft "declaration" departing from the agreed agenda in significant ways, all in a direction away from liberalization. It was clear he had not been converted.

FOREIGN MINISTER GROMYKO
... not converted.

Indeed, some Western intelligence circles say there actually was a tightening up within the Soviet Union during preparations for the foreign-ministers' conference now under way.

This could, of course, have been in anticipation of necessary future concessions — a step backward in order more safely to step forward. But the implications seem ominous. It could as easily have been an instinctive, knee-jerk reaction to pressure for liberalization.

Optimists continue to insist the Kremlin will give way. They say it eventually will do what it has to do, given sufficient pressure and incentive.

The threat from China on the East is a very powerful incentive for Moscow to seek detente with the West: and so far, the West — and even many neutrals — have been firm in insisting that the price of detente is liberalization.

The facts of life join in making it so. Every time a Soviet intellectual is sent to an insane asylum in punishment for dissidence, just as when Soviet tanks are sent into a Czechoslovakia, the reaction in Western opinion makes it more difficult for a Western government to trade, extend credits, and share technology with the men in Moscow who are held responsible.

The Russians have been asking the West this past week, in effect, to acquiesce in more or less permanent Soviet hegemony over Eastern Europe. The people of the West will let their governments do this only if it is not seen as an immoral act, a decision to sentence the people of Eastern Europe to indefinite tyranny.

Human Rights

"You can have your empire," the West is saying, "if you will rule it in accord with the universal declaration of human rights."

This raises a critical derivative question. Could Soviet domination of Eastern Europe be maintained without repression?

Even with repression, it has not been easy, as the Czechs and Hungarians have shown. The Kremlin's great asset over the past 25 years — East European fear of renewed German aggression — has been seriously undercut in recent years. East Europeans no longer rationalize the presence of the Red Army as a protection against "German Revanchists."

So the choice is clear. Only if the Russians will risk the loss of their empire will they be allowed to keep it with Western blessing.

It is one of the more fascinating dilemmas of Helsinki, and it may be a long time before it is resolved.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Vox Populi

The Willows Beach Association would very much like to thank the many hundreds of concerned citizens of the Greater Victoria area who responded so splendidly to the advertisement placed in this newspaper on June 20.

The Oak Bay Municipal Council received 689 responses through the mail and thousands of signatures supporting the zoning by-law change which will protect the Willows Beach environs from further encroachment by apartment developers.

The voice of the people spoke resoundingly and was listened to by council. The Oak Bay Council is to be congratulated for a forward and visionary position in this regard and future generations of citizens from the entire region will have great cause to remember the excellent work of this council in this matter.

The Willows Beach is saved. Man was considered as the measure and not overdevelopment. For that we can all be thankful. — R. D. Kilshaw, Secretary, The Willows Beach Association.

The Royal

A recent article on the disposal of the grand old Royal Theatre prompts me to offer the following suggestion. As this choice piece of ground is so well situated, why not tear down the old building, and erect maybe a six-storey building with the main floor set aside for a modern concert hall (so badly needed) the second floor for executive offices. The upper floors could be rented for further income.

The whole area between Broughton and Courtney from the Y.M.C.A. to Blanshard could be used for this project after acquiring the present property. On the opposite side of the present theatre, stand two untidy parking lots plus two small buildings.

Why not a three or four-storey parking building with stores on the main floor, the basement also for parking, and a connecting tunnel into the concert hall? Think what an advantage this would be to theatre patrons in bad weather.

I am sure a project such as this (ambitious though it may seem) would greatly open up this now neglected area of downtown, and make Victoria proud. It's a challenge to our city fathers.

In the name of progress, I hope this idea will be seriously considered. — Griff Owens, 107-1013 Vancouver St.

Cartoon Shot Down

As a former Junior Firearms Safety Training Instructor in the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association who along with Messrs. Ray McDougall, John McIllree, W. A. "Bill" James, Jack Brend and many others have during the last ten years conducted hundreds of firearms safety courses and trained thousands of youngsters and aspiring hunters and target shooters, I find the cartoon an affront to these volunteer efforts that we feel have probably saved many lives.

The cartoon reeks of the "anti-gun" sentiments that are thrown at us periodically by the like of that other newspaper's Gorde Hunter and some of our politicians who would ban all guns and deprive those thousands of law-abiding sportsmen of their chosen recreation (be it hunting or competitive target shooting). The banner under which these do-gooders fly is to protect the public against those that use guns for crimes of violence and to gain these ends they point the jaundiced finger at all who own guns. In this case the finger is pointed at the person who is trying to alleviate the basic problem of uninformed people carelessly handling firearms.

The first lesson taught a novice gun handler is to never but NEVER point a gun at anyone, something the cartoonist has depicted in his effort to be humorous. The cartoonist's blackboard shows an automatic weapon with a silencer and shows a cartridge marked pig shot which gives the effect of teaching illegal equipment use and disrespect for the law, none of which have any place whatsoever with the provincial government-sponsored safety program.

All in all I am quite disgusted that my choice of newspaper should stoop so low as to foist this kind of rubbish on the public, many of whom would probably believe the intent of the cartoon. — Garry Williams, B.C. Team Coach-Manager, B.C. Federation of Shooting Sports.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 10, 1913:

The estimate was made today by a financial authority that close to $300 million has come into Canada in the last few months through the export of grain and through immigration and despite the talk of continued stringency, the Canadian situation must have been relieved to that extent since the pinch began to be felt. Estimates of the outflow of money from Canada in interest payments, in the adjustment of trade balance, in the repurchase of Canadian securities sold by foreign investors etc. are more difficult. The CPR through its new stock issue is bringing in close to $100 million of outside money, and despite a tight money market good sized blocks of railway and industrial stocks have been disposed of abroad.

'It's Enough To Keep War Going'

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

British soldier searches woman's bag in Belfast post office

BELFAST — Mrs. Maire Drumm is the den mother for the gunmen of the Provisional IRA. A reporter found Mrs. Drumm with her daughter in Andersontown on election day last week, both carrying signs urging the citizens to show their hatred for the British by spoiling their votes.

The reporter made a lucky and accurate guess and said: "I figure about 16,000 will follow your advice, about 2 per cent of the electorate. Would you regard that as any kind of a mandate?"

Mrs. Drumm, who glories in the title of president of Sinn Fein, fixed the reporter with a steely eye and answered grimly: "It's enough to keep the war going."

It is far from clear whether this bomb-blasted province has now got a workable local government that will share power between majority Protestant and minority Catholics.

What is clear is that citizens on both sides of the sectarian divide voted in strict accord with their tribal loyalties, voted in effect for things as they are.

The Catholic grouping, the Social and Democratic Labor Party, will wind up with about one-quarter of the new assembly's 78 seats, an almost mathematical reflection of the percentage of adult Catholics in Northern Ireland.

Protestants will take about two-thirds and divide almost evenly between the Unionists, their historic ruling instrument and a coalition of Protestant leaders pledged to make the new assembly unworkable.

Any real change in the dismal situation here was decisively rejected. Nonsectarianism, for example, is a radical idea in Ulster. So the handful of men and women who ran as genuine nonsectarian candidates will collect less than one in ten assembly seats.

No Clear Answer

The gunslingers on both sides are also a shade too radical for Ulstermen. So none of the Catholics running on behalf of the IRA's other wing, the Officials, took a seat. And nobody closely identified with the paramilitary Protestant formation, the Ulster Defence Association, won a seat either.

Can what is left put together a workable government? Can they produce something along the lines designed by London, an executive body sharing power between Catholic and Protestant representatives and opening up a dialogue on common problems with the Republic of Ireland in the south?

Unhappily but unsurprisingly, the election provides no clear answer. On paper, those favoring a workable local government won about two seats against every one of those pledged to maintain undiluted Protestant rule.

But paper totals are deceptive here. Ulster's politicians are notoriously unreliable and cunning enough to give only the most qualified pledges about anything.

For the half century of Ulster's existence, the Catholics have been seeking a share of the rule from which they have been rigorously excluded and systematically discriminated against in jobs, housing and everything else. Therefore, one would expect their Social and Democratic labor party to support enthusiastically the new order. But the SDLP is riven with splits of its own and is united only in agreeing that the ultimate solution is to take Ulster out of Britain and unite with the south.

Too Educated

The Protestants are even more fragmented. The single biggest group is led for the moment by Brian Faulkner, and his Unionists are pledged only in the most guarded fashion to make the new assembly work.

A reporter who spends 20 minutes alone with Faulkner finds it impossible to pin down the provinces's last "prime minister" on whether or not he would sit on an executive board with leaders of the SDLP. The only thing about which he is clear is that one of the two most important leaders, John Hume, is totally unacceptable. As far as can be determined, Hume's chief offence is that he speaks in the accents of an educated man and thereby affronts Faulkner's stereotype of how a Catholic should sound.

Another Protestant grouping, the so-called Loyalist Coalition, will have almost as many seats as Faulkner's crowd in the new assembly and they declared themselves unalterably opposed to sharing power or talking with Dublin.

Holding the balance of power on the Protestant side will be a half-dozen or so floaters who will drift where the power or impulse flows in their community.

If Faulkner can pick them up and if they are all willing to divide up executive tasks with the SDLP, the assembly might conceivably work. Nobody here would bet very much on it.

The British, who exercise ultimate power over Ulster and direct control of the forces mainly trying to preserve law and order, are cynical about Ulster politicians. They are planning to give members of the new executive big salaries — six thousand pounds (about $15,600) is being talked of — to induce the Protestants to play the game.

It is the British who tell you that an Ulster "Loyalist" is "loyal to the shilling, not the Crown."

Britain, even with an able proconsul like William Whitelaw, the Northern Ireland secretary of state, has more often been wrong than right about both parts of Ireland. There is here a hard-shelled will to hold fast in both communities that defeats economic and every other self interest, including the preservation of life.

Up for Grabs

The point is that everything in Northern Ireland is up for grabs and nobody controls the most volatile and explosive factors in both camps. Mrs. Drumm's IRA gunslinger friends and those on the Protestant side in the UDA are not ready to lay down their arms.

They are animated by a mixture of self-pitying outrage and profitable shakedown rackets. Despite the massive British military presence here — hardly 16,500 troops — the atrocities will go on.

This is not an atmosphere likely to lead to sweet compromise between Protestants and Catholics, a compromise that the politicians themselves may very well reject.

Scientist Scorns 'Fission Lobby'

By ROLAND HUNTFORD
London Observer

STOCKHOLM — Present nuclear power plants should be shut down and scientific research should concentrate on conventional power processes until thermonuclear energy can be perfected, according to Professor Hannes Alfven, a Swedish Nobel Prize-winning physicist.

Nuclear plants now in use, which work by the fission process, present grave dangers from radioactive pollution, he said, and he accused what he called "the fission lobby" of influencing the direction of research.

Professor Alfven is one of the world's foremost authorities on the thermonuclear, or fusion, process. This is the principle of the hydrogen bomb, in which the nuclei of light atoms are forced to combine, usually by the application of intense heat. He is working on the elusive problem of taming that process and harnessing it to peaceful uses. He works for part of the year at a laboratory in La Jolla, Calif., and also has a small group of research workers under him at the Technical University in Stockholm.

Instead of building nuclear reactors, said Professor Alfven, the use of conventional fuels ought to be improved. It was a fallacy to suppose that these were early exhausted.

"We have coal enough for centuries to come," he said. "If research of the quantity and quality now devoted to the fission process were to be concentrated on clean and sophisticated methods of handling fossil fuels, we could cope with the global energy problem for a long time to come, and without causing as much pollution."

The fission process releases energy by splitting the nuclei of heavy atoms, usually by radioactive bombardment. The method has many drawbacks.

Two of the major ones are the use of radioactive fuels and the production of radioactive waste products. The disposal of the latter has not really been satisfactorily solved and many authorities believe the quantities being built up from existing reactors are a threat to the environment.

The thermonuclear or fusion process, on the other hand, is relatively clean. Its waste products are not radioactive, nor is the fuel. The difficulty lies in controlling the highly-mobile "plasma" which is formed by the atoms of light elements at the very high temperatures needed to persuade them to fuse together and give off energy. The properties of plasmas are as yet imperfectly understood, and it is in this area that Professor Alfven is working.

In his speech the professor said that the necessary breakthrough was probably closer than was generally supposed. "Usually," he said, "the year 2000 is advanced as the earliest date at which fusion could be used, and therefore quoted as an argument to dismiss this source of energy in planning for the rest of the millennium. I suggest that cause and effect have been interchanged. Since the fission reactor lobby wants no competitors it is very keen to eliminate the more attractive alternatives."

It was the fission lobby, the professor implied, which was responsible for the present situation. By this he included both the manufacturers of nuclear plants and research scientists. He suggested it was the lobby who had persuaded the Swedish government to concentrate on fission nuclear reactors instead of devoting more resources to the fusion process.

"If we made a real effort," Professor Alfven said, "we could probably tame the fusion process long before the year 2000."

In the meantime, we ought to turn to resources as yet hardly touched. Fossil fuels were not the only expedient, said the professor. There was geothermal power and, most promising of all, solar power. The latter, he said, might well solve the energy crisis on its own. In the meantime, anything was better than the present form of nuclear reactor with its constant threat of catastrophic accidents, and environmental pollution.

The Middle-Class Approach

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The honorary author of An Energy Policy for Canada is the Hon. Donald Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources. The study strikes me as much like Mr. Macdonald.

It is weighty and substantial: Two volumes—650-some pages, 365,000-some words, a price of $10. There's a mandarin snobbishness to it. It is didactic in the way it spews data and the difficult questions which it never answers.

It is not didactic in the ideological sense. It is the antithesis of the popular or the imaginative. Rather, it is learnedly neutral. Its dynamic is to neither left nor right, neither towards continentalism nor Canadian nationalism. It is earnest and serious without being very moral.

The tip-off on the amorality of the study is the centrality given to "lifestyle." Again and again the study comes back to the life-style of Canadians.

For example: "Energy has been a pervasive factor of life since primitive man first employed fire to his use, and the majority of Canadians have become accustomed to a flick-of-a-switch lifestyle. It is considered unlikely that Canadians will follow a life-style that will continue to result in a doubling of energy use every decade". . . .

"Canadians generally have subscribed to a lifestyle developed in warmer and more densely populated parts of the world, and have used energy liberally to adapt this style to Canadian conditions". . . .

"On the average, each of us uses each year energy equivalent to that contained in 55 barrels of oil. Much of this energy is required to achieve a reasonable standard of living in Canada, but an important part also goes to enable Canadians to enjoy, by choice, the lifestyle and the activities that they find satisfying . . ."

This anchoring of so much data and of so many variables in our choices to repeated reminders about our precious "lifestyle" seems to be the quintessence of upper middle-class Rosedale and Donald Macdonald. It presages a pragmatic, complex, essentially conservative extension of the status quo.

It minimizes the world's burdens or any higher aims of Canadian nationalism. It's much along the pragmatic, uninspired lines of Foreign Policy for Canadians, that earlier exercise in Trudeauism which never even bothered to get around to the dominant factor in our foreign and economic policies—the United States of America.

It seems to me there are a few ready conclusions to be drawn about energy policy as Mr. Macdonald and the Trudeau government sees it in this study. The study really tells us that the issues are impractical for easy ideological or partisan stances.

Why? Because they are complex, highly technical and costly on the development side. Because we have ahead neither a long-range surfeit nor a long-range dearth of energy resources. Because the jurisdictional controls are both so divided and interwoven between federal and provincial governments. Because we have such a mix of corporate and investment endeavor, particularly foreign or multi-national in nature, entrenched in Canadian energy exploitation. Because our huge land area and the wide scatter of our energy resources has had and will demand huge, extensive scale developments. These, in their scale, preclude decentralization or any ready answers to environmental and nationalistic demands through small, regional enterprises.

There's nothing much in the study for those radicals who demand an end to giantism, who clamor for a final solution that shall end the forward stampede to larger and larger GNP and ever greater growth. For example, the study throws up the figure of from $7 billion to $10 billion as needed probably in the next decade to assuage environmental needs in relation to energy development.

Thus, the study is not an exercise in pessimism although it seems implicit that the entire subject is beyond ready, ordinary understanding. It is a matter for specialists and experts, not for simple simon resolutions of political parties of black and white divisions among the unwashed without degrees from MIT or the Harvard School of Business.

Is the study worth the $10 million you must pay for it and your reading time?

Yes. It is well worth reading . . . if you are patient . . . if you have a university education or its equivalent or experience . . . if you work at an executive or senior administrative level . . . say, for an oil company or an investment firm or for a party's research apparatus or for a provincial hydro authority or for a provincial department with some responsibility in the energy-environment-transport triangle.

It will be most useful to those who have some rank in one of the 10 federal departments or one of the many federal agencies and councils such as NRC, ECC, CTC, NEB or SCC, which deal in the economics, technology and provincial relations of energy.

For the ordinary citizen, the two volumes fail as a source book or encyclopedia on energy matters. There are too many big words, long sentences and longer paragraphs. There isn't any index. The tables of contents are cryptic. There are few cross-references. The study is for the insiders who are already well-informed.

The study may well be the only useful prelude to the crystallizing of a new energy policy for Canada. If so, it means that this important matter is no longer manageable by the traditional political processes in which there was competition for popular support through easily-understood policies put forward by the politicians and the political parties.

The summary of the study concludes with a nine-point action program and six of the nine, when translated, call for more "research," "studies," "review," and "exchange of information."

There's Gold Back There

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

As Beryl Plumptre was explaining to questioning MPs the other day that she would receive about $40,000 a year as head of the new food prices review board — a sum that is of somewhat the same order as that paid to provincial premiers — the thought crossed our minds that we are perhaps misleading our youth.

For decades we have been saying, "Go West, young man; go West," when what we should perhaps have been saying is "Go East, young man; go East." East to that modern Chilkoot Trail (The Queensway) leading into that modern Klondike (Ottawa) where nuggets the size of your fist take the shape of computer-punched cards bearing the signature of one of Her Majesty's ministers.

This is not to criticize Mrs. Plumptre, of course, any more than one would want to criticize any of the hardy sourdoughs who hit that earlier trail. (Mrs. Plumptre, for goodness sake, has worked on behalf of consumers for years — for no pay at all). Now the gold is there for the taking and as Mrs. Plumptre says, if the government wants to get a good job done it will have to pay good people good money to get it done.

No one would dispute the wisdom of that statement. It's just that there are so many good people being paid so much good money that we sometimes wonder if there are that many good jobs that need doing. Good men are hard to keep but must they all be kept?

So many top jobs have been added to the civil service and upper-level salaries have been increasing so fast that government pay raises have outstripped comparable increases in industry by 20 per cent in five years.

Four years ago the government wage bill was $2.6 billion. Last year it was $3.9-billion, a 50 per cent increase. The number of civil servants earning $18,000 or more has increased by 23 per cent in only three years. The executive, scientific and professional category of civil servants receive from $8,200 to $40,000 a year and in the two years ending July 1972 the numbers in that category jumped from 14,829 to 18,160 — a 22.5 per cent increase.

During the same period the administrative and foreign service category, where salaries range from $7,000 to $35,000 a year jumped from 23,685 to 28,607, a 21 per cent increase.

The reasons are said to be many. When a new mandarin appears on the scene he gathers to him his own acolytes with the result that people in existing jobs are kicked upstairs or sideways or into special projects. They can't be fired and, since their pensions aren't portable, they won't leave, so room has to be found for them. It's called reorganization in Ottawa.

Then there is mechanization which is said to eliminate many support positions and what is called the growing need to hire experts: planers, managers, sociologists, economists, task force leaders, policy evaluators and so on. Some of the experts are needed to counter-study programs studied by experts in other departments. And to study counted-studies.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rapeseed and flax prices gained the daily maximum of 20 cents in all active futures today at the close on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Oats and barley traded moderately at stronger prices and rye advanced more than seven cents in a good demand.

Volume of trade Monday was 797,000 bushels of flax, 2,089,000 of rapeseed and 892,000 of rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodity futures prices drifted lower on the Board of Trade today in relatively light dealings dominated by sellers.

The selling was influenced largely by expectations that a government report on acreage estimated to be planted to the major crops will be bearish.

The trade already knows a record winter wheat crop is expected and acreage for corn and soybeans probably will produce yields of record proportions.

The selling was very strong on the opening in the major pits. After several periods of widely-fluctuating prices, corn prices were down 7½ cents and wheat six.

Old crop soybeans, traded for liquidation only, were down the limit of 40 cents in the August and September options but the nearby July closed 44 higher. New crop options were higher.

Soybean oil gained around 70 points, but meal prices were mixed with old crop options down the limit and new crop options higher. Oats were lower in light trade.

At the close, wheat was down 2½ cents with July one higher, 2.64, corn declined nearly five with July three higher at 2.15, oats two lower, July old 89 and soybeans 40 lower to 44 higher, July 6.40.

CALGARY LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. from the Calgary Public Stockyard shows sales of 925 head, mostly steers in the lighter weight range and cows. Trade was active.

Slaughter steers sold fairly steady to a narrow demand. Heifers were in short supply selling steady for quality. Cows sold fully steady sales with sales to 34.60. Bulls sold steady.

Steers A1 and 2 44.25-45.60, A3 43-44.25. Heifers A1 and 2 41.50-42.50, A3 40.25-41.25. Cows D1 and 2 33-34, D3 31-32.75, D4 28-30.50. Good bulls 38-41.

Replacement cattle were mainly short keep steers in the 800 to 950 pound weight range selling at steady prices. There were no stock calves on offer.

Good feeder steers more than 800 pounds 43-47.40. Good feeder heifers more than 600 pounds 40.-42.70.

There were no hogs sold f.o.b. Calgary to 11 a.m.

CHINA BOMB FALLOUT UNDETECTABLE IN U.S.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The amount of radiation received in the United States from the Communist Chinese nuclear weapons test several weeks ago was too low to detect, the Atomic Energy Commission said Monday.

China detonated a device with a yield of one to three megatons — up to three million tons of TNT — and the AEC since then has kept an eye on a high altitude air mass moving toward this country from the test area.

The mass has passed over the United States, and readings at monitoring stations were "within the range of natural background" radiation — the ever present radiation produced from natural sources — the AEC said.

NEW YORK

Sharply Higher At Toronto

Prices on the Toronto stock market remained sharply higher in moderate mid-afternoon trading today.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.71 million shares compared with 1.29 million at the same time Monday.

Falconbridge Nickel rose 1½ to $70½, Canadian Tire A 1 to $52, Canadian Imperial Bank 1 to $29½, Pacific Pete 1 to $26¾ and Aquitaine ⅞ to $21⅝.

Harlequin Enterprises gained ¾ to $13¼, Bank of Nova Scotia ⅝ to $32⅝, Cominco ¾ to $30, Distillers Corp. Seagrams ¾ to $40 and Texasgulf ¾ to $21⅝.

Rio Algom climbed 1¾ to $29, Placer 1 to $29 and Mattagami ⅝ to $33. Pato was off 65 cents to $8.35 and Camflo 55 cents to $8.75.

Ranger gained ¾ to $30¾ and North Canadian 40 cents to $8. Canadian Reserve slipped 35 cents to $4.55.

New York

Stock market prices moved higher near opening today, dropped slightly in the early afternoon, then showed signs of firming again.

Larry Wachtel, analyst with Bache and Co., noted that the market last week had shown its ability to withstand bad economic news without dropping severely, although prices were down.

Analysts also noted on the positive side that today's rally, as well as including the glamor stocks, had included other groups, such as hotels, mobile homes, airlines, and other issues which Wachtel characterized as having been "decimated lately."

Montreal

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 1.57 million shares, compared with 618,500 shares at the same time Monday.

Rio Algom Mines was up 1⅜ to $28⅝, Financial Collection Agencies 1 to $8, Cominco ¾ to $30, Gulf Oil Canada ¾ to $35 and Aquitaine Co. of Canada ¾ to $21½, while Systems Dimensions declined ½ to $15.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Muscocho Explorations gained three cents to 57 cents on 255,350 shares traded.

London

Prices on the London stock market were mixed in light trading today.

Observers said the quiet market reflected fears of labor unrest and an overheated economy.

The Financial Times index rose .1 points to 429.5 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were generally higher.

Term Deposits Now Pay 8.75%

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A top interest rate of 8.75 per cent on term deposits, common in Toronto for almost a month, has finally reached Victoria.

A western Canadian firm, Farmers and Merchants Trust, is believed to be the first to offer the high rate here.

Farmers and Merchants Trust is a smaller company, based in Calgary and confined to Alberta and British Columbia except for an office in Montreal.

While most Victoria trust companies are offering 8.5 per cent on five-year term deposits and sending out mortgage money at 9.75 per cent, the Calgary-based firm is offering 8.75 per cent on five-year term deposits and sending out first mortgage money at 10.5 per cent.

Although all prices are subject to day-by-day fluctuations, the trend in Ontario indicates term desposits here will go to 8.75 per cent or more while a first mortgage rate of 10 per cent may soon become general.

The new schedule by Farmers and Merchants Trust is 8 per cent on deposits of up to two-year term, 8.25 per cent on three-year term and 8.5 per cent on four-year term.

Minimum deposit is $500. Once a deposit is made, the money is locked in for the stipulated term. However, investors may borrow up to 90 per cent of the amount deposited for an effective interest rate of 2 per cent.

An investor with $500 locked in for 5 years at 8.75 per cent interest may borrow $450 at 10.75 per cent instead of withdrawing the money. Because his money continues to earn 8.75 per cent, the effective interest is 2 per cent on the loan.

The locked-in feature is common to trust company deposits, although the cost of borrowing against a deposit varies.

For example, City Savings and Trust charges an average of 1.5 per cent to borrow against a term deposit.

The City Savings and Trust rates, about average for Victoria firms, are 8 per cent for one year, 8⅛ for two years, 8.25 for three years and 8⅜ for four years.

Its top rate is 8.5 per cent for five years. On the other hand, its mortgage rate is 9.75 per cent, about the same as many banks, although there is still some 9.5 per cent mortgage money in Victoria.

All prices are subject to change on a day-by-day basis, particularly with the current upward pressure on all interest rates.

However, the changes do not affect existing contracts.

Second mortgage interest rates have been slow to respond to the upward trend and money is still going out at 12 per cent for second claims on property.

The 12 per cent rate was general when the first mortgage rate was 8.75 per cent and has hardly been affected by the one per cent rise in the basic rate.

However, common quotes for second mortgages now are 12 to 14 per cent, depending on the property, instead of 12 to 13 per cent.

New TSE Head Plans To Continue Reforms

TORONTO (CP) — J. Pearce Bunting, new chairman of the Toronto Stock Exchange, sees his term of office as an extension of the wave of reform and modernization set in motion by his predecessors.

Bunting, 43, succeeds J. Christopher Barron, 42, president of Cassels Blaikie and Co. Ltd. of Toronto. Barron was preceeded by Donald Lawson who headed the exchange at 45.

The three men have been involved in development of improved trading systems, reform of trading and preparation of a new commission-rate schedule.

Bunting, who describes himself as a "systems approach" man, intends to further the study of computer system trading. The system cnder development would give Canada the lead in automated trading and would be valuable in making a country-wide trading system viable.

President of his own brokerage firm, Alfred Bunting and Co. Ltd., he feels the exchange's "knom youd client" rule is significant.

"If you don't want a fellow's feet under your dining room table, you don't want him as a client."

Bunting says the Toronto exchange has been modest about its accomplishments.

Among these are recent bylaw changes that require brokers to pay full commission on personal business and to give priority to orders from the public.

The elimination of the broker commission advantage was opposed by older brokers, but Bunting feels it was a necessary change.

He says the exchange should speak out more about its development of policies in the public interest. For example, the exchange is developing a policy to require floor traders to maintain specific price spreads between bid and asked prices, a move to improve market liquidity and give the investor a better break.

A strong believer in research, Bunting opposes "unbundling" — a separate charge for execution of orders and additional charges for research, dividend collection, credit and safekeeping services.

He fears this would result in the investor who most needs the advice not getting it while the large investor and institutions would.

Looking at the stock market, Bunting says that although he does not expect a significant upturn until fall, there will be buying opportunities during the summer.

Bunting already has proven he is not afraid to take on the establishment in a corporate fight. One example is his action in the 1971 takeover of Supertest Petroleum Corp. Ltd. of London, Ont., by BP Canada Ltd. of Montreal.

His firm sold a substantial amount of Supertest stock to clients based on its evaluation of what it was worth. The BP Canada deal would have given substantially less to Supertest shareholders.

With the assistance of Jarislowsky, Fraser and Co. Ltd., a Montreal investment adviser, the firm waged a proxy fight to win a better deal for Supertest shareholders.

"A lot of people laughed at us, but the result was worth the effort."

A second-generation stockbroker, he joined his father's firm in 1955 after three years with McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd. His father has been a broker since 1929 and, although officially retired, offers advice regularly to the firm.

Fuel Giants, Government Cause Gas Shortage: FTC

WASHINGTON (WP) — Anti-competitive practices by the large U.S. oil companies, a general spirit of industry co-operation instead of competition; and government policies have together created the current U.S. gasoline shortage, a Federal Trade Commission staff report says.

The report says the "major" firms, which consistently appear to co-operate rather than compete in all phases of their operation, have behaved in a similar fashion as would a classical monopolist: they have attempted to increase profits by restricting output."

The major companies—18 of them—have co-operated with one another in influencing legislation, bidding for crude oil leases, establishing the purchase price of crude oil from which petroleum products are made, transporting the crude oil, refining it, and marketing gasoline, the report charges.

"In sum, the majors continually engage in common course of action for their common benefit," the report says.

The report suggests that the major oil companies are using the current gasoline shortage their activities helped create to eliminate "the only viable long-term source of price competition" — the independent marketer.

Noting that more than 1,200 independent gasoline stations were forced to close in the first five months of this year, the FIC staff reports says," . . . the majors have used the shortage as an occasion to attempt to debilitate, if not eradicate, the independent marketing sector."

They are not doing this by lowering prices in those areas where they compete with independents—who have generally charged two to six cents per gallon less than the majors—but by not permitting their prices to rise.

In a normal competitive market, the report explains, the "cure" from a shortage would be for prices to increase; this in turn would cause producers to increase supply and also discourage some consumption; thus, supply and demand would be brought into equilibrium.

Instead, the independents who are having to pay higher prices for their wholesale products — if they can get them at all — have to raise their prices, while the majors absorb their higher costs thus not allowing their gasoline prices to rise. "The independents, of course, simply do not have available supplies of gasoline to deal with such a tactic," the report says.

"As the shortage forces them to curtail sales they must raise prices; the sole basis on which they can compete with the majors is destroyed."

The majors, the FTC staff report says, have never tried to compete on price, only in "secondary respects" such as appearance and location of stations, giveaways, credit card services, and maps.

At the time, they developed "an elaborate network of devices" to limit the supply of crude oil available to independent refiners and refined products available to independent wholesalers and retailers, the report says. If the majors' current pricing tactic is at all successful, the staff predicts, "the consumer will pay dearly . . ."

The report, prepared by the FTC's Bureau of Competition — the antitrust enforcement arm — and the Bureau of Economics, is part of the culmination of an almost two-year study of the effect of the structure, conduct and performace of the oil industry and whether its firms are engaged in unfair methods of competition in violation of the law.

A copy of the report — sent to members of Congress who requested it—was obtained by the Washington Post. Not sent to the hill was another report containing an analysis of alternative courses of action for the commission's consideration and the staff's recommendations.

The staff is said to have recommended the bringing of antitrust charges against the eight largest oil companies which, if successful, would result in a considerable restructuring of the industry. The staff recommended that the FTC seek the diestiture of some of the industry's functions — now so interrelated — to foster competition in its various phases; production of crude oil, transportation, refining, and marketing.

The report points out that in 1970 the eight largest firms — operating in varying degrees in all phases of the industry — held 64 per cent of the nation's proved crude oil reserves, accounted for 58 per cent of refining capacity, and 55 per cent of the gasoline sold.

The top eight companies are Atlantic Richfield, Exxon, Gulf, Mobil, Shell, Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of Indiana and Texaco.

The oil industry didn't get where it is today nor did it create the current gasoline shortage by itself, the FTC staff says.

"There also has been a significant contribution made by the United States government." The report says that federal and state governments ". . . do for the major companies that which would be illegal for the companies to do themselves."

These things have included the oil import program, which restricted the flow of competing foreign supplies into this country; the oil depletion allowance, which allowed the firms to make most of their profits on crude while the independents have little crude production; the foreign tax credit and price controls, all of which altered the system of supply and demand to the industry's benefit.

The staff was not happy about its own past performance either. Its past approach — seeking to correct specific anti-competitive practices at the marketing level — really ignored "the market power associated with vertical integration and limited competition," the report said.

Among the report's significant findings:

—The petroleum industry, and refining especially, is characterized by high barriers to entry, preventing new firms from being attracted into the market by the industry's excess profits. There has been no big entry into refining in 20 years.

—With their economic resources and advanced econometric models "the major oil companies should have been able to predict the current increase in demand for petroleum products," the report says. "Whatever their forecasts showed," they failed to expand refinery capacity, to meet present and future need the report says.

Even though some firms have plans to build new refineries the next three or four years (the period needed for construction of new refineries) appears bleak," the staff said. "As demand increases more rapidly than refinery capacity, shortages of petroleum products will become more acute." The degree of severity will depend upon prices — the lower they are the more critical the shortage will be, the staff said.

NO PROFITS IN CHASTITY

MILAN (Renter) — "They were truly artistic . . . made of iron and animal skin" said Gualberto Montebovi of the chastity belts he sold before lack of demand put him out of business.

Montebovi started the business last year employing a local artisan to make the "precautionary" objects, but only managed to sell 30 models for about 10,000 lira ($15 each).

PLAYBOY STUDIES PHOTO 'ADJUSTMENTS'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Supreme Court decision on obscenity has prompted Playboy, a favorite magazine of Vice-President Spiro Agnew, to consider making "editorial adjustments" in its photography. But its rival Penthouse, arguing that the human body is not obscene, says it has no intention of changing its pictures.

Both magazines said they regretted the high court ruling, which gave power to local officials to judge what is obscene on the basis of "community standards" rather than national tastes. The ruling has resulted in both publications being taken off the stands in many towns, particularly in the south.

Bob Guccione, founder and publisher of Penthouse, which has cut into the older Playboy market with its total nudity and provocative feature articles, said the magazine might consider some minor non-photographic changes.

But he was adamant about keeping photographs the same. "I utterly reject the concept that the human body in any aspect is considered obscene," he said. "It is not anit-biblical, anti-Christian, or anti-anything you like."

Playboy, who pioneered the literary girlie magazine field and made it into a financial bonanza, said it was considering "editorial adjustments" for future issues. Playboy officials were meeting in Chicago this week to discuss the matter.

Agnew, in an interview a month ago, said one of the disadvantages of being vice-president was that "you have to give up Playboy." His remarks were widely used by the magazine in recent advertising campaigns.

Guild Certified For Newspaper In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba labor relations board has approved an application by the Canadian region of the Newspaper Guild for certification as bargaining agent for editorial and advertising employees of Winnipeg Free Press.

Hugh Jamieson, acting board chairman, said Monday letters of notification have been sent to the parties involved. The application was filed May 25. The board decided Friday to certify the guild as bargaining agent for about 175 employees.

fresh B.C. Cherries

July is cherry month . . . and to help you enjoy the fresh sunshine flavour of B.C. Cherries to the full, here is a delicious recipe your whole family will love.

CHERRY CHEESECAKE

CRUST
1 package (4 oz.) Holland rusk, lemon cookies, or graham wafers.
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
6 tablespoons melted butter

FILLING
1 package (8 oz.) plain cream cheese
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/2 cup dairy sour cream

GLAZE
2 pounds fresh B.C. Cherries
3/4 cup granulated sugar
3 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash of salt
1/4 cup cold water
1 teaspoon butter
Red food colouring

Roll rusks, cookies, or graham wafers into crumbs; mix with sugar and cinnamon. Add melted butter and mix well. Press into buttered pan, covering bottom and up the sides.

Have cream cheese and eggs at room temperature. Beat cheese. Add sugar gradually, beating in well. Add flour and salt; mix. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Beat in vanilla, lemon rind, and dairy sour cream.

Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into crust. Bake at 275 degrees F. for 1 1/2 hours, or until filling mixture is firm and lightly browned. Cool pan on rack away from drafts.

Meanwhile, make glaze by pitting cherries and reserving out 2 cups. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Add water; bring to boil and cook until clear. Add the 2 cups reserved cherries and cook a further 5 minutes or until there is no taste of raw starch. Add butter and red food colouring, if desired. Cool. Spoon over cooled cake. Arrange remaining cherries on top. Chill. Serves 8-10.

And remember, July is the time to buy lots of plump, juicy B.C. Cherries for all your home preserving and freezing needs, too.

For your copy of our "Sunshine Meals" booklet on how to preserve and freeze B.C. tree fruits, send your name, address and 25¢ in coin to: B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., Dept. 'N', Kelowna, B.C.

75% of U.S. Army Has Drink Problem: Study

WASHINGTON (WP) — More than three-quarters of the junior enlisted men in the U.S. army and the navy have serious drinking problems, according to the results of a study issued Monday by the Pentagon.

Forty-four per cent of a sample group of 9,500 army men were classified as "problem drinkers" who went absent without leave or otherwise missed work assignments because of drinking. Twenty-nine per cent of the group were classified as occasional heavy "binge" drinkers, while only 4 per cent were categorized as non-drinkers and 9 per cent were labeled as "drinkers with no problem."

Similar figures were offered by the navy, which reported that 20 per cent of their enlisted men were "serious problem drinkers" and that only 21 per cent of the study group were rated as non-drinkers or "no problem" drinkers.

For many young enlisted men in the services, alcohol has replaced drugs as an abuse problem, according to Dr. Richard Wilbur, assistant secretary of defence for health and environment.

The cost of alcohol abuse, Wilbur said, runs into the millions of dollars in lost work time or reduced efficiency.

He said that in the fiscal year 1973 alone, the army lost 2,200 "man years" of work as a result of alcohol abuse. The cost of this lost time in payroll and allowances alone was $17 million, Wilbur said.

During the same period, he said, the army lost 16,000 "man years" in reduced efficiencey because of late arrivals or early leaves attributed to hangovers.

The definition of a "heavy drinker," according to Wilbur, is a person who takes five or more drinks a day four or more times a week, or takes 12 or more drinks one day a month, or drinks for more than a full day once in a three-year period.

An alcoholic, by the Pentagon's standards, is a person who has suffered or has been threatened by a loss of marriage, has severe financial instability or has lost his job because of drinking, or who is unable to function without alcohol.

22 NEW JOBS DRAW 500 BIDS

More than 500 applications have been received by the provincial government for the 22 jobs available in the government's new environment and land use secretariat, Resources Minister Robert Williams said Monday.

The secretariat, which will be a co-ordinating agency working under the direction of the cabinet's environment and land use committee, is being formed now. Williams said a selection committee for the secretariat is being formed this week.

Seventy-one applications have been received for the position of director of the secretariat, the resources minister said. He called the number of applications for the available jobs "one of the healthiest responses in the history of the civil service in B.C."

The environment and land use secretariat will have a budget of about $400,000 per year. It is intenled to look into all aspects of land use in B.C. and environmental effects of present and proposed policies.

The director of the secretariat will hold the status of a deputy minister in the B.C. government.

Gov't Confirms Interest

Provincial government interest in the acquisition of a Surrey poultry processing plant was confirmed Monday by Trade Minister Gary Lauk.

Lauk was commenting on reports that the government was interested in a partnership with the Pacific Poultry Co-operative, which is negotiating purchase of Panco Poultry Ltd., the major poultry processing firm in the province.

The minister said the provincial government does not propose to be the principal owner of the processing firm when it is acquired, "but I'm sure that we should get involved in some way."

The decision on the extent to which the government will become involved in the processing concern will have to be made by the board of directors of the B.C. Development Corporation, an industrial arm of the government set up during the past session but not yet put into action.

Lauk said the board of directors of the government corporation will not be named for another six weeks.

It has been reported that a figure of 49 per cent interest in the poultry project by the government has been mentioned in the negotiations over the firm's sale. Lauk did not confirm that figure.

He said matters in the field of agricultural processing are referred to him only after the minister of agriculture has "thoroughly investigated" them.

"We've reached that stage with Panco, I believe," Lauk said.

Last week, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said the government is looking favorably at a request from the Pacific Poultry Co-operative for provincial assistance in its efforts to acquire Panco Poultry.

The co-operative, made up of about 120 turkey and broiler growers throughout the province, has been negotiating with Panco officials for the last six months.

It is believed the co-operative will approach the B.C. Development Corporation for its financial assistance in the form of a long-term low-interest loan.

Tourist Bureau 'Not Dormant'

Ald. Bill Tindall assured city businessmen Monday a replacement for the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau will be found.

"The idea of a tourist bureau is not being left dormant," Tindall told the Central Business District Advisory Committee.

The present bureau will close in September because of lack of financial backing.

Tindall said the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, which has shared administration with the visitors bureau, has struck a committee to consider how the functions of the visitors bureau can be continued.

It is generally agreed that a new organization is needed, Tindall said.

"The consensus is that the reorganized and restructured bureau should be concerned with what to do for visitors once they are here, and not involved with outside publicity which is the responsibility of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau," Tindall said.

Following the meeting, Tindall said "two or three groups of people" had made it known they would take over the duties of the visitors bureau on an interim basis when it folds in September. He said he "could not be specific about who they are at this time."

'New Era Of Peace' —Nixon

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (WP) — President Nixon declared here Monday that the U.S. is entering "a new era" of peace at home as he presided at the swearing-in of Clarence Kelley as the new director of the FBI.

Stopping here at mid-day on his way to Washington from 16 days in California, Nixon said that his administration has made steady progress in achieving peace abroad and also in the cities and on the campuses of this country.

A crowd of about 12,000 persons cheered the president as he spoke in the square in front of the federal building. Between 50 and 100 demonstrators at the back of the crowd carried signs urging "Impeach Nixon" and other slogans and shouted "Nixon must go."

When the president asserted that crime is diminishing in this country, a demonstrator shouted in an obvious reference to Watergate: "What about White House crime?"

But the crowd, small for such an occasion, was overwhelmingly friendly. It stood in the hot sun and frequently interrupted the president's brief remarks with applause.

After taking the oath, Kelley promised to "serve only justice and to avoid any other force or influence which hurts the cause of justice."

Pledging fair and equitable enforcement of the law, he also said that every citizen, regardless of his position, "should be accorded the full rights guaranteed him, but more than that, the dignitaries and courtesies owed free and proud people."

Psychology Proposed For High Schools

Psychology may soon become the latest addition to the broadening curriculum in Victoria's high schools.

Brian Brumwell, a teacher at Mount View Senior Secondary, has proposed to Greater Victoria school board that he be permitted to teach an introductory psychology course during the second semester next year.

Psychology 12E was recommended for approval by a board committee Monday night, but after final board approval must still go before the provincial advisory committee on secondary school curriculum.

Brumwell, who says in his submission to the board that a greater selection of electives should be provided in schools so they won't simply be considered "fillers" by students, would offer one class of psychology to a maximum of 30 students.

The course curriculum would include a definition of psychology; the history of psychology, with statistics and physiology; a study of the basic psychological processes and how they operate in complicated situations; investigation of personality, behavior pathology and social psychology; and applied psychology.

Brumwell says his course will not "steal the thunder" of university level psychology courses but rather attempt to give a sound background for those interested in going on in psychology.

The vast majority of students do not go on to university and take psychology courses, so his course, he said, would offer those students something different.

Brumwell has taken a combined psychology-sociology major at the University of Victoria and has been a school counsellor.

The course would cost about $10 per student and not require any new teachers.

50,000 CRABS GAIN FREEDOM

OTTER ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — The U.S. coast guard and a Japanese fisheries patrol officer huddled Monday in the Bering Sea over the seizure of nearly 3,000 crab pots believed to have been abandoned by Japanese boats.

A coast guard spokesman said the pots, confiscated in United States' waters near the Pribiloff Islands, yielded 50,000 tanner crabs that were released into the ocean.

A Japanese fisheries agency patrol vessel, Konan Maru 20, inspected the pots before they were to be transported to the Kodiak coast guard station later this week.

Coast guard and nationl marine fisheries service officials said the seizure incident began June 27 when the cutter Winona picked up radar signals of two vessels in apparent violation of the U.S. 12-mile fisheries zone.

After sighting the crab lines, the Winona pursued and boarded a Japanese vessel identified as the Koyo Maru 31, a spokesman said. The boat's master denied the pots were his and the Winona returned to Otter Island for a six-day stakeout.

The coast guard said it declared the pots abandoned July 3 and, with help from the cutter Midgett and a fisheries service vessel, the pots were confiscated. No foreign vessels returned to the area during the watch, the coast guard said.

Pacific Games: Test Run for World Meet?

The first Pacific International Games have passed into history. So have the second Pacific Conference Games. One is an integral part of the other, the main event being held at Toronto, the satellite meet here.

If it was an artistic success — the finest collection of track and field talent ever to show here — Victoria didn't follow through as a fan centre of the sport. The city and district blew it, only 900 paid on Saturday and 1,400 on Sunday. It deserved better.

Regardless, the meet, now encasing five nations — New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Canada and the United States, will grow in stature. Mexico is scheduled to join the club. So is China, in time.

It's big enough too that already it is being considered as a test pattern for a world-type championship, the biggest outside the realm of the Olympics. Soccer, swimming, baseball have world championships: Why not track and field?

It was enjoyable as well because of a lack of expressed nationalism. Sure, teams had their followers, countries their favorites, and it would have been nice to see Sanada win a few more medals. As it was the Canadians did very well indeed.

But there were no anthems and little fluff. That made it friendly and competitive, the idea of all sport in the beginning.

Had, Run Faster, and Lost!

There were the luminaries: Glenda Reiser, just a delightfully naive young girl from Ottawa, was the heroine of the piece. "What's another record?" she asked. It was understandable. She had run faster comparative times at the Olympics in the 1,500 metres, only to lose, and she said she thought she could do even better with competition. Completely non-plussed by the excitement she had generated, she had lost in Toronto, twice, and once to an even young competitor in the 800 metres.

Yes, she had. Fourteen-year-old Mary Decker, a Grade 10 student from California, had beaten her in a shocker. And if Glenda said she didn't realize what the mile record was, it's probably true. Everything is metric in track. It was just for old-times sake that meet director Ron Bowker had thrown in the mile event. He thought a sub, four-minute mile by the men would be nice to have. Sure, he got it, but he got something else, that new women's record, 4.34.9: And that may take some beating.

An interesting coicidence in the men's mile is that when John Walker of New Zealand won that first mile event in 3:58.8, he matched the time for first man to break four minutes in B.C. Roger Bannister at Vancouver in 1954. Nineteen years later, it had happened again, only soon to be broken by Rod Dixon of New Zealand and Australia's Peter Watson in 3:57.9 and 3:58.0. Of such events track history is made, and changed, in mere moments.

In Good Company, No Sweat

But the four-minute mile actually is old hat on the track front. Dixon, 22, says he runs the equivalentof the four-minute mile every second out in good competition in the 1,500. Walker, who had never run the mile better than 4:06 before, admitted he was annoyed at being put in the slow hat of the mile and was determined to show up his coach. Which he did.

Oddly enough, a good example of the depth of the New Zealand distance team may be gleaned from the fact when New Zealand recently broke the 4 x one-mile relay record, neither Dixon nor Walker were on the team. Dick Quax and Tony Polhill, who competed here, were part of that unit.

There was a suggestion by some of the visitors that perhaps Canada didn't see their track and field prowess at its best, because this is the off-season down under and there hadn't been any opportunity for tune-up competition.

Perhaps so, but the New Zealanders and Australians shouldn't worry too much. Because when the Commonwealth Games are held at Christchurch in New Zealand in late January, 1974, they'll have all the edge.

Back here, we may be locked in ice. Well, maybe wet with rain.

It was a good show, and if the main idea is that nations which are divided by a vast expanse of ocean can get together on such friendly terms like this is athletic endeavour, then the world isn't such a bad place after all.

Nor the young athletes in it.

Mary 'Loved That Course'

DALE SHAW
. . . two-stroke penalty.

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Mary Budke is a pert young thing, happy-go-lucky, her nose is sunburned and peeling, and "how I loved this course today."

Miss Budke is also the leader of the qualifying round after 18 holes in the annual Pacific Northwest Golf women's championships at Victoria Club.

Monday, Miss Budke, 19, fired what is believed to be a competitive course record of 71 over the par-73 course.

Of course, she comes by her talent honestly enough. For she is also the current U.S. Amateur champion, a title she won last year in St. Louis, defeating a Cindy Hill in the final, 5 and 4. The previous year she had been beaten in the second round of match play. She will be defending her championship at Montclair, N.J., later this month.

Miss Budke is also the current Oregon State ladies' champion, a title she won this year for the third time, and before that she had taken the PNGA junior crown and the Oregon junior championships twice. She was also a member of the U.S. World Cup team.

The only problem she encountered Monday was on the par five third where she got into trouble, also a trap, and took a bogey six. Out in 35, she birdied 14, 15 and 18 coming in for a 36.

With such a fine competitive record behind her, it would seem almost obvious a pro career might be in the offing. Not so, said Miss Budke, "I'm taking pre-med at Oregon State, and I would like to be a doctor."

Miss Budke said she used to think her irons were the best part of her game, but now she believes it is her straightness. She also said she would rather play Oak Bay in the mornings. "That wind could be tough," she said out of due respect.

Previous best round for a lady at Victoria Golf Club was accomplished by Margaret Todd "about 20 years ago. I started with a seven and a four and had a 70," Margaret recalled. "But it didn't count."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Todd was otherwise busy on the course with a pair of controversies. One concerned City champion Dale Shaw, who had taken a two-stroke penalty at the sixth, for what was described as an incorrect drop. The second concerned a member of Miss Shaw's foursome, PNGA junior champion, Robin Walton, on the 13th. She also took a two-stroke penalty.

The extra strokes gave Miss Shaw a 77. "You learn something every day," she said philosophically afterwards. "But I was playing well enough, except for missing a couple of putts, about three feet, and I should do better tomorrow." Miss Walton had an 89 and may be hard pressed to make the qualifying round for match play.

Marilyn Palmer, former B.C. champion, had her share of trouble too, nearly all of it on the seventh hole. Miss Palmer elected to play off the beach and took a triple bogey six on her way to a 77. Miss Shaw and Miss Palmer were later observed "smoothing things out" at Douglas Golflands.

Connie Guthrie of Spokane, Mary Smith of Kent, Wash., and Mrs. Jerry Plank of Hillsboro had 78s and a former two-time champ Judy Hoetmer of Seattle a 79. Nobody else broke 80.

Final 18 holes of qualifying play is scheduled today. Match play begins Wednesday.

Eagle Stakes Wood to Early Lead

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

A long "putt" for an eagle introduced John Wood to his scorekeeper while Casey Anderson and Lawrie Kerr would have felt better if they hadn't met trouble on the 18th.

That was the story at Uplands on Monday as golf's "old guard" took away the play from the young hopes in the opening qualifying round at the 71st Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournament.

Wood, a competitor in the PNGA's seniors tournament at Seattle two weeks ago, assumed the first-round lead casually.

Uplands' Ken Nott, playing in the same threesome and keeping Wood's tally, didn't consider leadership possibilities until the Seattle veteran recorded an eagle three on the par-five 15th.

That put Wood one under par. He parred 16, took a bogey four on 17 and parred the 18th to finish 36-34—70, and grab a one-stroke lead over Anderson and Kerr.

Kerr, seven-time City Amateur titleholder from Colwood, and Anderson, a two-handicapper from Bellevue, Wash., might have tied or moved ahead of the leader but for their experiences on the 18th.

Kerr, whose front-nine card showed eight fours and a deuce, stood even with par starting 18. Lawrie pushed his approach shot behind a tree and had to settle for a bogey five and his 71.

Anderson's grief on 18 was greater. Playing the back nine first, he hit a shot out of bounds to take a double-bogey six. He was two under par after the first eight holes.

Six golfers were deadlocked at 72, including Colwood's Roger Ross, while Mike Gray of Uplands and Steve Johnsen of Seattle both carded 73s to share the next spot.

Gray, who also took a bogey five on the 18th, was disappointed with his three-over-par performance after serving up a sparkling three-under 67 in Sunday's team championship.

"I didn't putt very well on Sunday, but the greens were a bit faster today and I seemed terrified on some of the short putts," he said. "I just can't explain it."

The team championship, incidentally, went to the Western Washington zone with a total of 292. British Columbia finished second with 296 and Oregon took third place with 301.

Play continued today with the low 32 scorers from the qualifying round advancing into match play that begins Wednesday.

Canadian Cagers Fifth

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba won the Havana basketball tournament Monday night, easily beating the Soviet Union 78-51, to remain unbeaten.

Canada finished in fifth place with the same number of points as Czechoslovakia, placed fourth because of a better goal average.

Third place went to the Soviet Union, who suffered two defeats.

Shamrocks Beware, Warriors Thumped

When Brantford Warriors visit Memorial Arena Wednesday night, they will want to forget about Monday and make a "fresh" start.

The Ontario Lacrosse Association leaders opened their four-game swing through B.C. on a disastrous note Monday night when they were crushed 25-8 by the Western Lacrosse Association leading Vancouver Burrards.

But don't underestimate the Warriors. They're a tough lot and Victoria Shamrocks certainly can't afford to take them lightly when they play here at 8 Wednesday.

Coach Morley Kells has had to do a little rebuilding after Coquitlam Adanacs lured away his all-star Gaylord Powless and Burrards attracted not only his star defenceman Bruce Todman but also rookies Bille Foote and Pat Differ — Kells' first two draft choices from the Ontario Junior League.

But, since losing to New Westminster Salmonbellies in four straight games in last year's national final for the Mann Cup, the Warriors have won 14 of their 15 games in the East and are runaway leaders of the Ontario league.

And, warns Kells, their target is the Mann Cup!

A crowd of 4,726 watched in Vancouver Monday night as the Burrards refused to give the Eastern visitors a chance to settle down and scored the first eight goals.

After playing the Shamrocks, Brantford meets New Westminster Thursday and ends its Western tour with a game Saturday against Coquitlam.

For the Warriors, it was a bad start. But it would seem now that they can only get better. And they will be out to do just that Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

BELIVEAU REJECTS NORDIQUES' MILLION

MONTREAL (UPI) — Former Montreal Canadiens captian Jean Beliveau today turned down a reported million-dollar deal to join the Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association.

"I appreciate the generous offer," Beliveau said.

But he added, "I am happy in my association with the Canadien Hockey Club and the National Hockey League and I believe there is an excellent future for me with the Canadien organization," the 41-year-old Beliveau said.

Beliveau indicated he has been given assurance of "moving up" in the organization of the Canadiens, for whom he has been handling public relations since his retirement a year ago after a starry playing career.

Penalty Killing A Plus Factor

SURREY — Victoria McDonalds Monday night won their 16th game in 17 starts in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League.

They beat Surrey Salmonbellies 13-9 but they had to produce first-rate penalty killing to do it.

Surrey led 4-3 after dominating the first period but McDonalds were superb in a second-period comeback when they scored three short-handed goals, including one while they were two men short.

Victoria led 10-7 going into the final period but a strong start by the home team cut that to 10-9 and when Jim Lynch of McDonalds received a five-minute penalty, the visitors looked in trouble.

However, more fine penalty killing and slick goalkeeping by John Hamilton stopped the Salmonbellies from scoring and, when Lynch's stay in the penalty box was over, McDonalds hammered in three straight goals to ensure the victory.

With the victory, McDonalds took a 12-point lead and ensured themselves of at least a first-place tie as second-place Burnaby Cablevision has only six games left to play.

Two Named To B.C. Body

Two Victorians have been elected to the directorate of the B.C. section of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association.

Jim Ranson was picked as second vice-president and Dr. Rien Raap was named as a member-at-large at the annual meeting, held in conjunction with the provincial age-class championships in New Westminster at the holiday weekend.

Other executives elected were Ted Schootman of New Westminster (president), Don Filippelli of Coquitlam (first vice-president), Hilda Cazalet of Vancouver (secretary) and Bill Atkinson of West Vancouver (treasurer).

Raceway Claims Revenues Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Yonkers Racing Corp. has sued in Manhattan Supreme Court to compel the New York Off-Track Betting Corp. to pay it at least $10 million annually, starting in 1971, "as just compensation" for the track facilities made available to it.

The raceway maintained that it made substantial improvements at its track, that its expenses in 1971 and 1972 exceeded $2 million a year and that its revenues have been cut by OTB operations. OTB has 20 days in which to respond to the action.

Canadian Cricket Receives 'Honor'

TORONTO (CP) — Canada, for the first time, has been asked to name a senior cricket player for the world all-stars to play against Bermuda on Sept. 20. Donald King, special events co-ordinator for the Canadian Cricket Association, called it "a signal honor" for Canada, "world recognition that Canadians can compete in world class cricket at the highest level."

Island's Booters Go Independent

Vancouver Island will operate as a unit during the upcoming soccer season and no Victoria teams will be competing in a mainland setup.

Wilf Sadler, a member of the B.C. Soccer Commission, said today the provincial governing body "backed the Island setup 100 per cent" at a meeting Monday in Vancouver.

It had previously been announced that two teams — London Boxing Club (formerly Victoria West-United) and Victoria Gorge Molsons — would be playing in the B.C. Soccer League, which is a mainland-based loop.

Both clubs played in the now-defunct Pacific Coast League last season.

Sadler said the meeting reiterated a previous BCSC stand that the mainland and Island groups operate independently.

Boys' Club Topples Soccer Selects 4-2

A Victoria Boys' Club team, which leaves July 17 for a six-week, 12-game tour of Britain, Monday night defeated a star-studded Victoria All-Star side 4-2 in an exhibition soccer match.

Almost 300 fans at Royal Athletic Park watched the fast, slick-passing young Boys' Club team grab a 3-0 half-time lead and then hold off a second-half comeback bid by the more experienced All-Stars.

Canadian youth international John McGuire and Bob Mackie, Helga Fylling and Gary McLaren got the Boys' Club goals.

Jan Bentley and Trini Douglas, a former Trinidad international, scored for the All-Stars, which also included Bob Bolitho, George Hyne and Dan Lomas, who will all play for B.C. in the Canada Summer Games.

Games Committee Bars Vicki Berner

Times News Services

Vancouver tennis player Vickie Berner was barred from playing in the Maccabiah Games when competition in the Jewish international sports meet began today in Tel Aviv.

Miss Berner, 28, a winner in the 1965 Maccabiah Games, was barred by the tennis appeals committee on grounds that she is a professional.

The decision came after an objection was lodged by the United States team which complained that she had been a member of a U.S.-based women's professional tennis tour during the last year.

Miss Berner had been seeded second in the Games behind Ilana Kloss of South Africa.

The first gold medals in the Games went to Britain and Israel in the shooting events. Don Bester of Britain won the 60-shot prone position small bore event, scoring 592 out of a possible 600.

Israel took the team gold medal in the small bore event with 2,332 points, followed by the United States with 2,303 and Britain with 2,289.

In other opening competition, Canada defeated Italy and Greece, both by scores of 5-0, in men's table tennis.

King and His Bat Strike Again

By The Canadian Press

Hal King is hard to please, a picky pinch-hitter who won't swing at just any old pitch, and Monday night he decided to be choosier than usual.

His wait at the plate paid off. He finally found one he liked and belted a grand-slam homer to highlight a seven-run uprising that lifted Cincinnati Reds to an 11-6 victory over Montreal Expos in a game featuring a National League record 25 walks.

It was the Reds' fifth consecutive victory and ninth in 10 outings.

In the only other league games, Atlanta Braves topped Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 in 10 innings and New York Mets edged Houston Astros 2-1 in 12 innings.

King started the Reds on their hot streak July 1 with a three-run pinch-homer in the ninth inning against Los Angeles that lifted Cincinnati to a 4-3 victory.

He has three hits in 14 times at bat this season, all of them homers.

The veteran catcher, formerly with the Pirates, Astros and Rangers and recalled by the Reds from the minors this season to provide bench strength, clobbered "a letter-high fastball" from Pat Jarvis over the right field wall as the Reds broke open a 4-4 ball game.

The 10 pitchers used by the two teams surrendered 25 walks, one over the league record. The major league record is 30, set in 1916 by Detroit and Philadelphia of the American League.

Clay Carroll of the Reds, who picked up his sixth save of the season and was one of the few pitchers to perform well, delivered the 25th walk in the ninth inning to Ron Fairly.

"I think that's pretty funny," Carroll said. "I walk only two guys in four innings, and I'm the one in the record book."

Joe Morgan had a two-run homer and Johnny Bench a solo blast for the Reds.

In the American League of all the Angels in the park at Baltimore, the Orioles had reason to believe that right fielder Richie Scheinblum of California had the biggest halo. For the following reasons:

He drew a walk in the second inning, and was picked off base; he dropped a fly ball in the fourth; he dropped another in the fifth which let in two Baltimore runs and tied the score; and in the eighth inning with the tying run on base, Scheinblum blew that by grounding out to first.

As a result the Orioles edged California, 5-3.

In other games New York Yankees saw their American League East lead cut to one game as Wilbur Wood spun a six-hitter for a 4-3 Chicago White Sox victory. Boston Red Sox blanked Minnesota Twins 2-0, Kansas City whipped Milwaukee Brewers 13-6 and Texas Rangers shaded Detroit Tigers 9-7 on Jim Mason's 12th inning home run.

DUANE THOMAS

Terms Suit Thomas

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas has reached agreement on a contract with San Diego Chargers, a spokesman for the National Football League team said Monday night.

Ron Mix, the Chargers' executive counsel, said he reached an accord with Abner Haynes, Thomas' agent.

Mix said Thomas hasn't signed the new contract yet, but is scheduled to report to the Chargers' training camp in Irvine, Calif., with the rest of the veterans July 15. Mix declined to state contract terms.

The enigmatic Thomas, 25, a former West Texas State star, led Dallas Cowboys into the Super Bowl in his first two seasons, 1970 and 1971.

But after a series of clashes with Dallas Coach Tom Landry he was traded to the Chargers last year for running back Mike Montgomery and wide receiver Billy Parks.

However, Thomas, who was dissatisfied with his Dallas contract, didn't sign with the Chargers in 1972. He reported to few practices and was only activated for one game. He didn't play in that game, left before it ended and was placed on reserve for the rest of the season.

Bluebirds Trip Hunters

Neil Drummond, Joe Morello, Sid Glover, Ellis Aiyashita and Mike Iannacone each scored twice to pace Bluebirds.

Bobbles Help Oaks to Coast

Royal Oak Sporting Goods turned four of the six errors committed by Sooke Merchants into a seven-run second inning Monday night and coasted to an 8-2 Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League triumph at Heywood Avenue Park.

The only other Royal Oak run, in the first inning, was also scored on an error.

Reg Underwood led Royal Oak batting with two hits in three trips to score once and drive in one run.

Victory moved Royal Oak to within one game of third-place Bell's Men's Wear.

Four More Players Signed by Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four more players have signed National Hockey League contracts with the Vancouver Canucks. The quartet includes leftwinger Don Tannahill, a 22-goal performer in his rookie season last year.

General manager Hal Laycoe concluded negotiations with Tannahill's lawyer, Alan Eagleson, and at the same time announced the signing of goaltender Bruce Bullock and amateurs Paul Sheard and Paul O'Neil.

Sheard, a rightwinger who stands five-feet-10 and weighs 186 pounds, scored 60 goals and 46 assists for Ottawa of the Ontario Hockey Association last season. O'Neil, a five-foot-11, 180-pound centre, is a graduate of Boston University. In 28 games last season, he scored 35 goals and 19 assists.

Bullock split his rookie pro season between Vancouver and the Western League Seattle Totems.

Spaven's Seven Powers Rowers

DUNCAN — Brian Spaven hammered in seven goals and Owen Richman scored five times Monday night as Victoria London Boxing Club trounced Duncan Cowboys 19-3 in a Vancouver Island Senior "C" Lacrosse League game.

Tennis Play Back to Form

Rick McCoid's days of giant-killing were ended quickly Monday night.

The unranked McCoid eliminated sixth-seeded Peter Bousfield from the men's singles in the Victoria City Open tennis championships on the weekend when he grabbed the first set 6-4 and Bousfield hurt a leg and retired.

But McCoid found himself up against second-seeded Ted Davies Monday and the Oak Bay Tennis Club champion powered his way to a 6-0, 6-1 win.

Following a weekend of upsets, things went pretty much to form Monday but fourth-seeded mixed doubles pair Tony Simnett and Wendy Barlow had to fight hard to stave off defeat. They won 7-6, 6-3, but not before Joe Lachmund and Heather Graham had extended them with some tough rallies.

Toughest game of the night, though, came in the women's doubles when the mother-and-daughter combination of Felicity and Heather Graham outsteadied Val Scott and Kathy Metcalfe in a battle that lasted nearly three hours. Miss Scott and Mrs. Metcalfe led 5-2 in the third set but the Grahams came back for a 5-7, 7-6, 7-5 victory.

The tournament continues all week and ends with finals Saturday.

Esquimalt teams picked up two of three titles at stake in girls' softball tournaments on the weekend.

In the Colwood and District Juvenile "A" tournament at Bullen Park, Esquimalt Blake's Plumbing beat View Royal 9-1 in the final and in the Juvenile "B" final, Esquimalt Wakeman-Trimble downed Sidney 5-2. Blakes go on to the Island final next week at Port Alberni.

Esquimalt suffered a setback in the bantam girls' Vancouver Island playoffs when Nanaimo Comets won 7-0 to qualify for the B.C. championships on the Mainland next week.

Meanwhile in Chilliwack, Richmond edged Victoria 4-3 in the final Sunday to win the B.C. midget girls' championship. Richmond went through the two-day double loss elimination tournament with only one defeat — an 8-5 decision earlier to Victoria.

Lions Go Without Easley

VANCOUVER (CP) — Veteran defence back Dave Easley of the British Columbia Lions football club was taken to hospital Monday for an emergency appendectomy.

The Canadian Football League team meets Grey Cup-champion Hamilton Tiger Cats here at Empire Stadium tonight.

Head-coach Eagle Keys placed two rookies in the starting line-up for the pre-season game — flanker Ross Clarkson of Simon Fraser University, and offence-guard Travis Roach, University of Texas.

Roach, 260 pounds, was the sixth-round draft choice of the National Football League New York Jets but chose to play for the Lions.

Split end Jim Young, with a rib cartilege injury, probably will be used sparingly, said Keyes.

Veteran Don Moorhead will start at quarterback and sophomore Canadian Eric Guthrie will be used as an alternate with rookie Karl Douglas.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be out to convince the hometown fans they still pack some offensive punch when they meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in another exhibition game tonight.

Tonight's game will be broadcast on radio stations CJVI (900) and CKWX (1130) starting at 8 p.m.

The Bombers, minus four starters from last year's most explosive offensive unit in the league, will be out to prove to the skeptics they still have the power to win the Western Conference title for the second year in succession.

Missing from the line-up will be guard Bob Lueck, who retired at the end of last season, all-star running back Mack Herron and flanker Jim Thorpe, who were dropped from the squad prior to training camp after drug charges were laid against them, and all-Canadian receiver Bob Larose, who suffered a broken wrist last week in Ottawa.

Despite changes in personnel, quarterback Don Jonas is full of confidence following "a real good training camp" that turned up a few good surprises.

He said rookie wide receivers Charlie Collins and Richard Trapp have done a "heck of a job" and praised the potential of rookie running backs John Bledsoe, Don Johnson, Gary Dixon and Allan Thompson, gained in a trade with Ottawa last week.

Spain Bans Boycott Trio

MADRID (Reuter) — Three of Spain's top Davis Cup players — Manuel Orantes, Andres Gimeno and Antonio Munoz — have been banned from playing on the Cup team for a month as a result of their support of the Wimbledon tennis boycott.

The ban means the three will miss Spain's European semi-final against Italy in Davis Cup playoff later this month.

Holmes Blanks Gorge Squad

Despite committing all four errors in the game, Al's Home Service managed to turn an early rally into a 1-0 shutout over Gorge Hotel in a Victoria Senior Baseball League game Monday night at Lambrick Park.

Blair Kubicek, Tom Craig and Bob Martin hit consecutive two-out singles to score the first-inning run for Al's.

Martin led batting with two hits in three trips to the plate.

Tom Holmes, who didn't allow a runner past second until there was two out in the seventh inning, hurled a three-hitter for the victory. He struck out nine batters and allowed only one base on balls.

Welch Hurls Little League No-Hitter

No-hit shutout pitching by Dennis Welch helped Burnside Esso record a 7-0 victory over H. A. Ormiston on Monday to gain a berth in tonight's Hampton Little League playoff final at Hampton Park.

Welch struck out 13 batters, yielded three bases on balls, and allowed only three runners in the six-inning contest.

In the other semi-final, Westview Auto Clinic downed Evening Optimists, 9-7.

Burnside and Westview meet at 6:30.

New Zealanders Lose to England

LEEDS, England (AP) — England defeated New Zealand by an innings and one run in the third cricket test match today.

The New Zealanders, 138 for nine overnight, added only four runs before Glenn Turner was leg before wicket to John Snow and the match was over.

Turner, opening batsman, made 81 in a valiant effort to hold his team together in the face of defeat. But he missed setting a world record by becoming the first batsman to carry his bat through a completed innings three times in test matches.

Fast bowler Geoff Arnold, who broke the back of the New Zealand batting Monday, finished with five wickets for 27.

Snow's figures were three for 34.

The three-match test series ended with two victories for England and one draw.

'MEAL WAS FINE, NOW CALL THE COPS'

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — Charles Bernard, 48, a lover of fine food, sat down in Grenoble's best restaurant, the Suisse et Bordeaux.

He ordered a crab salad, baked shrimp with a cheese sauce, lamb chops, a Burgundy wine (Nuits-Saint-Georges 1971), chocolate mousse, coffee, cognac and a package of Gitane cigarettes.

He also bought a bottle of champagne for some nice Swiss tourists at the next table.

When the waiter brought the check for 149.50 francs ($38), Bernard said, "I have no money. Call the police."

Bernard went to jail Monday for the 40th time for eating gourmet meals and not paying for them, police said today.

Blind Sober Driver

CURRARA, Italy — Carlo Bergamini drove blindfolded through city streets here Monday for 43 minutes and claimed a world record for the stunt.

Guided by four passengers in the car, Bergamini covered a distance of 4.4 miles. Extra police were stationed throughout the city to prevent accidents.

The 38-year-old switchboard operator said his 43 minutes broke the record set by a Frenchman who drove blindfolded for 30 minutes in Madrid in 1938.

REILLY
. . . apologizes

OTTAWA — Peter Reilly (PC—Ottawa West) apologized Monday for a Commons incident last month in which he interrupted former prime minister John Diefenbaker and promised to boo him every time he spoke in the House.

"My reasons for these actions are not material here," the 40-year-old former broadcaster said in making his first Commons appearance since the incident.

Diefenbaker was not in his seat to hear the apology but Reilly was applauded by members on all sides of the House.

ATLANTA — The black middle class has abandoned the civil rights movement, according to Dr. Ralph Abernathy, and "it is hard to ask for money from white people because you can't beg a man and fight him at the same time."

Thus Abernathy, who took over the presidency of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) when Martin Luther King was slain, announced Monday he was resigning.

He made it clear that he felt SCLC was on its deathbed, its staff cut back by more than 50 per cent from King's heyday in the 1960s, and its finances $50,000 in red.

MINNEAPOLIS — Age and the pace which has kept evangelist Billy Graham preaching the gospel since 1947 may finally be taking their toll.

Graham told a news conference Monday that the upcoming 10-day upper midwest crusade which begins Friday at the Minnesota State Fairgrounds in St. Paul "may be one of the latter stadium crusades."

The evangelist, who has drawn millions to his crusades for 25 years, is now 55. He said that the flamboyant style that has been his trademark takes too much out of him.

NEW YORK — Victor Riesel, the labor columnist who was blinded by a hoodlum's acid, said Monday he has undergone surgery and has a chance to see again.

He rated his chances as about five per cent for 20-20 vision.

The attack was attributed to an outspoken campaign by Riesel against labor racketeers. Three men were later sentenced for roles in the assault.

The acid was hurled into Riesel's eyes after a radio broadcast he made attacking corruption in the labor union movement. A month after the attack he had lost the sight of both eyes, though he returned to writing his syndicated column.

MOSCOW — Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev will visit Cuba in December or January at the invitation of Premier Fidel Castro, the news agency Tass said today.

NEW YORK — Duke Ellington, 74, has become the first jazz musician to receive the French Legion of Honor.

Jacques Kosciusko-Morizet, French ambassador to the United States, made the presentation Sunday. He said French President Georges Pompidou wanted "to honor a great musician, a great American and a great friend of our country."

B.C. Corp. Six Weeks Away

The B.C. Development Corporation, the vehicle through which the provincial government hopes to encourage secondary industry in the province, will not become a reality for at least another six weeks, Trade Minister Gary Lauk said Monday.

Lauk told reporters he has asked a task force to come up with two or three models of the form the development corporation should take. A decision will have to be made in time on which model or combination of models to use to set up the government agency, he said.

"I've been trying to get it together for the last several weeks," Lauk said. "It will be another six weeks, anyway."

The development corporation was established through legislation passed at the last session. It is intended to provide low-interest loans to B.C. businessmen to encourage secondary industry in the province.

Directors will be named when the final form of the corporation is decided, Lauk said.

New RCMP Head For Duncan

DUNCAN — Sgt. W. D. Gilchrist, 41, took charge of the Duncan RCMP detachment Monday, succeeding S-Sgt. Herbert Knopf who has been appointed head of the Vancouver International Airport RCMP detachment.

Gilchrist has served the Victoria and Nanaimo detachments. He is married with three children.

Vesco Aided Pindling

The Manchester Guardian

NASSAU, The Bahamas — Lynden Pindling, the prime minister of the Bahamas, has declined to reveal precisely how much money controversial U.S. financier Robert Vesco had contributed to his last election campaign.

Pindling admitted that the financier — who is wanted in the U.S. on charges of making illegal contributions to the Nixon re-election campaign — had given him "a good sum" but he added that he would not reveal the sum because "we don't have the sort of laws here" that require publication of contribution details.

Pindling, the leader of the country's Progressive Liberal party and prime minister of the Bahamas for the past five years, was pressed repeatedly for information on his link with Vesco, who is currently under indictment in New York along with former U.S. Attorney-General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans.

Pindling admitted that he knew Vesco personally and that he had accepted funds from him, particularly during the 1972 election. But he told reporters that, unlike countries where political payoffs are frequently made for personal gain, "we don't play things that way here."

Vesco, who is listed as an "adviser" to the Bahamas Commonwealth Bank in Nassau, is regarded as a "visitor" when he is in the Bahamas. It is understood that he has been here during the present independence week celebrations, though Pindling said he had not seen him at any of the official functions.

The prime minister told reporters that Vesco was one of the five largest foreign investors in the Bahamian economy, but he denied that this in any way changed his status as an ordinary visitor.

Youths Survive Falls Plunge

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Five young Calgarians escaped with minor injuries Sunday after plummeting over the 50-foot bow falls in a rubber raft.

Reid Brown, 20, Patrick Sterling, 26, Larry Dow, 19, Jane Sterling, 18, and Doris Cannady, 18, were released from Banff hospital after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

RCMP report the five began their journey down the swift-flowing Bow River in the Banff townsite and about one mile downstream began paddling to shore, but they lost control. They apparently clung to the raft as it went over the falls and were able to swim to shore on the downstream side. All were wearing life jackets.

Chief Banff Park Warden, A. S. Anderson, said Monday the falls are listed in a Calgary Canoe Club survey as an impossible route for any craft. Boaters are advised not to venture onto the river below the townsite.

350,000 WATCH CALGARY PARADE

CALGARY (CP) — This year's edition of the Calgary Stampede parade was the biggest even with more than 350,000 people watching Monday as 6½ miles of bands, floats, mounted Indians and cowboys and wheeled antiques of bygone days rolled along the 2½-mile route.

A warm, sunny day greeted the record 195 entrants in the gala event, including more than 200 RCMP horseback riders and bandsmen.

The downtown area was jammed with spectators and anyone not leaving home for the parade route before 7 a.m. spent more than an hour in bumper-to-bumper traffic inching their way to a parking spot often a mile from the site.

Winner of the Jack Grogan Trophy for best professional float was a beautiful lilac-covered entry sponsored by the Spokane Lilac Festival Association of Washington. The flower-bedecked float featuring the lilac queen also won the best all-round float trophy.

Lower Alcohol Beer Move Backed

EDMONTON (CP) — A proposal to lower the alcohol content of beer in Alberta has received support from Peter Elliott, chairman of the province's Liquor Control Board.

Elliott said any action to reduce the alcohol content of beer "is a good action."

He was commenting Sunday on a recommendation made Friday in the report of a legislative committee on the province's liquor laws that the alcohol content be reduced to four from five per cent.

Manitoba Dentists Hike Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Dental Association has announced a ten-per-cent increase in fees in a new schedule just distributed to the province's dentists.

Dr. S. M. Claman, president of the association, said dentists are not obliged to adopt the fee increases, but one official said 80 per cent of the dentists follow the association's schedule.

Dr. Claman said the increase was necessary because of the rising costs of dental services.

The fees were suggested for 230 general practitioners.

Environment Probes Urgent Need

WINNIPEG (CP)—More thorough investigation into the protection of the environment must soon be undertaken, Grant McLeod, Manitoba's deputy director of the environmental protection branch, said Monday.

Speaking at the national conference of the Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors, McLeod said there has been hundreds of years of research in such areas as agriculture and other fields involving the benefits man reaps from nature. However, there have been few studies that government or other bodies can refer to when it comes to environmental protection.

New Natural Gas Rates in Sask.

SASKATOON (CP) — A new schedule for natural gas rates in Saskatchewan will go into effect in September, Kim Thorson, minister in charge of the Saskatchewan Power Corporation, announced Monday.

The corporation's rate structure has been revised to accommodate 12 categories of consumers instead of the present 50 — a consolidation which Thorson said would make the rates more equitable.

He added that only about two per cent of the natural gas customers in Saskatchewan will experience a rate increase while a few will see their rates decline.

Strike Ends After Eight Months

SASKATOON (CP) — The Domtar Construction Materials plant resumed operation early Monday as workers returned with a new contract after an eight-month strike.

Bill Halliwell, manager of the plant which manufactures fibreboard for roof construction, said the first shift returned to work at 8 a.m.

He said some work started Saturday after the workers, members of Local 1—184 of the International Woodworkers of America, ratified a three-year contract which gave them a 92-cent wage increase. That work involved firing up the steam plant that prepares chemicals for use in the manufacturing process.

Sharp Says Canada Generous to Africa

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has responded more quickly and generously than any other counties in dealing with hunger in west-central Africa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

Replying to Commons questions from Walter Baker (PC — Grenville-Carleton) about "the terrible starvation" in Africa, Sharp said Canada has appropriated a "good deal" of money for food relief.

In Brussels, the European Common Market asked the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for assistance in distributing emergency food supplies already stockpiled in drought-stricken areas.

The food stocks were flown in earlier by member nations of the Common Market, the spokesman said, but distribution inland from the stockpiling centres along the western coast has been difficult.

He said Jean-Francois Ortoli, the esecutive commission chairman, asked for NATO assistance in a letter to the military alliance's secretary-general, Joseph Luns.

Members of the European Economic Community have provided 20 cargo planes to move the emergency food supplies to central areas in the drought-stricken area, he said. But the planes have difficulty reaching small inland centres.

The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said last week that there is enough food stockpiled in the West Africa area now to satisfy needs for approximately seven months and bridge the gap until new harvests.

INVESTMENT DISPOSAL NOT TIED TO TAX LAW

In the first of two articles on the changing pattern of real estate ownership in Victoria, carried in the Times of Saturday June 30, the point was made that federal legislation in 1971 had made apartments less attractive as an investment vehicle for many persons because of changes in tax write-off concessions.

The article noted that following passage of this legislation certain persons disposed of their investments in apartments but it should not have been inferred and the Times did not mean to imply, that these persons necessarily acted as a result of the tax change.

Dr. Robert Stark, one of those mentioned, has stated to the Times that he disposed of his investment in an apartment building for reasons unconnected with any legislative change and the Times offers its apologies to Dr. Stark if he has suffered any embarrassment through any readers believing otherwise.

It should be stated further that all the transactions in real estate and details of ownership listed in the two articles were given simply to illustrate how and by whom land is held in Victoria, all of which is a matter of public record.

The Times does not believe and did not imply that purchase of real estate for whatever reason — investment income, a hedge against inflation, capital gain, etc.— is anything but a legitimate venture.

Similarly, the disposal of investments in real estate at a time of the investor's own choosing and for his own reason or advantage is a legitimate business operation and the Times' articles did not state or imply otherwise.

Schools to Face Policy 'Crunch'

Every school in Greater Victoria will be asked soon to define its educational philosophies and practices.

The move, seen as an attempt to provide more independence and alternatives within the school district, was discussed by a committee of Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

Committee members were generally in favor of the motion but final decision will be made by the board next week.

Trustee Phillip Ney introduced the motion which read: "that in School District 61, each school with its students and their parents, formulate and promulgate philosophies and practices regarding educational priorities, behavioral expectations, parental involvement, etc., applying in that school."

Since students can now cross school boundaries to attend any school in the district, a prospectus on school philosophy would give both students and parents a chance to choose the school most suited to their needs or desires.

"The time has come to call for a crunch," Trustee Walter Donald said, "and make each school say what it stands for."

School superintendent A. J. Longmore said school alumnae and other members of the public might be interested in drafting school philosophies and Trustee William Ross asked that the whole clause referring to parents and students be dropped in order that each school could decide on how to draft its own statement.

Accountability is an important factor, Ross said, and the school itself rather than a nebulous group should remain responsible for upholding school philosophy.

"If all those people work on it you'll get a compromise rather than a firm statement," Longmore said, adding that schools should consult thoroughly with these interested groups but then decide as a staff what the philosophy will be.

"I meet a lot of parents who don't want to be involved in 'messing around' with the schools," board chairman Peter Bunn said.

"There are people who would like to have schools run by principals and teachers — and don't lose sight of them," Bunn said.

The board will decide later whether "each" school will be required to formulate a statement and whether the words "with its students and parents" will be dropped from the motion to allow schools to decide on their own method of drawing up their statements.

SCHOOLS CHRISTENED SUNDANCE, SENTINEL

Victoria's 'L' and 'M' schools are no more:

Parents and staff, now selected for the two alternative schools scheduled to open in September, have chosen "real" names for their schools.

The less-structured school in the old Blanshard Annex will be called Sundance Elementary School and the more-structured school at Braefoot Annex will be called Sentinel Elementary School.

Greater Victoria school board must still give final approval to the new names.

Tenants Ask Suite Sale Moratorium

A Victoria tenant organization wants local government to suspend for a year all applications by apartment landlords to sell their apartments.

Under new laws introduced this spring, landlords must apply to municipal councils for permission before sending their tenants "buy or get out" notices.

Vancouver city council last week put a year's moratorium on such applications. In a resolution passed at a meeting, the Capital Region Tenants Association said it wants municipal councils to do the same here.

A meeting has been called for Wednesday at 7:30 at the Dominion Hotel, partly for membership recruitment, partly to reconstitute the organization after what president Vern Weaver calls "an attempt to scuttle us" by two members.

"We had some internal trouble," he said in an interview today, "caused by a mixture of personal and political hatreds. These things go deep." He did not elaborate.

Current membership (cost: $2) stands at about 200, he said.

According to Victoria city planning department, just under 50 per cent of city residents are tenants. More than 30 per cent of James Bay residents are tenants.

The city administration is studying the problem of how to deal with apartment sale application by landlords.

In Oak Bay recently Allan Cox, lawyer for an apartment owner seeking to sell his apartments, warned that if the application were not approved an alternative method of selling the apartments, through co-operative legislation, might be found.

Ald. Alf Hood of Victoria, who is handling housing problems, said today he would be "very hesitant" about an outright moratorium on apartment house conversions.

Council has briefed the planning department to look into the matter but no report has been forthcoming, he said.

"I do think each conversion should be considered on its own merits," he said.

Prison Art On Display

An art collection produced by Canadian prison inmates will be in Victoria for four days starting July 30.

It will be on display in the Hillside Mall for three days, and on Aug. 2 will be at William Head Institution.

Three young people from Ontario are using a $3,564 Opportunities for Youth grant to take the paintings on a national tour of public centres and prisons.

The project is called Prison Arts '73.

Saanich Board Fills Position

Saanich school board Monday appointed Ross Ingram to the position of district secretary-treasurer.

Ingram, who has been with the Saanich school district four years, is now assistant secretary-treasurer.

He will replace Gordon Blair who retires in September.

Veterans Voting On New Premises

Results of the poll — conducted by the Pro Patria Branch, Britannia Branch No. 7 and Trafalgar Branch Number 42 — should be known Sunday, Pro Patria president Ivan C. Smith said today.

The decision to go to the members, he said, was based on declining membership.

"It's been 25 years since the last war and members from the first war are getting older and those from the second — well, they're getting a little older too."

Although amalgamation would be economically feasible, he said some members might oppose the move — first suggested five years ago — because "each branch would lose it's identity."

"We'd have to form an entirely new legion," said Smith.

"It's hard to say what the results will be — it could go either way."

Open Heart Surgery Performed

Vancouver Island's first open-heart surgery was carried out on a 59-year-old city man this morning at Royal Jubilee Hospital's new open-heart surgery unit.

A vein was removed from the patient's thigh and grafted onto the surface of the heart so that blood could by-pass a clogged coronary artery.

The man was in satisfactory condition immediately after the operation, which was performed by a seven-member surgical team assisted by five surgical nurses, hospital medical director Dr. J. R. LeHuquet announced.

The recognized procedure in treatment of artery disease has been carried out in many centres, and can be performed at British Columbia's three other open heart surgery centres, he said.

Approximate cost of the operation is between $3,000 and $4,000, and one such operation per week is planned at the Royal Jubilee unit.

There were to have been two operations per week, but a shortage of nurses forced the reduction, Dr. LeHuquet said.

Committee Makes Choice

The decision on who shall get the operation is made by special committee of doctors from the family physician to the expert surgeon level.

The committee assesses the degree of urgency in individual cases.

Surgeons are able to operate on the heart through the use of a heart-lung machine, which performs the bodily functions on the blood while the heart is out of action.

There is no tissue rejection problem as in heart transfer operations because the patient's own vein is used, Dr. LeHuquet said.

Today's operation was the culmination of two years' planning on the unit, and it was carried out by the unit's director and chief surgeon Dr. R. T. Brownlee.

FIRE SET BY EMI PATIENT

A fire started by a patient in the Eric Martin Institute Monday evening caused an estimated $5,000 damage to the third floor of the building.

The patient set fire to the drapes which fell on a chair in the third floor lounge, a spokesman for the Victoria fire department said today.

More than 50 patients were evacuated to another part of the building as firemen fought the blaze. Damage was caused mostly by smoke in the lounge, dining room and "quiet room" area.

Firemen used smoke ejectors to ventilate the area and keep the smoke from billowing into other parts of the building.

There were no injuries.

CUPE Settles

A contract settlement providing wage increases between two and 12 per cent has been reached between Local 459 Canadian Union of Public Employees and Sooke school board.

Ask The Times

Q. I would like to find the whereabouts of William Shatner, who played Captain James Kirk on Star-Trek.

A. Inquiries should be sent to the General Artists' Corporation, 640 Fifth Ave., New York, 10022.

Q. Would you please tell me the birthdate and birthplace of Joan Collins, the actress?

A. London, England, in 1933.

Q. What is Jack Lemmon's address? — S. J.

A. 911 Gateway West, Century City, Los Angeles, Calif.

Q. Is it true that the Bible is the world's best selling book? Why is it not taxed like other books? G. E. H.

A. According to the Guiness Book of World Records the Bible is the world's best selling book. It is available in 1,280 languages and 1.5 million copies were printed between 1800 and 1950.

The Bible is not taxed because of a specific exemption under section 5 (q) of the B.C. Social Services Tax Act which also includes testaments, prayer books and hymn books.

Q. Can you please tell me if the entire province of British Columbia is on Pacific time? Do all towns observe daylight saving time? K.W.

A. A section of the East Kootenays near the U.S. and Alberta borders and the Peace River block of the Rockies extending along the Alberta border to the border of the Yukon Territory are on Mountain Time.

All towns in B.C. now observe daylight saving time. Until last year 12 towns in the areas observing Mountain time did not switch to daylight saving time the first Sunday in April like those in the rest of the province. Alberta adopted daylight saving for the first time last year and the towns involved now observe mountain daylight saving time.

DND to Shift Flying Squadron From Patricia Bay to Comox

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The Canadian armed forces' VU 33 squadron at Pat Bay airport was told today it will be moved to CFB Comox, probably in 1975.

Defence Minister James Richardson gave no official reason for the move, which will involve 66 service personnel and 61 civilian employees.

The civilians will be reallocated, providing they can qualify for jobs in other areas and agree to the move.

Earlier this year the department of the environment announced plans to install an ocean sciences institute at Pat Bay.

Richardson said today the department would be using some of the present buildings and facilities for the institute.

The Admiral Budge Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has spent close to $50,000 improving the facilities the corps uses in one of the Pat Bay hangars. Part of this money came from an Opportunities for Youth grant.

Richardson said the corps has been told it will be allowed to continue to use the building "for at least two years."

The sonar buoy tests establishment based at Pat Bay is also to be relocated.

The new location has not been decided but Richardson said it would be somewhere on Vancouver Island.

Armed forces' personnel have been providing fire-fighting services in the base's area. These services will now be taken over by the ministry of transport some time in 1974.

The VU 33 squadron flies T 33 jet trainers and Trackers, carrying out coastal patrols and assisting the fisheries department with surveillance flights.

Another role of the squadron has been to tow targets for CFB Esquimalt-based ships on exercises.

A squadron spokesman said today that he had been given no reason for the move.

"It could probably be for consolidation purpose," he said, "and, of course, we knew that the department of the environment hoped to locate at Pat Bay."

Strings Attached to Safety

Puppets will teach moppets safety rules during the first two weeks of July at playgrounds and parks in the Greater Victoria area.

The puppets, sponsored by the department of consumer and corporate affairs, concentrate on symbols used to identify poisonous, explosive, corrosive and inflammable products found in the home and also teach water and bicycle safety rules.

Performances at 10:30 a.m. will be held July 11 at Ambassador Park, July 12 at Glanford Park and July 13 at Marigold Park. Afternoon performances will be held at 1:30 July 11 at Meadow Park, July 12 at Playfair Park and July 13 at Royal Oak Elementary School.

Performances in Victoria and Esquimalt will be held July 16 at Topaz Park at 11:30 a.m., Blanshard Park at 1 p.m. and Oaklands Park at 2 p.m.; July 17 at Bamfield Park at 10:30 a.m., Bullen Park at 1 p.m.; July 18 at 10 a.m. at Pemberton Park, 1 p.m. at Hollywood Park and 2:15 p.m. at Stadacona Park; July 19 at 10 a.m. at Central Park, 1 p.m. at Beacon Hill Park and 2:15 at MacDonald Park.

Phased-In Tax Increases

The Downtown Business Advisory Committee Monday asked the Union of B.C. Municipalities to persuade the provincial government to ease the blow of higher taxes which will result next year from amendments to the Assessment Equalization Act passed by the legislature in the spring.

The businessmen acted after hearing city assessor-collector Alf Joyce say the amendment will drastically increase the taxable value of commercial property.

Commercial, industrial and vacant properties will be removed from the 10 per cent limitation on assessment increases, Joyce pointed out, and these properties will have to be assessed at not less than 50 per cent of the market value.

Ald. Percy Frampton, who made the motion to petition the UBCM, said the act could be changed so there will be a gradual increase over five years.

"That would be a bit better than one big jump in one year," he said.

Committee member Howard McKay said the increase will be "a very serious matter" to businesses.

City comptroller Mason Sheldrick told the meeting the higher assessments will bring an additional 14 mills worth of revenue to the city — nearly $2 million.

Freezer Lets You Be With Your Vacation Guests

Casseroles which can be prepared ahead of time and frozen for later use are a tremendous boon to the busy cook. This month the home economists, Agriculture Canada offer recipes for three tasty chicken casseroles suitable for freezing and reheating as well as some hints for successful preparation of main dishes for freezing.

It is best to use freshly cooked food, which is slightly undercooked to allow for the longer heating time necessary after thawing. Sauces thickened with ordinary wheat flour tend to separate but canned cream soups or sauces thickened with corn starch are satisfactory for freezing. Toppings such as bread crumbs or cheese should be omitted until it is time to reheat the food to serve.

To ensure optimum quality and safety, casseroles should be cooled rapidly in very cold water or a cold place before freezing.

Special attention should be given to packaging. Freeze casseroles in quantities suitable for one meal. If you line the baking dish with aluminum foil before adding the food, once the casserole is completely frozen it will be easy to unmold; then rewrap it in moisture-vapor proof paper and return to the freezer.

When ready to serve, it is not necessary to thaw frozen casseroles. Simply unwrap, place in greased baking dish, cover and bake 1½ to 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a six-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a three-serving quantity. Uncover and add the topping during the last 10 minutes of cooking.

Casseroles will retain their flavor and appearance for at least three months when kept at a temperature of zero degrees Fahrenheit. After this time, the quality of the food may decline but it will be still safe to eat if it has been kept frozen.

Broiler chickens are in ample supply these days so take advantage of these and a free afternoon or evening to prepare one or all of the freezer casseroles suggested by the home economists. "Chicken in Tomato Sauce", "Chicken Tetrazzini" or "Sweet and Sour Chicken" may be a meal-saver at a later date when your time is at a premium.

CHICKEN BROILERS make tasty casseroles which can be enjoyed the same day that they are prepared or frozen for later enjoyment. The home economists of Agriculture Canada recommend Chicken Tetrazzini, Sweet and Sour Chicken and Chicken in Tomato Sauce for freezing.

CHICKEN IN TOMATO

2 cups (½ pound) sliced mushrooms;

¼ cup fat;

1 cut-up chicken broiler (about 3 pounds);

1 clove garlic, crushed;

1 clove garlic, crushed;

1 7½-ounce can tomato sauce;

1 medium onion, cut in rings;

1½ teaspoon salt;

⅛ teaspoon pepper;

¼ teaspoon tarragon;

2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Saute mushrooms in 1 tablespoon fat. Remove mushrooms from pan. Add remaining fat and garlic and brown chicken for 15 minutes. Drain excess fat. Add next six ingredients. Cook uncovered until chicken is tender (about 45 minutes). Add mushrooms and parsley. 4 servings.

FREEZING: Cool, package and freeze cooked chicken. To serve reheat, covered, 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit. For a 4-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 2-serving quantity.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

½ cup chopped onion

1 clove garlic, crushed

1 cup (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms

2 tablespoons butter;

⅛ teaspoon pepper;

¼ teaspoon celery salt;

½ teaspoon salt;

⅛ teaspoon thyme;

1 10-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup;

⅓ cup light cream;

2 cups diced cooked chicken;

2 cups cooked spaghetti (4 ounces uncooked);

¼ cup diced pimiento;

½ cup grated medium cheddar cheese.

Saute onions, garlic and mushrooms in butter until onion is transparent. Remove from heat. Combine seasonings and mushroom soup and add to vegetables. Stir in remaining ingredients, except cheese. 6 servings.

FREEZING: Package and freeze unbaked. To serve, reheat covered about 1½ hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a 6 serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 3-serving quantity. Uncover, top with cheese and heat 5 minutes more.

SERVING NOW: Place in baking dish. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, uncover, top with cheese and heat 5 minutes more.

SWEET, SOUR CHICKEN

1 cut-up chicken broiler (about 3 pounds);

Dash salt, pepper and nutmeg;

2 tablespoons fat;

½ cup chopped onion;

1 14-ounce can pineapple tidbits;

¾ cup syrup from pineapple;

2 tablespoons corn starch;

¼ cup brown sugar;

½ teaspoon salt;

¼ cup vinegar;

¼ cup soy sauce;

2 cups chicken bouillon;

1 cup long grain rice, uncooked;

1 cup celery, sliced diagonally;

1 cup green pepper cut in chunks, green pepper rings.

Season chicken, brown in hot fat about 15 minutes. Remove chicken, drain all except 1 tablespoon fat from pan. Add onion and saute until transparent. Drain pineapple, save syrup. Combine syrup with next five ingredients, add to onion. Stir and cook until thick and clear. Place chicken in greased baking dish. Combine bouillon and rice; add celery, green pepper and pineapple, and add to onion mixture. Pour over chicken, cover and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until chicken is tender and rice is cooked (about 1 hour). Garnish with green pepper rings. 4 servings.

FREEZING: Omit green pepper rings. Cool package and freeze cooked casserole. To serve, reheat covered 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a 4-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 2-serving quantity.

Addition of Tuna Suits Greek Dish

By MARY MOORE

The Greeks make pilafs of all kinds. Since I am trying to copy some of the Europeans' meat-stretching techniques we borrowed a pilaf idea and introduced Canadian tuna to it.

Maureen clocked herself at thirty-five minutes while making this dish. She is a working gal and started this dish about five-twenty p.m. and served dinner sharp at six. Since the price of the 13-oz. can of chunk light tuna was 89c that adds up to an inexpensive and quick meal.

TUNA PILAF
(Serves 4)

1 c. raw long grain rice.

1 tsp. salt (first amount)

1 tbsp. butter

¼ c. chopped onion.

½ c. diced celery

1 green pepper, slivered.

¼ to ½ lb. fresh mushrooms washed, drained and sliced (OR one 4½-oz. can stems and pieces undrained).

3 tbsp. cooking oil.

Two 6½-oz. cans chunk light tuna drained (OR one 13-oz. can)

¼ c. pimiento, chopped.

⅛ to ¼ tsp. thyme.

2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

⅛ tsp. pepper.

To cook rice in large pot bring to boil the water, salt and butter. Add rice, stir, reduce heat to simmer, cover and cook 25 minutes.

Meanwhile in large frying pan gently saute onion, celery, green pepper and fresh mushrooms in the oil about 3 to 4 minutes. (NOTE: If canned mushrooms are used, add them later in the method). Add all remaining ingredients including cooked rice and canned mushrooms (if used), toss gently with fork to blend and heat to serving temperature.

Security Guard Better Than Own

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a small grocery store in a very rough neighborhood. We have been here for many years and make a good living. Two years ago we were held up twice in 6 months. The robbers tied us up and cleaned out the register, but no real harm came to us. After that, my husband hired a security guard. Since then nobody has bothered us.

A few months ago someone told my husband he was foolish to pay a security guard — he should let the security guard go and keep a loaded gun under the counter. Abby, my husband has never fired a gun in his life — but he took his friend's advice.

I told my husband I wouldn't go in the store as long as he kept the gun there. He said I could stay home — he didn't need me. After working side by side with him for 35 years, I am hurt and heartsick. I am so afraid that if a robber comes in my husband will get excited and reach for the gun and the robber will kill him. That's the way it always happens.

Am I wrong to believe we are in more danger keeping the gun in the store? Or am I right? — Worried.

DEAR WORRIED: You are right. Statistics show that guns kill more innocent people than robbers. And law enforcement experts would strongly advice against keeping a loaded gun handy. The security guard is a far better idea.

DEAR ABBY: Do you see anything wrong with entertaining a boy friend in your bedroom? I am 15 and Mike is 17, and I entertain him in my bedroom because that's where the stereo is and all we do is listen to records and talk. Besides, I have two little brats for brothers and if Mike and I didn't lock ourselves in the bedroom those kids would be running in and out and bothering us.

When my mother found my bedroom door locked with Mike inside, she had a cow. We weren't doing anything wrong. I don't know why she doesn't trust me. I've never gotten into any trouble with dudes.

What's wrong with listening to records in my bedroom? Please make your answer short because I don't like long boring answers. — Okay Girl

DEAR OKAY: A bedroom is not an appropriate place to entertain your boy friend. Move your stereo to another room, don't lock any doors, and ask your mother to please discipline the kids.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I am off my rocker when you read this, but I need an answer. I am a woman, over 40, self-supporting, and never married, and I live alone. I'm active in my church and have some nice friends, mostly church people. I never really wanted boy friends and am happy with my life, except for some strong moods I get into once in a while.

Sometimes I wish someoone would turn me over their knee and give me a good hard spanking. I have tried spanking myself with a wooden spoon but it wasn't very effective. A leather strap would be better.

Don't get me wrong. I'm no nut. I just occasionally feel the need of a good sound spanking on my bare bottom with a leather strap, but if I were to ask someone to do this they would think I am off my rocker. Can you help me? No name, please. This is a small town. — Wants To Be Spanked.

DEAR WANTS: I don't think you are "off your rocker," but I do think you should talk to your doctor about your need to be punished. It's not as unusual as you think, and if it's a problem to you, you can be helped by learning more about it.

SUICIDE-PRONE SPURN ASSISTS

TORONTO (CP) — Many people likely to commit suicide are still relatively hesitant to call for help, an official of Toronto's Distress Centre says.

In a recent interview, Rev. Gordon Winch, director of the centre, said men are slow to seek suicide help probably because they think of themselves and their sex as too strong to need help.

He said the centre is trying to overcome this by emphasizing the number of men involved in its work.

Winch also cited statistics from studies of calls to the centre from people "with serious suicidal feelings." They revealed that:

—Sixty-three per cent of the centre's callers are female; yet Statistics Canada reports 74 per cent of those who commit suicide are male.

—Forty-five per cent of the centre's callers are between 20 and 30; yet the Ontario department of health reports that 41 per cent of those who actually commit suicide are between 45 and 64.

—Only eight per cent of the centre's callers are unmarried. The corresponding figure from the department of health is 36 per cent.

—In 1972 the centre's peak month was May but the department of health said the peak month for actual suicides was November.

Getting There Is Half the Trouble

One of the reasons that summer vacations often turn out badly is that they invariably start off so dismally.

Our typical scenario goes something like this:

During dinner the night before our vacation we resolve to leave no later than 7 a.m., drop the dog off at the kennel, and be well out of town before the early rush hour traffic.

Unfortunately at 1 a.m. my husband and I are still pattering about the house looking for the bottle of suntan oil and spare shoe laces, so when the alarm goes off at 6 a.m. we sleep straight through it. I don't awaken until one of the children breathes on my eyes at 9.

At 10:30 my husband storms off to the car to sulk, bite his lips, and mutter "We should have BEEN there by now."

Meanwhile, the children and I begin searching for the dog, who, sensing that something is definitely amiss, decides to disappear. We cover the entire house on our hands and knees, lifting up bedspreads and chair skirts, waving beef bones enticingly, and crooning "Here, Duke" and "Where is that —— dog, anyway?"

Eventually Duke is wrenched bodily from behind the furnace and placed in the car to bite his lips and sulk with my husband while the children and I rush around the neighborhood distributing African violets, housekeys, and pet gerbils.

Since by now it is high noon, we sit in the driveway and eat the cheese sandwiches and carrot sticks that I had packed for a picnic in a delightful rest area 200 miles from home.

Before we are two blocks from home, the children begin hitting each other over the head with plastic shovels and demanding "When are we going to GET there?"

"Look at the bright side," I say to my husband, who has turned all white around the mouth. "At least we're too late for early morning rush hour traffic."

Every good cook knows that the right spice can make even a simple dish sensational. With the help of the Blue Ribbon Spice Guide you, too, can become a cordon bleu cook.

The guide suggests, for example, to add basil to tomato juice, dill to mayonnaise, oregano leaves to tomato salad and tumeric to welsh rerebit. It recommends sprinkling dill on lamb chops, adding a dash of garlic powder to meat balls and mixing curry powder with melted butter when you roast a chicken.

To make your vegetables more interesting, add dill to cauliflower, green beans or cabbage and rosemary to the water for boiling peas, potatoes or turnips. Add a pinch of saffron when you cook rice and serve zuccini with a butter sauce flavored with chili powder.

To add zest to simple desserts, add mace to your cherry pie filling, sprinkle melons with white pepper, add cardamon to baked apples and caraway seeds to apple pie pastry.

This spice guide is in the form of a large self-stick lable which you can attach to the inside of any kitchen cupboard.

'Bottle' Baby Defects Found by Seattle Duo

Five are girls, three are boys; all have small cheekbones, eyes and ears, an insufficient blood supply and a frighteningly low rate of growth.

Two of the eight children were born with dislocated hips. One child needed glasses at age 2. Three of them can't extend their arms all the way, and five suffer the deviations of the retarded. Their hands shake when they try picking marbles or coins up off the floor, they have trouble holding onto pencils and crayons and they often bang their heads against a wall when left alone.

These eight children have something else in common. They all had alcoholic mothers, with a combined history of 75 years of heavy drinking behind them. Two of the children lay in their mothers' wombs while their mothers were hospitalized with delirium tremens. A third was born at home while his mother was in an alcoholic stupor.

The children are subjects of a study published in a recent issue of the Lancet, a prestigious British medical journal recognized as one of the most important periodicals of its kind. The study was done at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle by a team of pediatric specialists who believe they have found the first set of birth defects triggered by alcohol.

An admittedly small study, involving as id does only eight children and eight mothers, it is also the first known of its kind, breaking new ground in a field where taboos are still very much a part of everyday business.

"We fell into this study almost by accident," explained Dr. Kenneth Jones, the Seattle pediatrician who headed the study, "But we think we have the first reported association between material alcoholism and what I would call malformations in their offspring."

When Jones says he fell into the study, he means it. The study began only six months ago, when he and Dr. David Smith came upon four children suffering malformities who had obviously alcoholic mothers.

"That sent us back to the files, where we'd been compiling facts on children's syndromes," Jones said, "and we found four more children who answered to the same kind of problems and had the same kinds of mothers."

The Seattle pediatricians found a pattern of malformity among all eight children, who came from three different ethnic groups. Two were white, three were black and three North American Indian.

All eight are small for their age, no matter what their age. Their average growth rate is 65 per cent of normal, their average weight gain is 38 per cent of normal, a pattern the pediatricians say is most alarming.

Just as alarming are the malformities the children suffer. Three had heart murmurs at birth, all of which corrected themselves. One was born with a condition that forced her blood to bypass her lungs, a defect that must be corrected with open-heart surgery.

Almost all the children have one cheekbone smaller than the other, giving their faces a lopsided look. All have small eye openings; one has eylids that don't open all the way; and one 4-year-old girl is so nearsighted she's worn glasses since she was 2. Several have ears with a "cauliflower" look, giving them the appearance of infantile prizefighters.

The most striking defect in the eight children is in their limbs, especially their arms and hands. Three have deformed elbows, which means they can't straighten their arms. One has a hand where the fifth finger overlaps the fourth, another has a foot whose toes do the same thing.

The creases in the palms of their hands all show an abnormal alignment, suggesting their hands were stuck in an aberrant position when they were fetuses.

This also suggests that the children had little mobility in their mothers' wombs, which may or may not have been caused by the alcohol crossing the placental barrier from their mothers' bloodstreams.

"I don't want to say that because I don't know that to be the case," Jones insists. "We hope to do more work on this aspect of our study."

Crusader Betters Young Eyes With Orthoptics

WASHINGTON (FWF) — If you ever want to know about orthoptics, the clinical science that uses eye exercises and visual training to restore, or improve, binocular (both eyes) or monocular (one eye) visual skills and the ways in which its methods can elicit and develop single binocular vision, ask Rachael Pietrini. But be prepared for a torrent of messianic fervor. For this determined and compassionate woman in her forties has dedicated more than 20 years of her life to helping people (especially children) to overcome their visual impairment and to educating the public about psychological and emotional damage that usually accompany such afflictions. And she will not summarize her feelings in a few quiet words.

Rachael Pietrini's interest in orthoptics is a logical one — she herself has a visual problem known as strabismus (cross-eyes). Until the age of 21 she wore glasses to stabilize the wandering right eye but they only made her feel self-conscious and ill at ease.

She finally decided to undergo an operation which, cosmetically speaking, was a success. However, she awoke to find herself seeing two doctors instead of one. The surgeon had not told her that to correct the outward appearance of her eyes would not necessarily mean that her visual apparatus would function normally and efficiently. It was a shock from which she might not have completely recovered had she not been introduced to orthoptic methods.

Through these eye exercises she learned to do what people with normal vision had learned very early in life — that is, to fuse the two retinal images into a single mental impression. Because of her stabismus she had developed a faulty eye-brain pattern.

In this, her brain concentrated only on the visual signals from one eye and suppressed the contradictory stimuli from the other eye, in effect rendering one eye useless.

Miss Pietrini became so interested in this process of fusion that she invented and patented a "Visual Fusion Training Instrument" for detecting binocular vision deficiencies and facilitating corrective eye exercises to enable individuals to use their eyes "as a team."

It is a simple but cleverly conceived device incorporating a chamber (which may be placed on a table), with a screen that faces the user with an adjustable lighted aperture as a focal point, a headrest that contains red-coloured glass or transparency for one of the eyes, and a central rod that has an adjustable sliding bar for moving a supplemental focal object — such as a letter or a word towards, or away from, the user's eyes.

If an individual is fusing properly (ie if his brain is receiving both retinal images and projecting them as one) then light from the aperture will be seen by one of the eyes as red, by the other eye as white, and by both as pink. But if he is not fusing properly (ie if he is suppressing visual stimuli from one eye and relying on the other for his sight) then the instrument can help to determine which eye is being neglected. For if both eyes are open and only the red light is seen, then the individual must be taught that he is suppressing one eye and needs exercises to initiate and strengthen proper muscular co-ordination.

Implicit throughout these orthoptic methods is the belief that people have to be taught to see properly and if they have learned bad visual habits they have to unlearn them and learn the right ones.

Miss Pietrini is one of those crusading spirits who are forever hitting their heads against a stone wall. She says: "If people would only understand that seeing is a learning, not instinctive, process and that the brain has to be educated to see properly, then maybe they would realise the need to test for visual problems early in childhood. I have seen so many children develop learning and behavioural difficulties because their impaired binocular vision had not been corrected or at least helped, that it makes me want to cry at the sheer waste of our human resources."

Thus it seems the reason that Johnny can't function well at school is often the result of some very early abnormality in one or both eyes that impaired his eye and coordination and forced him to devise compensatory but distractive visual habits long before he ever entered a classroom.

Miss Pietrini has recently realized one of her most sought after goals, the establishment of The Visual Development Foundation, where all aspects of vision and their relationship to the health and development of man will be investigated. The Foundation has its headquarters in Springfield, Virginia.

Now she feels it all seems worth the effort she expended selling fruitcakes and candy, and other assorted items to finance her undertaking.

But to anyone who knows Rachael Pietrini, her greatest sense of satisfaction has come from the knowledge that she has helped many individuals to fuse and function normally when they had almost given up hope of ever doing so.

The Wurst Is Yet to Come

BONN, Germany (AP) — For Germans trying to lose weight, the worst is yet to come.

It often packs more than 70 per cent fat, the health ministry says. But who listens to the health ministry?

"Diet sausages" have been brought out, to accompany "diet beers." Neither has got far.

Germany has 1,456 kinds of sausage, and everyone has his favorite kind.

In Bavaria, Berlin and the north, a popular delicacy is blutwurst, blood sausage. It's as dark red as its namesake and dotted with white specks of fat.

Another kind of sausage, liverwurst, was prescribed for anemic children by German doctors in the middle ages. For some reason, possession of a liverwurst also was a traditional sign of prosperity.

One type of smoked sausage gets a regal change of name when paprika is added to its other spices.

It starts out as jagdwurst, hunt sausage; and its ingredients are lean pork, young beef, bacon, marjoram, nutmeg, ground caraway seed and peppered leeks.

Conservation Effort Aimed At Tortiseshell

WASHINGTON (WP) — Tortoiseshell may have won the fashion accessories popularity race this season, but it is fast losing the battle with conservationists who want it taken off the shelves.

Not all tortoiseshell comes from the Hawksbill or other sea turtles on the endangered species list, which makes the importing, manufacture and sale of products from the reptiles illegal. But conservationists, such as Robert Boardman, public information director for the National Audubon Society, are urging that all sales of real tortoise items be stopped since most sea turtles are approaching the endangered list status.

"Besides," Boardman said, "it is difficult to tell, once the tortoiseshell has been used in jewelry, if the source is the Hawksbill, which is on the list, or one of the others not on the list."

The Hawksbill tortoise and several other species have been on the endangered list since December, 1970. But the campaign against the use and sale of tortoiseshell jewelry only revved up in the U.S. this May. At that time Bonwit Teller advertised "a rare collection of tortoise jewelry." Several days later, Cartier, the prestige jewelry store, advertised several pieces of gold and tortoise designs by Aldo Cipullo at $185 to $375.

"At that price, an impoverished native is going to trap tortoise, regardlesss of the legality," Boardman said. "It virtually guarantees their extinction."

Once the Audubon Society advised Bonwit Teller and Cartier of the potential illegality of the tortoiseshell, the firms immediately withdrew the items from sale.

This week, in a survey of Washington stores, buyers expressed surprise that certain kinds of tortoiseshell are illegal. All agreed that they would investigate the source of the items they now have in stock at once.

Garfinckel's Department Store immediately consulted experts at the Smithsonian Institution for identification of their tortoise jewelry. A spokesman for Lord and Taylor said the store would take no additional delivery on tortoise items and would remove from sale all those made from tortoises on the endangered list.

Robert Raymond, Woodward and Lothrop Jewelry buyer, said he first became aware of the situation two weeks ago when United States customs agents impounded a package containing cameos and tortoise jewelry from Italy.

According to Marshall Stennett, assistant special agent in charge of international investigation at the interior department, products made from the Hawksbill turtle are being confiscated by agents at all United States ports of entry.

The Hawksbill is popular for jewelry because of its unusual markings and because it can be polished to a high gloss.

Tortoise fanciers willing to settle for imitations, however, can find an unlimited supply of plastic facsimilies made into eyeglass frames, household accessories and jewelry.

While Boardman is primarily concerned with halting the use of real tortoiseshell in jewelry and accessories, he also hopes gourmets will lose their taste for turtle soup.

"It's just a matter of time," he said, "before the green turtle used in soup will become an endangered species, too."

Tuesday Movies and Specials

Movies

Wuthering Heights (xxx), on 2 and 6 at 8. A British made 1971 version of the Emily Bronte classic about ill-fated lovers in 19th-century England starring Ann Calder-Marshall and Timothy Dalton.

Incident on a Dark Street (xx), on 5 at 8. A 1972 TV crime-drama about the operations of the U.S. Attorney's office in the Department of Justice. In the cast are David Canary, Richard Castellano and William Shatner.

Winchester '73 (xxx), on 13 at 8. The trail of a stolen prize rifle leads to murder and violence in this 1950 western drama that stars James Stewart, Dan Duryea and Shelley Winters.

Lieutenant Shuster's Wife «xxx', on 4 at 8:30. Emmy-winning actress Lee Grant portrays a policeman's widow trying to find out who killed him and if he was on the take in this 1972 crime-drama. Watch for a rare cameo appearance by Eartha Kitt.

On the Town (xxxx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. An excellent 1950 movie adaptation of the successful Broadway musical about three sailors on leave in New York City starring Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Ann Miller and Vera Ellen.

Rebus (xx), on 2 at 11:50. Laurence Harvey and Ann-Margaret star in this 1968 Italian-made crime drama about a plot to rob Beirut's largest casino.

Shenandoah (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. James Stewart plays the head of a household torn apart by the Civil War in this sentimental, well-directed 1965 drama that co-stars Katherine Ross and Doug McClure.

The Sun Never Sets (xx), on 13 at midnight. A British diplomat discovers an underground radio transmitter ready to incite war in this somewhat trite 1939 drama that stars Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Basil Rathbone.

Specials

McCarthy Hearings, on 9 at 7. Another look at the 1954 Army-McCarthy hearings. Tonight's film follows Sen. McCarthy's charges of Communist infiltration into the ranks of the U.S. army. (60 mins.)

American Vision, on 9 at 8. "Yankee Ingenuity" is the theme explored in this program on art and architecture in America. (60 mins.)

NBC Reports, on 5 at 10. A documentary-type tour of the Sinai Peninsula and its inhabitants — some 60,000 Bedouin tribesmen whose ancient life of tents, camels and wandering is bowing to progress. (60 mins.)

Dick Cavett, on 4 at 11:30. Tonight, the entire program is devoted to a discussion of the recent Supreme Court decision on obscenity. Guests to be announced. (90 mins.)

JUDY GARLAND . . . Wednesday at 9:30 on 4

Early Wednesday Movies

In the Good Old Summertime (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. A warm-hearted 1949 comedy-romance about two clerks in a music shop who share a mutual secret, without knowing it. A must for Judy Garland fans as she sings some delightful tunes. Van Johnson co-stars.

Operation Delilah (x), on 13 at 10:30. A silly 1964 comedy about a razor salesman with an outrageous plan to shave the beard of a Latin-American dictator, starring Rory Calhoun and Gia Scala.

The Shrike (xxx), on 13 at 12:15. Jose Ferrer stars in this powerful 1955 tale about a man driven to the brink of ruin by his domineering wife (well-played by June Allyson).

Cat Ballou (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A delightful 1965 parody of the Old West about the vengeance of a rancher's daughter that turns her into an outlaw leader. An excellent cast includes Jane Fonda and Lee Marvin (who won an Oscar for his role as a drunken ex-gunfighter).

Journey to the Unknown (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Joan Crawford introduces a pair of thriller dramas made-for-TV in 1969 starring Vera Miles, Patty Duke and Kay Walsh.

Conquered City (xx), on 7 at 3:30. After the Nazis are driven from Athens, a British major is ordered to hold a hotel against partisans in this 1963 drama that stars David Niven and Ben Gazzara.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Killed Wife For No Reason, Man Discovers

FROSINONE, Italy (UPI) — "I did it for my honor," explained Salvatore Nappo. "She was not a virgin and she did not have the courage to tell me."

And that, Nappo said when he surrendered to police, was why he shot his bride of four days.

His bride Anna Nenna, 21, had been shot four times at point-blank range in the neck and throat and left at the side of a country road 46 miles south of Rome.

It was a familiar story in Italy, where until a few years ago a woman, but not a man, could go to prison for adultery and where a sexual code of "honor" once let men sometimes go free even in cases of murder.

But in the Nappo case there was a bitterly ironic twist. A lawyer hired by the Nennas announced it Monday.

"Anna was a virgin," attorney Gennaro Fusco said.

In his prison cell in nearby Ferentino, Nappo wept.

Both the 28-year-old Nappo and his bride were Neapolitans. They married June 1 and set out by car on a honeymoon.

Nappo told police he felt an incontrollable rage after becoming convinced that his wife was intimate with someone else before their marriage. In his hometown, he said, honor was a life-and-death matter.

But, he said, he waited to act until they went for a drive on a quiet country road. There, he said, he parked, fired four shots, threw his wife's body from the car and drove off.

Shortly after sunrise last Friday, a youth on his way to work called police to the spot where the dark-haired woman lay dressed in her honeymoon clothing.

Several hours later, Nappo went to a lawyer who advised him to surrender to police.

The men of Mrs. Nappo's family came to Frosinone the next day, convinced even before the autopsy that it was her honor that was wronged.

"I have always checked closely around my four daughters because I am an old-fashioned man," said Giuseppe Nenna, "and I have a highly developed sense of the seriousness of a woman, of her honor.

"Not one single time did Anna leave the house without my sending my little grandson together with her," he said. "At night, she never returned after 8 o'clock, otherwise there was a scene."

Mrs. Nappo's older brother Ciro, her uncle Andrea Nenna and another relative stood smoking outside the autopsy room talking about Nappo:

Saved for Trial

TURIN, Italy (Reuter) — Adolfo Menzio, a 70-year-old peasant, threw himself down a well near here after killing his 67-year-old wife with a scythe because he thought she was being unfaithful, police said. Menzio was taken to jail after neighbors pulled him from the well.

Two Months As a Pusher, Then Arrest

Sharon Dannenberg was arrested less than two months after she decided to go into "the business of selling heroin" on her own, Victoria county court learned Monday.

Dannenberg, 29, was one of five Victorians charged with conspiracy to traffic heroin and possession of heroin for traffficking. She pleaded guilty Thursday to the possession charge and Prosecutor Cecil Branson entered a stay of proceedings on the conspiracy count.

The remaining four accused — Daniel Hadden, 57, Wendy Dance, 25, Michael Kincses, 27, and Robert Langer, 30, — are standing trial before Judge M. L. Drake. The trial began its second week Monday.

Dannenberg testified she met Langer during the first week of last September and made arrangements to supply him with heroin for resale on the street.

"During the first part I would take him to where bundles were laid down . . . and show him where they were. Then I made a deal with Bob Langer to supply him with an ounce," she said.

In earlier testimpny, Sgt. David Staples, head of the Victoria drug squad, testified that heroin sold on the street is divided into "bundles" of 25 or 50 and "laid down" or buried in the dealer's area.

"The people who I was working with before, we split, we broke up, and I decided to take over the business of selling heroin," Dannenberg said.

She then went to Langer and discussed the price of the ounce, how it was to be delivered and methods of payment, she testified.

Dannenberg offered a price of $2,700 but after argument they agreed on a sum of $2,400, she said.

The first ounce was "fronted" to him (given on trust) and he was told he'd have to pay for it before a second ounce would be supplied.

During the first week Langer called the woman and said he had the money for a second ounce, which she supplied, she testified.

"This continued until approximately a week and a half prior to when I was arrested," she said.

She was arrested Oct. 26.

Hadden came into the picture in mid-September when he was introduced to Dannenberg by Langer.

Langer instructed Dannenberg "to show rim (Hadden) where I laid down ounces and occasionally to pick up money owing to me by Bob," she said.

Shortly before she met Hadden, Langer introduced her to Gerry Fox who, Dannenberg told the court, was buying bundles from Langer for $200 each.

On her first meeting with Fox "it was just general talk on the prices of heroin and how business was doing," she said.

Dannenberg and Langer discussed many aspects of the local heroin business during the course of the transactions, she said.

"Most of the conversations had to do with the amount that was being sold and how to undercut the competition," said Dannenberg.

"We discussed money that was owing to me, the general trend of the market, that it was going up, that Mr. Fox was selling more . . ." she said.

"Several times with Mr. Langer I discussed Mr. Stan Petne and Mr. Larry Mitchell," she said.

Langer supplied Petne and Mitchell with bundles for $250 to $275 each, depending on the availability of heroin at the time of the purchase, she said.

Dannenberg met Petne and Mitchell at the Colonial Inn Oct. 26 and Petne asked her if she could persuade Langer to drop his prices to between $200 and $225 a bundle, the woman testified.

Dannenberg's testimony continues today.

Earlier Monday, Linda Marie Anderson of Edmonton testified she sold heroin from a unit in the Fort Victoria Motel, 341 Island Highway, between Sept. 9 and 16 of last year.

"Where did you get the heroin you were supposed to sell?" asked Branson.

"From Mike" (Kincses), she replied.

"Did you go for any rides in a vehicle with Mr. Kincses?" Branson asked.

"Out to his property . . . by the Happy Valley Nursery," she replied.

"What did he do there?"

"He picked up some heroin."

"Did you ever discuss the source of heroin supply with either Langer or Kincses?"

She told the court both men had said it was supplied from Vancouver.

Before she began dealing from the motel she was approached by Kincses, who told her she would receive $5 for each cap she sold for $20, Anderson testified.

"You had done this before?" asked Robert Price, defending Kincses and Dance.

"Deal in heroin?" she asked.

"Yes," said Price.

Anderson told the court she had sold other drugs before, but not heroin.

"So the suggestion . . . was not one that would surprise you?" Price asked.

"I guess not," she replied.

"Have you earned money from any other source? . . . Have you earned money as a prostitute?" Price asked.

She replied she hadn't.

"You went to bed with Mr. Hadden, I believe, at the Chandler Hotel?" asked Price.

"No," she replied.

Class Moves Outdoors

PORT ALBERNI — High school students from this area have established an outdoor classroom on the west coast of Vancouver Island they believe is one of the most attractive in British Columbia.

It is at Kennedy Cove, a remote promontory stretching into the Pacific that becomes an island at high tide. The Kennedy River enters the ocean at this point.

The scenic wilderness area abounds in wildlife and fish and is ideal for canoeing, mountain climbing and exploring. It is also steeped in history as early British and Spanish explorers once sailed these waters.

Kennedy Cove is within MacMillan Bloedel's Kennedy Lake logging division and near Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach.

It is accessible via the Port Alberni-Long Beach highway and over 13 miles of company roads.

Discovered by students and the staff of A. W. Neill Junior Secondary School in Port Alberni, school district authorities approached MacMillan Bloedel with a proposal to establish an "outdoor classroom" at Kennedy Cove.

The company agreed to lease the 65-acre promontory.

Principal Jim Cavers said the school considers the student camp an extension of the classroom where pupils carry out academic assignments.

"They learn how to use the environment, as well as such things as survival training and water safety," he said.

The site is also ideal for fresh and salt water studies.

"In addition," Cavers said, "the McKenzie Range and the Klitsa wilderness area are not far away and they provide studies in flora and fauna as well."

Last year the school sent 30 boys and girls to develop the site.

Sooke School Appointment

Jack Black, teacher in charge of the girls' alternative program in Sooke, has been appointed to the new position of administrative assistant to the Sooke school district superintendent.

The appointment, approved by a special meeting of Sooke school boards last week, is effective Aug. 1.

Black, who has worked in Sooke for two years, will be replaced in the alternative program by Chris Margerison, now a teacher at Langford Elementary School.

'Tremendous' Crowd At Sunset Concert

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A pale moon hanging in the eastern sky over Heritage Court while the sun sketched late shadows on soaring masonry walls and among the looping arcades of the Provincial Museum buildings.

That was one view of the opening Monday of Victoria Summer Festival's second season of outdoor sunset concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Another was the strong sense of community sharing and enjoyment as between 900 and 1,000 persons, mostly Victorians, filled the centre and perimeter spaces of Heritage Court to listen to the orchestra with Laszlo Gati conducting.

The atmosphere was relaxed, informal, but attentive. A small girl danced happily to herself to the rhythms of Sound of Music.

Older people settled into garden chairs they had brought for the occasion and blue-jeaned teenagers clustered at every vantage point.

The musicians had a few problems—mainly to do with breeze and temperamental instruments—but nothing serious.

Beaming his satisfaction, Maestro Gati waited through the two programs—one began at 6 p.m. and the other at 7:15—and chatted in between to his audience, introducing officiating guests Mayor Peter Pollen and MLA James Gorst.

Gati's satisfaction arose from the fact that last year's festival opened to a far smaller audience and built through the several weeks to regular attendance similar to Monday's.

"This year, we're beginning where we left off, which is tremendous," he commented.

The festival exhibition of paintings and sculpture by Victoria's artist group, The Limners, is also free to concertgoers. It is on view on the lower floor of the archives building.

Music performed Monday included Rossini's overture to Semiramide, the Nocturne and Wedding Music from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream, the LeRoy Anderson Trumpeter's Lullaby with principal trumpet Boyde Hood as soloist, and the familiar finale to Dvorak's New World Symphony.

There will be two more concerts at the same times Wednesday and Friday, with a larger repertoire being performed this year.

On Sunday, Victoria Symphony performs at the Beaver Lake Passmore Day festival in the afternoon and in Oak Bay at Henderson Park in the evening, all performances being incorporated in the Victoria Summer Festival concept.

Police Escort to Victoria For Costly Art Collection

The most valuable art collection ever to be shown in British Columbia will arrive in Victoria Friday with a police escort from Vancouver.

The collection of 36 paintings by Picasso, Cezanne, Courbet and other European masters will be opened July 17 at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

The paintings come from the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, which has closed for renovations, and will be here until Sept. 3.

Included will be six impressionist and post-impressionist canvases: Renoir's delicate Neapolitan Girl's Head, Cezanne's Road in Provence, two landscapes by Sisley and landscapes by Pissaro and Monet.

Twentieth century artists are represented by Picasso's La Lampe et Cerises, part of his "synthetic" cubist phase, and Matisse's Femme a la Fenetre.

The exhibition includes works by Courbet and Daumier, as well as works by Diaz, Daubigny, Harpignies and Corot.

Heavy insurance costs have been underwritten by the National Museums Board and the gallery is making special security arrangements while the collection is here.

The official opening will also mark the return to the gallery of its Pollard collection of Japanese are treasures, which has been on tour since December.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old Saskatchewan youth was sentenced Monday to a total of four months in prison for two counts of breaking and entering and possession of hashish.

Tait W. Lennie pleaded guilty in provincial court to one charge of breaking, entering and theft of items valued at $168 from a home on Metchosin Road on Oct. 24. He also admitted breaking and entering with intent to steal at a Langholme Street residence the same date.

He was sentenced to four months to run concurrently with a one-month sentence for possession of hashish.

Judge William Ostler imposed the "lenient" sentence when told Lennie planned to return to Saskatchewan to farm when his term is completed.

A 19-year-old Victoria youth was fined $50 for wilfully damaging the door to his girlfriend's apartment on Moss Street May 30.

Kevin M. May told court he had been trying to get his wallet and had forced the door.

Joseph J. Boucher, 16, of no fixed address, was fined $75 for carrying a concealed pellet gun in the Paint Cellar at the Empress Hotel on July 5.

Douglas J. Williamson, 48, of 525 Johnson, was given a one day's jail sentence for breach of probation June 6 by being convicted of causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Ostler said he would give Williamson another chance, "but it's up to you," to solve your alcoholism problem.

In traffic court Judge Harold Alder ordered a $350 fine and three months' suspended driver's licence except during working hours for William Henry Monk, 54, of 526 Simms, after an impaired driving incident in Saanich April 26.

Michael G. Greer, 18, of 477 Lampson, was fined $350 and prohibited from driving for six months after driving while impaired July 8 on Douglas.

Bail Cut On Theft Charge

BRISBANE, Australia (CP-Reuter) — A Queensland magistrate today reduced bail to $100,000 for Robert Bert Groves, sought by police in Vancouver on theft charges involving $176,000.

Groves, 48, was charged with theft of $176,000, defrauding creditors of $176,000 and four counts of criminal breach of trust involving a total of $234,000 in April, 1972, after $176,000 in funds from the British Columbia government paid to Groves' Raffin Construction Co. Ltd. was missing. The money was for construction of schools in the Vancouver area. Groves was then president of the firm.

He subsequently disappeared until he was arrested last month by police at a luxury resort 40 miles north of Brisbane.

Bail was set at $400,000 at his first court appearance June 3 but reduced today to $100,000. He was remanded today in custody for seven days on the request of Commonwealth Crown Solicitor N. Boge.

Boge told the court he understands documents required for an application for Groves' extradition will leave Canada July 20.

The Garden is Really Extension of the Home

The garden should be looked upon as an extension of the house. It is a part of the home even though the family may not be particularly garden minded. Let's assume, then, that none of the family is remotely interested in plants, but some are aware of the pleasures of the outdoors as a whole.

For many months of the year, it is possible to circulate between the outdoors and inside, thus easing the wear and tear on everyone's nerves.

Provide the outside piece of ground with seats, a table or two, paths, some shade and a small storage place out of reach of rain, and the garden is well on its way to becoming part of the home.

Only those who live without a piece of property attached to their home know the restrictions of walls.

The outdoor spot can be a therapeutic corner where someone goes to work off a tantrum or a sulk; where there's a bit of quiet away from radio or television; or simply where you can enjoy a solitary cup of coffee.

Before you know it, ideas will be suggested for improvements — a wider path, an overhead shelter, a more level place for the seats, and soon the most non-gardening family member suddenly wants to plant a climbing vine. The next thing you know, someone puts in a patch of especially liked fruits and vegetables.

If no firm plans have been made for a more orthodox garden design, let each member of the family work out a portion of the design. Encourage the idea that money spent on these projects is money invested in future entertainment.

Informal gatherings and parties will once more be features of home life, both indoors and out.

A tree or two, a few shrubs, some tubs and planters of bright summer annuals, an outdoor lighting fixture or two and you have the makings of many weeks of casual enjoyment.

Without even mentioning gardening, see what your family can do this summer. For this purpose, plants are the last consideration. They will come naturally to fill in bare spots of the stark artificial design likely to develop when done on this very casual foundation.

200 Drownings As Boat Tips

DACCA (AP) — About 200 persons were feared drowned Monday night when a boat capsized near the mouth of the Ganges River 80 miles from this Bangladesh capital, police reported.

A police officer stationed near the scene of the sinking said the boat apparently was overloaded with 305 persons reported aboard. He reported about 105 persons swam ashore.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is no question but that duplicate bridge is much more of a bidder's game than is rubber bridge. The reason, of course, is that each deal is the exact equivalent of each other deal; and since scoring is on a relative basis, with each competing pair playing the identical deals, the procurement of the maximum part score on a given deal can be worth more than the bidding of a vulnerable grand slam on some other given deal.

Had today's deal arisen in a rubber-bridge game, West wouldn't have given even a passing thought to bidding at his second opportunity to bid. But the hand happened to arise in the 1972 Life Masters Men's Pairs Championships, and it now became a horse of another color.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 ♡
Dbl.(!)	Pass	3 ♣	3 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♣

In all fairness to West, it should be reported that North explained that South's two-heart response showed a poor hand and "denoted a desire to play the hand at that contract."

West's double was, of course, of the take-out variety and commanded East to bid one of the three unbid suits. When East named his club suit, South decided to bid hearts again. At the conclusion of play, South was a sadder man.

The East-West defence was letter-perfect. Truscott got off to the lead of the club four, which put declarer to an immediate test — and declarer flunked by playing low from dummy. When East took the trick with his queen, he returned a low diamond, West's ace capturing the trick. West next cashed his club ace, after which he played back a diamond to East's king. Thus the defenders won the first four tricks; and in time East's king of trumps took the setting trick.

Had declarer guessed to play the board's king of clubs on the opening lead, he would have made an overtrick. With the king winning, dummy's three top spades would then have been cashed, South discarding his diamond three on the third spade lead. South's only losers would then have been a heart, a diamond, and a club — and Truscott's gambling double would have accomplished nothing.

He Got Attention, All Right

Times News Services

KELOWNA—A motorcyclist who got lost in the woods lighted a fire to attract attention.

He got his attention — three air tankers, 22 firefighters and three tractors from the Northwood mill operation at Penticton and eight Kelowna forest rangers.

His little fire sparked a three-acre blaze which threatened to get out of hand and become a major fire, according to Frank Pearce of the ranger station here.

The 30 smoke eaters managed to keep the conflagration contained in an area of cleared and felled slash at Little White Mountain.

Charges are being considered, Pearce said.

Working Poor Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government could easily guarantee B.C.s 18,000 "working poor" families a minimum income, said a report released Monday by the United Community Services.

The report said a minimum income for families whose wage earner either works intermittently or for low wages would bring their income up to or above the income families on welfare currently receive.

UCS researcher Larry Bell said in the report that he calculates the cost of the program would be between $15 million and $25 million.

The B.C. government has estimated all levels of government will spend $142 million during the current year on various forms of welfare assistance in B.C.

A guaranteed income for the "working poor" should be a "modest source of increased costs," he said.

UCS president Bob Jefferies has sent a letter to all MLAs and to Vancouver and federal welfare agencies urging them to accept the guaranteed-income proposal.

A family of four now gets a basic $350 a month on welfare. The breadwinner is allowed to take part-time work and earn another $100, for a total of $450.

However, if the head of the household works more than 34 hours a week at the minimum wage of $2 an hour, he or she will make only about $300 a month.

The plan the UCS endorses would grant that family a supplement of $150 a month.

HOSPITAL PLAN HIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Monday he agrees with Vancouver city council and Allen Kelly of the Greater Vancouver Regional District that it would be unwise to spend $100 million on Vancouver General Hospital.

The hospital board recently recommended that the government tear down most of the existing facility and almost completely rebuild the hospital.

The proposed $100 million price tag is simply too high for one facility and although the government will have to spend at least that much on facilities generally in the Vancouver area, it will not all be at one hospital, Cocke said.

Ottawa Idea 'Constipated'

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was criticized in the Commons Monday night for being "parsimonious, stupid and ostrich-like" in the way it has handled the transfer of government land to the city of Vancouver.

John Fraser (PC—Vancouver South) said 38 acres owned by national defence in the Jericho Beach area is needed by the city as a recreation site.

Fraser asked why the government was "So constipated in imagination" that it could not transfer the land to the city.

"The government wants its pound of flesh out of it," he said.

Leonard Hopkins, parliamentary secretary for defence, said the government has turned over several parcels of valuable land to Vancouver in the past, including Stanley Park.

The defence department is discussing options for the property, he added.

CATCH DOWN FOR HALIBUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Halibut landings to June 30 totalled 15.7 million pounds, or 40 per cent of the 1973 catch limit of 38 million pounds, figures released Monday show.

The catch to June 30 in 1972 was 18.3 million pounds. The 1973 season opened May 10, nine days later than last year, but the comparison was based on the first 51 days of fishing in both years.

Big Daddy In Profit Paradise

By JACK SCOTT, Times Staff

(Third of a Six-Part Series)

ZAMA, Japan — One of the brochures of the Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., which makes the Datsun here at Zama, 30 miles west of Toyko, and at nine other huge plants throughout these crowded islands, talks of the car's "Oriental elegance."

There's nothing remotely elegant about the lives of the Orientals who make them. Many of the 4000 single Japanese in the payroll of 7700 workers here live, in fact, in grim dormitory cells no more than 12 feet square, rooms without furnishings except the tatami, the traditional Japanese sleeping mat. What's more, they share the rooms, day-shift worker alternating with night-shift worker.

If you'd guess that they're unhappy about it, as elite, skilled union men in the world's fourth largest automobile company, you'd probably be a foreigner without an appreciation of how The Big Daddy System works so exquisitely in modern Japan.

These particular craftsmen get something less than half the take-home pay of an equivalent auto worker in Oshawa or Detroit, but there hasn't been a strike here at Zama in the past 20 years, then only a brief walk-out. "I think it was 20 years ago," contentedly reflects Seizo Akiyama, a Nissan executive, "but it may have been longer." Akiyama remembers, too, a picket line around another industry that patrolled the plant right up to the time to start work.

A single worker here pays about four dollars a month for his dormitory room. The company picks up most of the tab, too, for the good, hot meals in the dining hall. There are wide, tiled, communal baths for the customary hot soak after a hard day on the assembly line, a tea room, a library, a ping pong room. If the fellow takes a bride he'll probably get a small company house or a small company apartment for a rental of about eight dollars a month.

Nearly 12 million of Japan's 36 million workers belong to unions—to 62,400 of them, to be exact. The percentage of the work force in unions is, in fact, slightly higher than it is in Canada. They negotiate once a year and they do pretty well. Though they still work, on average, 20 hours a month longer than Canadian union men, they've made steady financial gains. It's become almost automatic in the "shunto," the Spring wage offensive, as its called, to ask for a 20 per cent raise and to get 17 per cent though, considering Japan's galloping inflation, a doubling of productivity capacity in the last eight years and the profits of most exporting companies (Nissan, for example, made profits last year in the nice neighborhood of $900 millions) it seems a figure that's not too punishing for management.

Though labor unrest is growing in an attempt to win the five-day week, Japan remains a paradise for those who make the profits in the world's most secure capitalism.

Housing is just one factor in the system, though a big one since it ranks with industrial pollution as the nation's major problem. With few exceptions companies offer subsidized living quarters for their workers.

There is, too, a bonus system for every employed man or woman, union member or not, right up to the prime

Gov't Pipe Urged

By CAROLE SHIFRIN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sen. Henry Jackson (D—Wash,) said Monday he would propose federal construction and ownership of the $3 billion trans-Alaska oil pipeline if actions by either congress or the courts delay work on the private project beyond next spring.

"My concern is to get that oil moving out of Alaska," Jackson told a press conference. He also said his senate energy policy study group would look "closely" at federal oil policies — oil import quotas, the depletion allowance, foreign tax credits — in light of a Federal Trade Commission staff report charging that government policies have helped create the current gasoline shortage. (See Page 8.)

In related developments Monday:

—The U.S. Senate, seeking to ease Canadian and environmentalist fears of oil spills, voted Monday to speed up the application of tough new controls on tankers carrying Alaskan oil. An amendment approved by voice vote would require that a 1972 law calling for double-bottom tankers by Jan. 1, 1976, apply to Alaskan tankers by June 30, 1974.

—The state of Florida filed an antitrust suit charging that 15 major oil companies conspired to create a gasoline shortage to drive out their independent competitors. "Our position is that the gas shortage is a direct result of anticompetitive practices manipulated by the major oil companies to protect their profits," Florida Attorney General Robert Shevin said. The suit seeks divestiture of the companies' crude oil pro-

Extended Blanshard Goes Underground

An 800-foot tunnel beneath the parking lot of the Town and Country Shopping Centre will be built by the provincial government to link the Trans-Canada Highway with an extended Blanshard Street, Highways Minister Graham Lea said today.

Lea announced the route the extension is to take to join the highway (see map), with the extension of Blanshard Street running from the Blanshard-Tolmie intersection to a point near the intersection of Oak Street and Saanich Road where it will go underground beneath the Douglas Street-Pat Bay Highway route.

The highways minister said the route was one of three considered and will probably involve more expense than the other two. But he said use of either of the other two proposed routes — along Seymour Street or Vernon Avenue — "would have caused serious social disruption and displacement of people and private homes."

Lea said there will be a level crossing at the intersection of the new route with Cloverdale. He said no decision has yet been made about the Blanshard-Tolmie intersection but said an overpass is a possibility.

The route chosen, marked by the thick line on the map, "will affect fewer private homes and have much less social impact on people living in the vicinity," Lea said.

The minister was not able to give cost figures for the project which he said will not be under construction for at least a year. Detailed engineering studies and cost estimates have yet to be done but design work will start shortly.

Asked if landowners along the new route have been advised of the government's need for their properties, Lea said they had not. He said only that there are about 20 properties affected by the new route as well as several industrial and commercial concerns.

He said the owners of private and commercial properties affected by the construction will be contacted "as soon as possible."

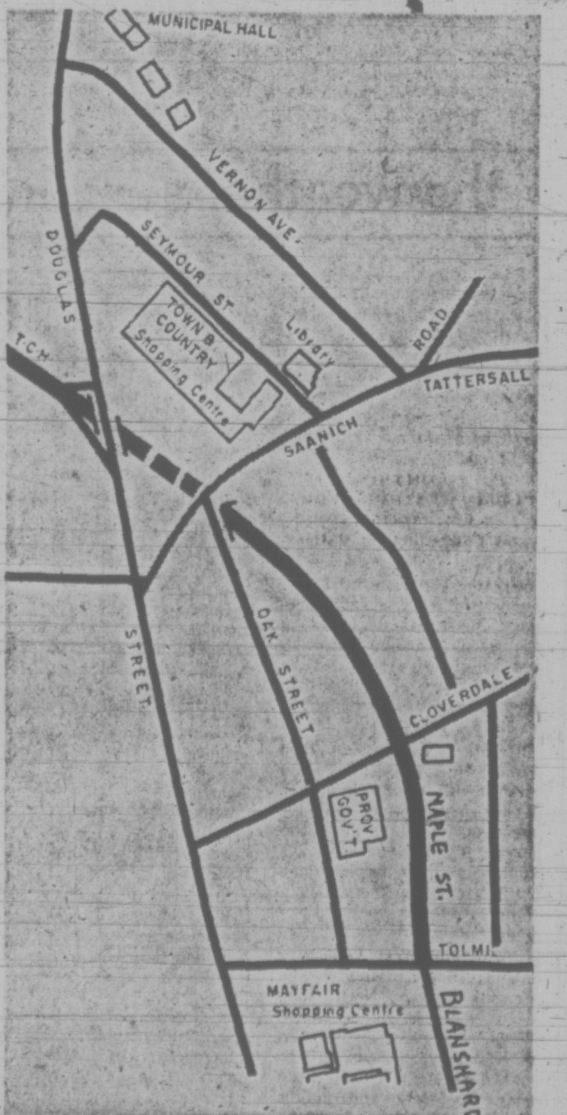
Lea said there will be dramatic increases in property values in the area, adding that prior knowledge of proposed rights-of-way is not as important in making money as it has been in the past. Final settlements would be arrived by arbitration if negotiations between the government and property owners was not successful.

Lea said he expects the entire cost of the highway project will be borne by the provincial government, but said he will approach Ottawa for participation since the Trans-Canada Highway is under federal jurisdiction.

"Ottawa seems quite susceptible during these days of minority government to giving large sums of money to the west," he said.

Extension of Blanshard Street to the Trans-Canada will result in two separate direct routes from downtown Victoria.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, contacted today in Dawson Creek, called the route "excellent" and said it was the one favored by Saanich officials in their discussions with the provincial government.



THICK LINE is the new Blanshard route, a four-lane divided highway. Dotted line is 800-foot tunnel beneath Town and Country Shopping Centre parking lot.

IT'S A DANDY JUNGLE GYM for the moment, as these youngsters have discovered, but this metal frame in Oak Bay soon will be taken over by the sea lions at Sealand. It will be covered with chain-link fencing, be lifted by crane and placed under water. (Bill Halkett photo)

Food Cost Up 16.7% In Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Food prices rose two per cent from May to June, up 16.7 per cent over their level of a year ago, Statistics Canada reported today.

This means that $13.75 cents of groceries in June, 1972, would have sold last month for $16.05.

The spiralling food price rise was the major factor in raising the all-items consumer price index for June by 0.9 per cent to 149.7. This was a faster-than-mornal increase for this time of year and pushed the index up 8.1 per cent over June last year.

All other items included in the index except transportation costs, which increased 0.9 per cent, were lower than the all-items total.

The increases prompted Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield today to repeat his call for a 90-day freeze on prices and incomes.

He also said in a news relase the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and federal sales taxes on all clothing should be removed.

"But though the signal is louder and clearer than ever, there is no indication of any effective action by the Trudeau government. The government is in a state of confusion that has led to paralysis."

He said that during a 90-day price and wage freeze, the

BEER TAPS DRY UP

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — There's no draught beer at 16 beer parlors in the Lower Mainland and another 44 likely will run out by the end of the week if the illegal walkout of workers at Labatt Breweries Ltd. here continues.

A company spokesman said no beer was produced at the plant Monday as some 200 members of Local 300 of the Brewery and Soft Drink Workers' Union continued to ignore a joint company-union request that they return to work.

Labatts applied today for an injunction against the striking workers. The company's case will be heard Wednesday in supreme court.

The company said in a statement today the dispute over retiring Local 300 president Alex Lipp's pension should be settled by grievance procedure and arbitrations. Lipp says the union refuses arbitration. He also says the company is reneging on a pension agreement signed May 31.

The agreement provides a minimum $480 monthly pension for workers with 30 years employment at age 60 and rediced benefits for those retiring earlier.

Dollar Climbs In Europe

Times News Services

LONDON — The U.S. dollar moved sharply upward on world money markets today and dealers credited reversal of its slide to "rumors" government banks were secretly supporting it.

Along with the dollar, the British pound also gained strength.

"This rumor is current in the money market and is clearly helping the dollar, although we have seen no evidence that any central bank has so far supported the dollar," said one U.S. banker in Frankfurt.

High U.S. sources, meanwhile, said privately that the United States probably is "close" to a decision on intervention. They suggested that it would make sense only on a "massive scale" which would convince speculators that the intervening governments could marshal the resources to maintain a given rate for the dollar.

The dollar's price against the all-important West German mark was fixed today at 2.354 marks, highest in a week. The fixed price Monday was 2.2835 marks. The pound, in terms of Canadian funds was trading at $2.54.

Gold dropped in price in free bullion markets as the dollar moved substantially upward in currency exchanges in Amsterdam, Paris, Brussels, Milan and Tokyo, and slightly higher in London.

Prime Minister Edward Heath met his cabinet's key economic and financial ministers in London today but no decisions were announced.

In Paris the dollar climbed back above the four-franc level and continued upward. It was trading at mid-day between 4.025 and 4.035 francs.

In Brussels the dollar gained another .68 per cent; in Milan it climbed 1.5 per cent from Monday's closing price to trade at 580 lire.

China, in the third revaluation of its currency in two months, revalued the renminbi (formerly called the yuan) by 5.23 per cent against the Hong Kong dollar, leading Hong Kong bankers to predict a change of that currency's rate in trades for U.S. dollars.

Nixon Didn't Know: Mitchell

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. attorney - general John Mitchell testified today that he helped hush up the Watergate incident and kept information about the burglary and break-in from President Nixon to protect Nixon's re-election chances.

"Maybe in retrospect I was wrong (in not telling Nixon)," Mitchell told the Senate Watergate committee, "but I thought the best thing to do was to keep the lid on until after the election."

He said he did not tell Nixon what he knew about the burglary and its subsequent cover-up "for the simple reason that there was no necessity of scarring the president, who was not involved."

Mitchell said that not only did he shield the president from information about Watergate, but he also did not believe Nixon knew anything about the cover-up "based on my faith and knowledge of the man."

Indeed, Mitchell said he never got to the bottom of Watergate himself, even though he acknowledged participating in three meetings at which spy plans were discussed. He said he rejected them every time.

Mitchell also contradicated as a "palpable, damnable lie" testimony by Jeb Stuart Magruder, assistant Nixon campaign director that he was shown wiretap logs, and that he had suggesteed earlier this year that Magruder might get executive clemency if convicted for his admitted perjury in the cover-up.

But the central dispute remained the decision made at a meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla., March 30, 1972, where political spying was discussed.

Magruder testified that "Mr. Mitchell agreed to approve the project . . . It was specifically approved for initial entry into Democratic national committee headquarters in Washington . . ."

Mitchell's account today was directly contrary to that testimony.

Mitchell said when the spy plan came up, his reaction was:

"We don't need this. I'm tired of hearing it. Out. Let's not discuss it any further . . . In my opinion it was just as clear as that."

Mitchell said any problem about his verdict on the espionage plan was one of misunderstanding or of contravention of his orders by Magruder.

Chief committee counsel, Samuel Dash, asked whether Mitchell was aware that Ma-

—Administration sources confirmed that a rollback of prices for petroleum products —including gasoline — to the May 15 level is being considered. Companies would be allowed to raise prices in order to "pass through" any increased costs dollar-for-dollar but not a profit markup. One concern, however, is whether the action might not have a negative effect on supplies, as has the freeze on some agricultural commodities.

—Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon reaffirmed that the administration is "absolutely not" considering gasoline rationing. "It is neither necessary nor desirable . . ." he said on the NBC-TV Today show. "I absolutely do not consider rationing even a possibility." A decision on whether to continue the voluntary allocation system as-is or change it any will be made in the next two weeks, he said.

Simon said he didn't believe — with inventories at their present level — that there would be anything but "spot" fuel shortages. Asked whether stranded, gas-less motorists could call him collect, he replied, "Oh yes, I wish he would, please. Said another treasury official: "He may be sorry he said that."

—The Internal Revenue Service price stabilization office in Cleveland said Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) and other companies which lowered gasoline octane without reducing prices may have violated the price freeze. Other companies which have reduced octane levels include Gulf, Mobil and British Petroleum. Also being investigated is the elimination of trading stamps and raising of the number of gallons needed for free or discounted car washes as possible violations.

Sen. Jackson called the FTC staff report, which suggests that the major oil companies engage more in "co-operation" than "competition," an "important document" which sets the stage for "sweeping reforms."

"This is the first time," Jackson said, that a government agency report "has formally concluded that time-honored and, until now, almost sacrosanct federal oil policies have benefitted the major oil companies while working hardship on the average American and the independent small businessman."

The report suggests that the vertically integrated structure of the industry — that is with the largest companies operating in every area — and a variety of anti-competitive practices, allow the major companies to limit supplies of crude oil available to independents and to fix prices.

The FTC staff is said to have recommended that the FTC sue eight major companies seeking the divestiture of some of their functions to foster competition, as does the Florida suit filed Monday. Jackson said Monday he would "reserve judgment" on a similar proposal pending before Congress.

"I think I can put it on the basis that I had a pretty strong feeling that his testimony was not going to be entirely accurate," Mitchell said.

Pressed by Dash, Mitchell admitted he had no direct knowledge — either from his own conversations with the president or those of others — whether Nixon knew either of the bugging plot or the subsequent cover-up.

"The only thing I can say is that as far as I know, he does not know about either of those circumstances," Mitchell said.

Asked by Dash how he could be certain, Mitchell replied, "I think I know the individual. I know his reaction to things. During the period of time I was in association with him and had telephone contact with him, I don't think he had that information."

"Based on your faith and knowledge of the man?" Dash asked.

"I do have faith in the president," Mitchell replied. "I do think I have knowledge of the man. I do think that in general discussions in the general area it would have come out if the president had knowledge."

Dash's questioning took the entire morning.

Mitchell testified earlier today that when G. Gordon Liddy first broached plans for 1972 political espionage it was "a complete horror story" that involved wiretaps, call girls and code names.

Mitchell told the committee that in hindsight, he not only should have thrown Liddy "out of the office, I should have thrown him out of the window."

Testifying about a meeting Jan. 27, 1972, Mitchell said Liddy outlined a political intelligence proposal that "just was beyond the pale."

Mitchell said as he recalls the meeting, "I told him to go burn the charts," and said what President Nixon's campaign organization was interested in was information gathering and protection against demonstrators.

Mitchell also said, "I violently disagree" with the testimony of Magruder that at a Feb. 4 meeting, the then-attorney-general was involved in discussions of the Democratic national committee as a target for electronic surveillance.

Mitchell said he made major decisions about Nixon's re-election campaign while he was still head of the justice department.

Testifying under subpoena, he said Nixon had asked him "to keep an eye on the campaign committee, to see that they didn't get out of line over there."

Mitchell thus appeared to contradict his own previous testimony before the Senate judiciary committee, where he testified March 15, 1972, that he had "no re-election campaign responsibilities."

At the start of his testimony at the committee's hearings, Mitchell said he joined the late J. Edgar Hoover in opposing a domestic intelligence plan that contemplated burglaries in the name of internal security.

He said that not until recently did he know that Nixon had ordered the plan put into effect for five days before bowing to objections from Hoover.

As an intimate confidant of Nixon—as well as being his campaign manager in 1968 and 1972 and his first attorney-general — Mitchell is in a position to know as much about Nixon's knowledge of the Watergate affair as any witness likely to be heard by the committee.

He has denied previous testimony that he approved the Watergate burglary, but while being questioned Monday in a closed meeting with the committee staff, he acknowledged for the first time knowing of the cover-up which took shape shortly after the June 17, 1972, arrest of the Watergate burglars, committee sources said.

In other developments:

—Lawyers for Mitchell and Maurice Stans asked Monday that conspiracy and perjury charges against them be dropped, charging the government asked improper questions about the Watergate affair.

—In Miami, Fla., Dade County prosecutor Richard Gerstein said a Cuban exile leader has made a sworn statement that he delivered $21,000 to four of the Watergate burglars.

—Representative Henry Reuss (Dem.—Wis.) asked the Internal Revenue Service to freeze the remaining assets of the Committee for the Reelection of the President, saying the campaign organization's funds may be found to be taxable if they were given in expectation of favors rather than as gifts.

... DOLLAR

lar regained the eight yen it lost Monday and closed at 262.10 yen.

In London and Paris as well as Frankfurt, dealers said the chance of government — particularly American — official support for the dollar boosted the currency's value.

Meanwhile, a Swiss banker says the Soviet Union is believed to have sold about 160 tons of gold through the free Zurich market in the past eight months and that this has kept gold prices from soaring even higher.

Walter Frey, central director of the Swiss Bank Corp., predicts the Soviets are likely to stick to this sales volume for the rest of the year.

Many international money experts are dubious about the beneficial effects of intervention. The history of the recent past is that efforts to prop up exchange rates have been costly, usually resulting in a crisis followed by establishment of a new set of rates.

Others argue that things are different now, in the sense that the dollar has floated — or sunk — to such a low level that it is clearly undervalued, and thus is at a point where even moderate support could give it considerable strength.

Export Ban Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — In continued reaction to a series of control measures taken in the United States, the government announced Monday night it is widening the export controls it imposed June 29 on soybeans, flax, rapeseed, cottonseed and linseed oils and their byproducts.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said the list would be extended, effective midnight Monday night, to a series of edible oils, animal fats and livestock protein feeds.

Esmond Jarvis, co-ordinator of the trade department grains group, said the main effect of the controls will be "to generally hold the prices down to the farmers."

The new commodities include sunflower seed, cake and meal; alfalfa products; packing house products such as meat, bone, blood and feather meal; vegetable oils, all mixed feeds for livestock and poultry, lard in 20-pound units or over, tallow, brewing byproducts such as distillers' solubles and brewers' and distillers' grains, corn gluten feed and meal, soybean lecithin and methionine.

Speaking in the Commons, Gillespie described the controls as "further precautionary measures" and said they are being imposed in light of the U.S. decision last week to place 41 commodities under export restrictions.

However, exporters with contracts signed before June 29, the date the first series of controls went into effect, will be able to apply for an export licence to meet their commitments, the minister said.

All applications would be examined on a case-by-case basis but no further exports of soybeans or soybean meal would be allowed.

Food Jumps 2% in Month

government could work with the provinces, labor and business to establish "a follow-up program of controls which would apply over the next 18 months to two years." This would not require a massive new bureaucracy to administer, he said.

The index is based on 1961 price levels, which were set at 100. Since then, the purchasing value of one dollar has declined to 67 cents, government figures indicate.

The all-items index stood at 149.7 in June, up from 148.4 in May. This means that household goods and services costing $14.84 in May were $14.97 in June.

The two per cent increase in food prices between the two months contrasted with 0.2 per cent and 0.1 per cent rises between the same two months in 1972 and 1971.

But in 1969, the change in food prices between the two months was 2.2 per cent.

Statistics Canada said all main elements of food consumed in the home rose in price between May and June but indicated that fresh produce, beef and poultry costs increased the most.

Although fresh vegetable and fruit prices normally rise between the two months, there was a marked increase this year.

Potatoes, lettuce and tomatoes all jumped by about 8.7 per cent on the average, the bureau reports, outweighing decreased prices for some other vegetables. Fresh fruit increases stood at 5.1 per cent.

In the last year, the price of fresh vegetables and fruit has risen by 51 per cent and 23 per cent respectively.

Meat, poultry and fish prices, which eased slightly in early May, climbel back up by 2.7 per cent, with beef increasing by 5.1 per cent and poultry rising 2.3 per cent.

Eggs cost 61 per cent more than a year earlier, beef 21 per cent more than in June, 1972, pork was 22 per cent higher and poultry 26 per cent more costly.

Lesser price increases between May and June were registered for cereal and bakery products, beverages, sugar, dairy products and fats and oils.

Major factor in the transportation costs to the consumer was a 1.4 per cent increase in cost of automobile maintenance due to higher gasoline and motor oil prices. Further increases in these fuels are expected this month.

Increased train fares and inter-city bus fares and higher prices for new cars imported from outside North America due to devaluation of the dollar were other reasons for the transportation index rise.

Housing costs, which make up 31 per cent of the price index, rose by one-half of one per cent as shelter and household operating expenses rose by 0.6 per cent and 0.4 per cent respectively.

Furniture costs increased 1.3 per cent and fuel oil prices rose in cities in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Increased mortgage interest rates, higher prices for new homes and home owners repairs increased 0.4 per cent or four cents per $10 spent.

Since June, 1972, housing costs have risen 6.7 per cent.

Clothing prices jumped 0.4 per cent between May and June largely because of higher costs of laundry, dry cleaning and shoe repair.

Men's suits, shirts, underwear and socks, as well as children's clothing, increased in price but women's wear remained unchanged.

Clothing costs are 11 per cent of the total index.

Increases in magazine prices and higher driving lesson costs offset a drop in television set, stereo, boat and motor prices to raise the recreation, education and reading component of the index slightly.

Tobacco and alcohol prices, which make up six per cent of the index rose 0.1 per cent.

The only good news for consumers was in the health and personal care component of the index, at five per cent the smallest of seven categories, where prices remained unchanged between the two months.

Bud Cullen (L—Sarnia-Lambton), chairman of the Commons special committee on food prices, attributed the increased cost of fresh vegetables and fruit largely to shortages of supply.

The committee was meeting today to continue thrashing out a report after weeks of hearings from consumer, producers and industry groups.

Mr. Cullen said the committee was looking at the role of the chain store in food distribution now. The MPs are trying to reach conclusions on what factors have the greatest impact on food prices and may try to set out roles for government and industry to play in keeping prices down, he said.

RAPID TRANSIT URGED

EDMONTON (CP) — A general transportation plan calling for more emphasis on rapid transit, tighter regulations on roadway construction and construction of a satellite airport was presented to city council Monday.

The plan is based on a report given council in May and briefs and recommendations made to the utilities and engineering committee in June.

Villagers Massacred By Portuguese—Priest

LONDON (Reuter) — At least 400 men, women and children were slaughtered by Portuguese troops in a "systematic genocidal massacre of people" in the Mozambique village of Wiriyamu, a Roman Catholic priest says in an article in The Times.

In the most recent mass killing, in Wiriyamu last December, more than 400 persons died at the hands of the troops, says the report written by Rev. Adrian Hastings, a priest in Birmingham, England.

Father Hastings says his article was based on reports received from Spanish missionaries working in the Portuguese territory where, he says, troops were killing villagers of Frelimo, the Mozambique liberation organization.

The article lists the names of hundreds of villagers from Wiriyamu said to have been shot, burned and kicked to death in December.

In his article, Father Hastings describes the Wiriyamu massacre, as secretly reported by the missionaries, saying the village was first bombarded and troops who had arrived by helicopter then "invaded it with ferocity."

"Once inside the village the soldiers started ransacking the huts, and this was followed immediately by the massacre of the people," the report says.

The Prime Canadian

OFC Canadian whisky is 8 years old. Picked in its prime.

At 2-years old Canadian whisky is pale, harsh, unmatured — and around 12 is darker and beginning to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between this time, it becomes golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied. In our opinion OFC is the prime Canadian whisky. That's why OFC is only 8 years old. The prime time for taste, try it.

Galleon Yields Treasure

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A team of treasure hunters says it has found a wreck believed to be the Nuestra Senora de Atocha, a 350-year-old galleon.

The divers displayed Monday three silver bars, 711 silver pieces of eight and other artifacts they said they recovered from the wreck site in the Marquesas Keys 40 miles west of here.

The treasure hunters estimated the worth of the items at $750,000.

They said one of the 60-pound silver bars matched the description of a bar on the manifest of the Atocha, wrecked in a hurricane in the first quarter of the 17th century.

The Atocha carried about 40 tons of treasure, and a sister ship that wennt down in the same storm, La Margarita, carried 27 tons.

A spokesman for a professional diving firm with which the treasure hunters worked, Treasure Salvors Inc., said the find was made in 20 feet of water near the small islands owned by Florida.

The state of Florida gets 25 per cent of the value of any treasure recovered, and the searchers keep 75 per cent.

Japan Swells

TOKYO (Reuter)— Japan's population has risen to 108,202,038 — an increase of 2,347,000 in the year ended March 31, says the home affairs ministry. A big part of the increase is due to the inclusion of Okinawa, population 1,027,000. It was handed over to Japan by the United States in May, 1972.

CHINA BOMB FALLOUT UNDETECTABLE IN U.S.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The amount of radiation received in the United States from the Communist Chinese nuclear weapons test several weeks ago was too low to detect, the Atomic Energy Commission said Monday.

China detonated a device with a yield of one to three megatons — up to three million tons of TNT — and the AEC since then has kept an eye on a high altitude air mass moving toward this country from the test area.

The mass has passed over the United States, and readings at monitoring stations were "within the range of natural background" radiation — the ever present radiation produced from natural sources — the AEC said.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rapeseed and flax prices gained the daily maximum of 20 cents in all active futures today at the close on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Oats and barley traded moderately at stronger prices and rye advanced more than seven cents in a good demand.

Volume of trade Monday was 797,000 bushels of flax, 2,089,000 of rapeseed and 892,000 of rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodity futures prices drifted lower on the Board of Trade today in relatively light dealings dominated by sellers.

The selling was influenced largely by expectations that a government report on acreage estimated to be planted to the major crops will be bearish.

The trade already knows a record winter wheat crop is expected and acreage for corn and soybeans probably will produce yields of record proportions.

The selling was very strong on the opening in the major pits. After several periods of widely-fluctuating prices, corn prices were down 7½ cents and wheat six.

Old crop soybeans, traded for liquidation only, were down the limit of 40 cents in the August and September options but the nearby July closed 44 higher. New crop options were higher.

Soybean oil gained around 70 points, but meal prices were mixed with old crop options down the limit and new crop options higher. Oats were lower in light trade.

At the close, wheat was down 2½ cents with July one higher, 2.64, corn declined nearly five with July three higher at 2.15, oats two lower, July old 89 and soybeans 40 lower to 44 higher, July 6.40.

Course Switch Bothers Principal

POWERVIEW, Man. (CP) — The principal of Powerview School, Henry Bouvier, has expressed concern abut concessions that enabled the son of Manitoba Indian Brotherhood chief Dave Courchene to graduate from grade 12 in June.

The student, Gerald Courchene, scored zero in typing, making him ineligible for graduation. In company with two members of the Fort Alexander Indian reserve band council, he approached department of education officials.

The student asked if he could substitute his native Saulteaux language for the course he failed. The department agreed although Saulteaux has never been considered a credit course and he was not tested on his ability in it.

Sharply Higher At Toronto

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.71 million shares compared with 1.29 million at the same time Monday.

Falconbridge Nickel rose 1½ to $70½, Canadian Tire A 1 to $52, Canadian Imperial Bank 1 to $29½, Pacific Pete 1 to $26¾ and Aquitaine ⅞ to $21⅝.

Harlequin Enterprises gained ¾ to $13¼, Bank of Nova Scotia ⅝ to $32⅝, Cominco ¾ to $30, Distillers Corp. Seagrams ¾ to $40 and Texasgulf ¾ to $21⅝.

Rio Algom climbed 1¾ to $29, Placer 1 to $29 and Mattagami ⅝ to $33. Pato was off 65 cents to $8.35 and Camflo 55 cents to $8.75.

Ranger gained ¾ to $30¾ and North Canadian 40 cents to $8. Canadian Reserve slipped 35 cents to $4.55.

New York

Stock market prices moved higher near opening today, dropped slightly in the early afternoon, then showed signs of firming again.

Larry Wachtel, analyst with Bache and Co., noted that the market last week had shown its ability to withstand bad economic news without dropping severely, although prices were down.

Analysts also noted on the positive side that today's rally, as well as including the glamor stocks, had included other groups, such as hotels, mobile homes, airlines, and other issues which Wachtel characterized as having been "decimated lately."

Montreal

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 1.57 million shares, compared with 618,500 shares at the same time Monday.

Rio Algom Mines was up 1⅝ to $28⅝, Financial Collection Agencies 1 to $8, Cominco & to $30, Gulf Oil Canada ¾ to $35 and Aquitaine Co. of Canada ¾ to $21½, while Systems Dimensions declined ⅛ to $15.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Muscocho Explorations gained three cents to 57 cents on 255,350 shares traded.

London

Observers said the quiet market reflected fears of labor unrest and an overheated economy.

The Financial Times index rose .1 points to 429.5 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were generally higher.

AN OUTSTANDING OPPORTUNITY FOR A BONA-FIDE MARINE STORES OR BOATING ADDICT

Our company currently markets a range of over 200 amateur and professional boat designs of all shapes and sizes in Canada and U.S.A. by direct sale from the U.K. We are now looking for distributors to market these for us in order to increase sales and profits and reduce our overhead. Both these highly lucrative markets produce sales in excess of $100,000 per annum giving a minimum net profit of $30,000. We would expect these figures to double in the next two years.

All goods are offered on a sale or return basis. Minimum stock expenditure is required with generous financial assistance to suitable applicants ● Large scale advertisement backing ● Excellent after sales service arrangement with free advisory service to customers.
Interested persons should immediately contact the Marketing Director

INVESTMENT DISPOSAL NOT TIED TO TAX LAW

In the first of two articles on the changing pattern of real estate ownership in Victoria, carried in the Times of Saturday June 30, the point was made that federal legislation in 1971 had made apartments less attractive as an investment vehicle for many persons because of changes in tax write-off concessions.

The article noted that following passage of this legislation certain persons disposed of their investments in apartments but it should not have been inferred and the Times did not mean to imply, that these persons necessarily acted as a result of the tax change.

Dr. Robert Stark, one of those mentioned, has stated to the Times that he disposed of his investment in an apartment building for reasons unconnected with any legislative change and the Times offers its apologies to Dr. Stark if he has suffered any embarrassment through any readers believing otherwise.

It should be stated further that all the transactions in real estate and details of ownership listed in the two articles were given simply to illustrate how and by whom land is held in Victoria, all of which is a matter of public record.

The Times does not believe and did not imply that purchase of real estate for whatever reason — investment income, a hedge against inflation, capital gain, etc.— is anything but a legitimate venture.

Similarly, the disposal of investments in real estate at a time of the investor's own choosing and for his own reason or advantage is a legitimate business operation and the Times' articles did not state or imply otherwise.

Schools to Face Policy 'Crunch'

Every school in Greater Victoria will be asked soon to define its educational philosophies and practices.

The move, seen as an attempt to provide more independence and alternatives within the school district, was discussed by a committee of Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

Committee members were generally in favor of the motion but final decision will be made by the board next week.

Trustee Phillip Ney introduced the motion which read: "that in School District 61, each school with its students and their parents; formulate and promulgate philosophies and practices regarding educational priorities, behavioral expectations, parental involvement, etc., applying in that school."

Since students can now cross school boundaries to attend any school in the district, a prospectus on school philosophy would give both students and parents a chance to choose the school most suited to their needs or desires.

"The time has come to call for a crunch," Trustee Walter Donald said, "and make each school say what it stands for."

School superintendent A. J. Longmore said school alumnae and other members of the public might be interested in drafting school philosophies and Trustee William Ross asked that the whole clause referring to parents and students be dropped in order that each school could decide on its own how to draft its statement.

Accountability is an important factor, Ross said, and the school itself rather than a nebulous group should remain responsible for upholding school philosophy.

"If all those people work on it you'll get a compromise rather than a firm statement," Longmore said, adding that schools should consult thoroughly with these interested groups but then decide as a staff what the philosophy will be.

"I meet a lot of parents who don't want to be involved in 'messing around' with the schools," board chairman Peter Bunn said.

"There are people who would like to have schools run by principals and teachers — and don't lose sight of them," Bunn said.

The board will decide later whether "each" school will be required to formulate a statement and whether the words "with its students and parents" will be dropped from the motion to allow schools to decide on their own method of drawing up their statements.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you please tell me if the entire province of British Columbia is on Pacific time? Do all towns observe daylight saving time? K.W.

A. A section of the East Kootenays near the U.S. and Alberta borders and the Peace River block of the Rockies extending along the Alberta border to the border of the Yukon Territory are on Mountain Time.

All towns in B.C. now observe daylight saving time. Until last year 12 towns in the areas observing Mountain time did not switch to daylight saving time the first Sunday in April like those in the rest of the province. Alberta adopted daylight saving for the first time last year and the towns involved now observe mountain daylight saving time.

Q. Is it true that the Bible is the world's best selling book? Why is it not taxed like other books? G. E. H.

A. According to the Guiness Book of World Records the Bible is the world's best selling book. It is available in 1,280 languages and 1.5 million copies were printed between 1800 and 1950.

The Bible is not taxed because of a specific exemption under section 5 (q) of the B.C. Social Services Tax Act which also includes testaments, prayer books and hymn books.

Q. I would like to find the whereabouts of William Shatner, who played Captain James Kirk on Star-Trek.

A. Inquiries should be sent to the General Artists' Corporation, 640 Fifth Ave., New York, 10022.

Q. Would you please tell me the birthdate and birthplace of Joan Collins, the actress?

A. London, England, in 1933.

Q. What is Jack Lemmon's address? — S. J.

A. 911 Gateway West, Century City, Los Angeles, Calif.

Prison Art On Display

An art collection produced by Canadian prison inmates will be in Victoria for four days starting July 30.

It will be on display in the Hillside Mall for three days, and on Aug. 2 will be at William Head Institution.

Three young people from Ontario are using a $3,564 Opportunities for Youth grant to take the paintings on a national tour of public centres and prisons.

The project is called Prison Arts '73.

Saanich Board Fills Position

Saanich school board Monday appointed Ross Ingram to the position of district secretary-treasurer.

Ingram, who has been with the Saanich school district four years, is now assistant secretary-treasurer.

He will replace Gordon Blair who retires in September.

SCHOOLS CHRISTENED SUNDANCE, SENTINEL

Parents and staff, now selected for the two alternative schools scheduled to open in September, have chosen "real" names for their schools.

The less-structured school in the old Blanshard Annex will be called Sundance School and the more-structured school at Braefoot Annex will be called Sentinel Elementary School.

Greater Victoria school board must still give final approval to the new names.

Veterans Voting On New Premises

Results of the poll — conducted by the Pro Patria Branch, Britannia Branch No. 7 and Trafalgar Branch Number 42 — should be known Sunday, Pro Patria president Ivan C. Smith said today.

The decision to go to the members, he said, was based on declining membership.

"It's been 25 years since the last war and members from the first war are getting older and those from the second — well, they're getting a little older, too."

Although amalgamation would be economically feasible, he said some members might oppose the move — first suggested five years ago — because "each branch would lose it's identity."

"We'd have to form an entirely new legion," said Smith.

"It's hard to say what the results will be — it could go either way."

Open Heart Surgery Performed

Vancouver Island's first open-heart surgery was carried out on a 59-year-old city man this morning at Royal Jubilee Hospital's new open-heart surgery unit.

A vein was removed from the patient's thigh and grafted onto the surface of the heart so that blood could by-pass a clogged coronary artery.

The man was in satisfactory condition immediately after the operation, which was performed by a seven-member surgical team assisted by five surgical nurses, hospital medical director Dr. J. R. LeHuguet announced.

The recognized procedure in treatment of artery disease has been carried out in many centres, and can be performed at British Columbia's three other open heart surgery centres, he said.

Approximate cost of the operation is between $3,000 and $4,000, and one such operation per week is planned at the Royal Jubilee unit.

There were to have been two operations per week, but a shortage of nurses forced the reduction, Dr. LeHuquet said.

Committee Makes Choice

The decision on who shall get the operation is made by special committee of doctors from the family physician to the expert surgeon level.

The committee assesses the degree of urgency in individual cases.

Surgeons are able to operate on the heart through the use of a heart-lung machine, which performs the bodily functions on the blood while the heart is out of action.

There is no tissue rejection problem as in heart transfer operations because the patient's own vein is used, Dr. LeHuquet said.

Today's operation was the culmination of two years' planning on the unit, and it was carried out by the unit's director and chief surgeon Dr. R. T. Brownlee.

FIRE SET BY EMI PATIENT

A fire started by a patient in the Eric Martin Institute monday evening caused an estimated $5,000 damage to the third floor of the building.

The patient set fire to the drapes which fell on a chair in the third floor lounge, a spokesman for the Victoria fire department said today.

More than 50 patients were evacuated to another part of the building as firemen fought the blaze. Damage was caused mostly by smoke in the lounge, dining room and "quiet room" area.

Firemen used smoke ejectors to ventilate the area and keep the smoke from billowing into other parts of the building.

There were no injuries.

Tenant Group Requests Suite Sales Moratorium

A Victoria tenant organization wants local government to suspend for a year all applications by apartment landlords to sell their apartments.

Under new laws introduced this spring, landlords must apply to municipal councils for permission before sending their tenants "buy or get out" notices.

Vancouver city council last week put a year's moratorium on such applications. In a resolution passed at a meeting, the Capital Region Tenants Association said it wants municipal councils to do the same here.

A meeting has been called for Wednesday at 7:30 at the Dominion Hotel, partly for membership recruitment, partly to reconstitute the organization after what president Vern Weaver calls "an attempt to scuttle us" by two members.

"We had some internal trouble," he said in an interview today, "caused by a mixture of personal and political hatreds. These things go deep." He did not elaborate.

Current membership (cost: $2) stands at about 200, he said.

According to Victoria city planning department, just under 50 per cent of city residents are tenants. More than 90 per cent of James Bay residents are tenants.

In Oak Bay recently Allan Cox, lawyer for an apartment owner seeking to sell his apartments, warned that if the application were not approved an alternative method of selling the apartments, through co-operative legislation, might be found.

Ald. Alf Hood of Victoria, who is handling housing problems, said today he would be "very hesitant" about an outright moratorium on apartment house conversions.

Council has briefed the planning department to look into the matter but no report has been forthcoming, he said.

"I do think each conversion should be considered on its own merits," he said.

Strings Attached to Safety

Puppets will teach moppets safety rules during the first two weeks of July at playgrounds and parks in the Greater Victoria area.

The puppets, sponsored by the department of consumer and corporate affairs, concentrate on symbols used to identify poisonous, explosive, corrosive and inflammable products found in the home and also teach water and bicycle safety rules.

Performances at 10:30 a.m. will be held July 11 at Ambassador Park, July 12 at Glanford Park and July 13 at Marigold Park. Afternoon performances will be held at 1:30 July 11 at Meadow Park, July 12 at Playfair Park and July 13 at Royal Oak Elementary School.

Performances in Victoria and Esquimalt will be held July 16 at Topaz Park at 11:30 a.m., Blanshard Park at 1 p.m. and Oaklands Park at 2 p.m.; July 17 at Bamfield Park at 10:30 a.m., Bullen Park at 1 p.m.; July 18 at 10 a.m. at Pemberton Park, 1 p.m. at Hollywood Park and 2:15 p.m. at Stadacona Park; July 19 at 10 a.m. at Central Park, 1 p.m. at Beacon Hill Park and 2:15 at MacDonald Park.

DND to Shift Flying Squadron From Patricia Bay to Comox

Times Staff

The Canadian armed forces' VU 33 squadron at Pat Bay airport was told today it will be moved to CFB Comox, probably in 1975.

Defence Minister James Richardson gave no official reason for the move, which will involve 66 service personnel and 61 civilian employees.

The civilians will be reallocated, providing they can qualify for jobs in other areas and agree to the move.

Earlier this year the department of the environment announced plans to install an ocean sciences institute at Pat Bay.

Richardson said today the department would be using some of the present buildings and facilities for the institute.

The Admiral Budge Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has spent close to $50,000 improving the facilities the corps uses in one of the Pat Bay hangars. Part of this money came from an Opportunities for Youth grant.

Richardson said the corps has been told it will be allowed to continue to use the building "for at least two years."

The sonar buoy tests establishment based at Pat Bay is also to be relocated.

The new location has not been decided but Richardson said it would be somewhere on Vancouver Island.

Armed forces' personnel have been providing fire fighting services in the base's area. These services will now be taken over by the ministry of transport some time in 1974.

The VU 33 squadron flies T 33 jet trainers and Trackers, carrying out coastal patrols and assisting the fisheries department with surveillance flights.

Another role of the squadron has been to tow targets for CFB Esquimalt-based ships on exercises.

A squadron spokesman said today that he had been given no reason for the move.

"It could probably be for consolidation purpose," he said, "and, of course, we knew that the department of the environment hoped to locate at Pat Bay."

Phased-In Tax Increases

The Downtown Business Advisory Committee Monday asked the Union of B.C. Municipalities to persuade the provincial government to ease the blow of higher taxes which will result next year from amendments to the Assessment Equalization Act passed by the legislature in the spring.

The businessmen acted after hearing city assessor-collector Alf Joyce say the amendment will drastically increase the taxable value of commercial property.

Commercial, industrial and vacant properties will be removed from the 10 per cent limitation on assessment increases, Joyce pointed out, and these properties will have to be assessed at not less than 50 per cent of the market value.

Ald. Percy Frampton, who made the motion to petition the UBCM, said the act could be changed so there will be a gradual increase over five years.

"That would be a bit better than one big jump in one year," he said.

Committee member Howard McKay said the increase will be "a very serious matter" to businesses.

City comptroller Mason Sheldrick told the meeting the higher assessments will bring an additional 14 mills worth of revenue to the city — nearly $2 million.

Big Daddy In Profit Paradise

By JACK SCOTT, Times Staff

(Third of a Six-Part Series)

ZAMA, Japan — One of the brochures of the Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., which makes the Datsun here at Zama, 30 miles west of Toyko, and at nine other huge plants throughout these crowded islands, talks of the car's "Oriental elegance."

There's nothing remotely elegant about the lives of the Orientals who make them. Many of the 4000 single Japanese in the payroll of 7700 workers here live, in fact, in grim dormitory cells no more than 12 feet square, rooms without furnishings except the tatami, the traditional Japanese sleeping mat. What's more, they share the rooms, day-shift worker alternating with night-shift worker.

If you'd guess that they're unhappy about it, as elite, skilled union men in the world's fourth largest automobile company, you'd probably be a foreigner without an appreciation of how The Big Daddy System works so exquisitely in modern Japan.

These particular craftsmen get something less than half the take-home pay of an equivalent auto worker in Oshawa or Detroit, but there hasn't been a strike here at Zama in the past 20 years, then only a brief walk-out. "I think it was 20 years ago," contentedly reflects Seizo Akiyama, a Nissan executive, "but it may have been longer." Akiyama remembers, too, a picket line around another industry that patrolled the plant right up to the time to start work.

A single worker here pays about four dollars a month for his dormitory room. The company picks up most of the tab, too, for the good, hot meals in the dining hall. There are wide, tiled, communal baths for the customary hot soak after a hard day on the assembly line, a tea room, a library, a ping pong room. If the fellow takes a bride he'll probably get a small company house or a small company apartment for a rental of about eight dollars a month.

Nearly 12 million of Japan's 36 million workers belong to unions—to 62,400 of them, to be exact. The percentage of the work force in unions is, in fact, slightly higher than it is in Canada. They negotiate once a year and they do pretty well. Though they still work, on average, 20 hours a month longer than Canadian union men, they've made steady financial gains. It's become almost automatic in the "shunto," the Spring wage offensive, as its called, to ask for a 20 per cent raise and to get 17 per cent though, considering Japan's galloping inflation, a doubling of productivity capacity in the last eight years and the profits of most exporting companies (Nissan, for example, made profits last year in the nice neighborhood of $900 millions) it seems a figure that's not too punishing for management.

Though labor unrest is growing in an attempt to win the five-day week, Japan remains a paradise for those who make the profits in the world's most secure capitalism.

Housing is just one factor in the system, though a big one since it ranks with industrial pollution as the nation's major problem. With few exceptions companies offer subsidized living quarters for their workers.

There is, too, a bonus system for every employed man or woman, union member or not, right up to the prime

Gov't Pipe Urged

By CAROLE SHIFRIN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sen. Henry Jackson (D—Wash,) said Monday he would propose federal construction and ownership of the $3 billion trans-Alaska oil pipeline if actions by either congress or the courts delay work on the private project beyond next spring.

"My concern is to get that oil moving out of Alaska," Jackson told a press conference. He also said his senate energy policy study group would look "closely" at federal oil policies — oil import quotas, the depletion allowance, foreign tax credits — in light of a Federal Trade Commission staff report charging that government policies have helped create the current gasoline shortage. (See Page 8.)

In related developments Monday:

—The U.S. Senate, seeking to ease Canadian and environmentalist fears of oil spills, voted Monday to speed up the application of tough new controls on tankers carrying Alaskan oil. An amendment approved by voice vote would require that a 1972 law calling for double-bottom tankers by Jan. 1, 1976, apply to Alaskan tankers by June 30, 1974.

—The state of Florida filed an antitrust suit charging that 15 major oil companies conspired to create a gasoline shortage to drive out their independent competitors. "Our position is that the gas shortage is a direct result of anticompetitive practices manipulated by the major oil companies to protect their profits," Florida Attorney General Robert Shevin said. The suit seeks divestiture of the companies' crude oil pro-

Extended Blanshard Goes Underground

An 800-foot tunnel beneath the parking lot of the Town and Country Shopping Centre will be built by the provincial government to link the Trans-Canada Highway with an extended Blanshard Street, Highways Minister Graham Lea said today.

Lea announced the route the extension is to take to join the highway (see map), with the extension of Blanshard Street running from the Blanshard-Tolmie intersection to a point near the intersection of Oak Street and Saanich Road where it will go underground beneath the Douglas Street-Pat Bay Highway route.

The highways minister said the route was one of three considered and will probably involve more expense than the other two. But he said use of either of the other two proposed routes — along Seymour Street or Vernon Avenue — "would have caused serious social disruption and displacement of people and private homes."

Lea said there will be a level crossing at the intersection of the new route with Cloverdale. He said no decision has yet been made about the Blanshard-Tolmie intersection but said an overpass is a possibility.

The route chosen, marked by the thick line on the map, "will affect fewer private homes and have much less social impact on people living in the vicinity," Lea said.

The minister was not able to give cost figures for the project which he said will not be under construction for at least a year. Detailed engineering studies and cost estimates have yet to be done but design work will start shortly.

Asked if landowners along the new route have been advised of the government's need for their properties, Lea said they had not. He said only that there are about 20 properties affected by the new route as well as several industrial and commercial concerns.

He said the owners of private and commercial properties affected by the construction will be contacted "as soon as possible."

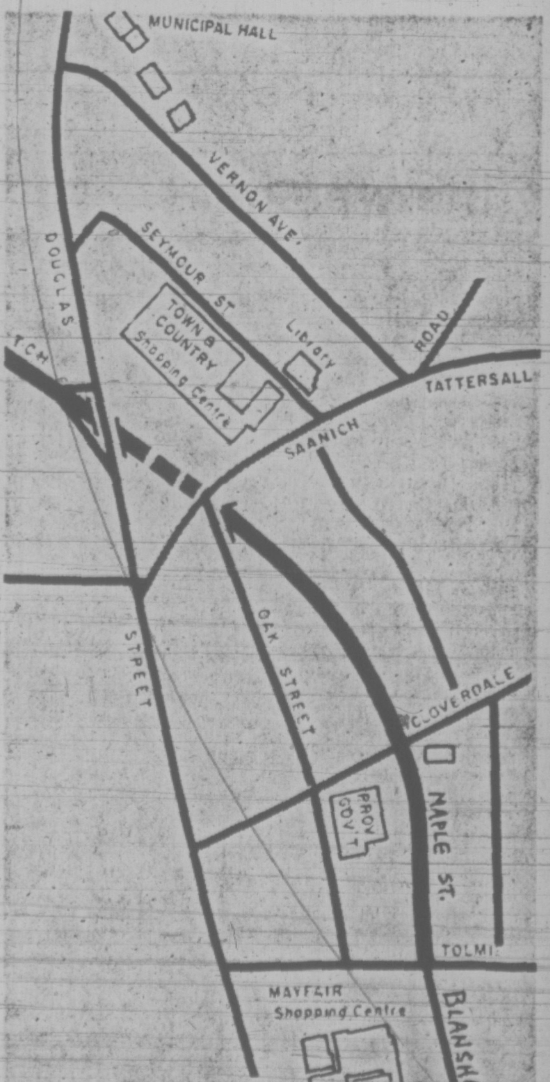
Lea said there will be dramatic increases in property values in the area, adding that prior knowledge of proposed rights-of-way is not as important in making money as it has been in the past. Final settlements would be arrived by arbitration if negotiations between the government and property owners was not successful.

Lea said he expects the entire cost of the highway project will be borne by the provincial government, but said he will approach Ottawa for participation since the Trans-Canada Highway is under federal jurisdiction.

"Ottawa seems quite susceptible during these days of minority government to giving large sums of money to the west," he said.

Extension of Blanshard Street to the Trans-Canada will result in two separate direct routes from downtown Victoria.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, contacted today in Dawson Creek, called the route "excellent" and said it was the one favored by Saanich officials in their discussions with the provincial government.



THICK LINE is the new Blanshard route, a four-lane divided highway. Dotted line is 800-foot tunnel beneath Town and Country Shopping Centre parking lot.

IT'S A DANDY JUNGLE GYM for the moment, as these youngsters have discovered, but this metal frame in Oak Bay soon will be taken over by the sea lions at Sealand. It will be covered with chain-link fencing, be lifted by crane and placed under water. (Bill Halkett photo)

Food Cost Up 16.7% In Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Food prices rose two per cent from May to June, up 16.7 per cent over their level of a year ago, Statistics Canada reported today.

This means that $13.75 cents of groceries in June, 1972, would have sold last month for $16.05.

The spiralling food price rise was the major factor in raising the all-items consumer price index for June by 0.9 per cent to 149.7. This was a faster-than-normal increase for this time of year and pushed the index up 8.1 per cent over June last year.

All other items included in the index except transportation costs, which increased 0.9 per cent, were lower than the all-items total.

The increases prompted Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield today to repeat his call for a 90-day freeze on prices and incomes.

He also said in a news release the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and federal sales taxes on all clothing should be removed.

"But though the signal is louder and clearer than ever, there is no indication of any effective action by the Trudeau government. The government is in a state of confusion that has led to paralysis."

He said that during a 90-day price and wage freeze, the

Canadian Billion To Assist U.S. $

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has put up an additional $1 billion to help the United States combat downward pressure on the dollar in international currency markets.

The Bank of Canada announced today that total funds pledged to U.S. money authorities under so-called currency swap arrangements had thus been doubled to $2 billion.

The U.S. federal reserve board announced in Washington that its major trading partners have pledged altogether an additional $6.25 billion in swap arrangements for possible use in supporting the exchange value of the U.S. dollar in international transactions.

Total swap arrangements thus were increased to $17.98 billion.

Such swap deals, used off and on for years among central banks of western industrial countries, mean that one country can draw on currency of a pledging country to intervene in foreign exchange markets and stabilize exchange rates.

In the current situation, when the exchange value of the U.S. dollar has been declining in relation to other major currencies, carrying the Canadian dollar down with it, U.S. money managers are assured of a bigger line of credit to intervene.

The U.S. dollar moved sharply upward on the world money markets today.

Along with the dollar, the British pound also gained strength.

The dollar's price against the all-important West German mark was fixed today at 2.354 marks, highest in a

BEER TAPS DRY

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — There's no draught beer at 16 beer parlors in the Lower Mainland and another 44 likely will run out by the end of the week if the illegal walkout of workers at Labatt Breweries Ltd. here continues.

A company spokesman said no beer was produced at the plant Monday as some 200 members of Local 300 of the Brewery and Soft Drink Workers' Union continued to ignore a joint company-union request that they return to work.

Labatts applied today for an injunction against the striking workers. The company's case will be heard Wednesday in supreme court.

The company said in a statement today the dispute over retiring Local 300 president Alex Lipp's pension should be settled by grievance procedure and arbitrations. Lipp says the union refuses arbitration. He also says the company is reneging on a pension agreement signed May 31.

The agreement provides a minimum $480 monthly pension for workers with 30 years employment at age 60 and reduced benefits for those retiring earlier.

Mitchell Admits Cover-Up Role

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell testified today that he helped hush up the Watergate incident and kept information about the burglary and break-in from President Nixon to protect Nixon's re-election chances.

"Maybe in retrospect I was wrong (in not telling Nixon)," Mitchell told the Senate Watergate committee, "but I thought the best thing to do was to keep the lid on until after the election."

He said he did not tell Nixon what he knew about the burglary and its subsequent cover-up "for the simple reason that there was no necessity of scarring the president, who was not involved."

Mitchell said that not only did he shield the president from information about Watergate, but he also did not believe Nixon knew anything about the cover-up "based on my faith and knowledge of the man."

Indeed, Mitchell said he never got to the bottom of Watergate himself, even though he acknowledged participating in three meetings at which spy plans were discussed. He said he rejected them every time.

Mitchell also contradicated as a "palpable, damnable lie" testimony by Jeb Stuart Magruder, assistant Nixon campaign director that he was shown wiretap logs, and that he had suggesteed earlier this year that Magruder might get executive clemency if convicted for his admitted perjury in the cover-up.

But the central dispute remained the decision made at a meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla., March 30, 1972, where political spying was discussed.

Magruder testified that "Mr. Mitchell agreed to approve the project ... It was specifically approved for initial entry into Democratic national committee headquarters in Washington ..."

Mitchell's account today was directly contrary to that testimony.

Mitchell said when the spy plan came up, his reaction was:

"We don't need this. I'm tired of hearing it. Out. Let's not discuss it any further ... In my opinion it was just as clear as that."

Mitchell said any problem about his verdict on the espionage plan was one of misunderstanding or of contravention of his orders by Magruder.

Freezer Lets You Be With Your Vacation Guests

Casseroles which can be prepared ahead of time and frozen for later use are a tremendous boon to the busy cook. This month the home economists, Agriculture Canada offer recipes for three tasty chicken casseroles suitable for freezing and reheating as well as some hints for successful preparation of main dishes for freezing.

It is best to use freshly cooked food, which is slightly undercooked to allow for the longer heating time necessary after thawing. Sauces thickened with ordinary wheat flour tend to separate but canned cream soups or sauces thickened with corn starch are satisfactory for freezing. Toppings such as bread crumbs or cheese should be omitted until it is time to reheat the food to serve.

To ensure optimum quality and safety, casseroles should be cooled rapidly in very cold water or a cold place before freezing.

Special attention should be given to packaging. Freeze casseroles in quantities suitable for one meal. If you line the baking dish with aluminum foil before adding the food, once the casserole is completely frozen it will be easy to unmold; then rewrap it in moisture-vapor proof paper and return to the freezer.

When ready to serve, it is not necessary to thaw frozen casseroles. Simply unwrap; place in greased baking dish, cover and bake 1½ to 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a six-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a three-serving quantity. Uncover and add the topping during the last 10 minutes of cooking.

Casseroles will retain their flavor and appearance for at least three months when kept at a temperature of zero degrees Fahrenheit. After this time, the quality of the food may decline but it will be still safe to eat if it has been kept frozen.

Broiler chickens are in ample supply these days so take advantage of these and a free afternoon or evening to prepare one or all of the freezer casseroles suggested by the home economists. "Chicken in Tomato Sauce", "Chicken Tetrazzini" or "Sweet and Sour Chicken" may be a meal-saver at a later date when your time is at a premium.

CHICKEN BROILERS make tasty casseroles which can be enjoyed the same day that they are prepared or frozen for later enjoyment. The home economists of Agriculture Canada recommend Chicken Tetrazzini, Sweet and Sour Chicken and Chicken in Tomato Sauce for freezing.

CHICKEN IN TOMATO

2 cups (½ pound) sliced mushrooms;

¼ cup fat;

1 cut-up chicken broiler (about 3 pounds);

1 clove garlic, crushed;

1 clove garlic, crushed;

1 7½-ounce can tomato sauce;

1 medium onion, cut in rings;

1½ teaspoon salt;

⅛ teaspoon pepper;

¼ teaspoon tarragon;

2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Saute mushrooms in 1 tablespoon fat. Remove mushrooms from pan. Add remaining fat and garlic and brown chicken for 15 minutes. Drain excess fat. Add next six ingredients. Cook uncovered until chicken is tender (about 45 minutes). Add mushrooms and parsley. 4 servings.

FREEZING: Cool, package and freeze cooked chicken. To serve reheat, covered, 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit. For a 4-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 2-serving quantity.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

1 clove garlic, crushed

1 cup (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms

2 tablespoons butter;

⅛ teaspoon pepper;

¼ teaspoon celery salt;

½ teaspoon salt;

⅛ teaspoon thyme;

1 10-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup;

⅓ cup light cream;

2 cups diced cooked chicken;

2 cups cooked spaghetti (4 ounces uncooked);

¼ cup diced pimiento;

Saute onions, garlic and mushrooms in butter until onion is transparent. Remove from heat. Combine seasonings and mushroom soup and add to vegetables. Stir in remaining ingredients, except cheese. 6 servings.

FREEZING: Package and freeze unbaked. To serve, reheat covered about 1½ hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a 6 serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 3-serving quantity. Uncover, top with cheese and heat 5 minutes more.

SERVING NOW: Place in baking dish. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, uncover, top with cheese and heat 5 minutes more.

SWEET, SOUR CHICKEN

1 cut-up chicken broiler (about 3 pounds);

Dash salt, pepper and nutmeg;

2 tablespoons fat;

½ cup chopped onion;

1 14-ounce can pineapple tidbits;

¾ cup syrup from pineapple;

2 tablespoons corn starch;

¼ cup brown sugar;

½ teaspoon salt;

¼ cup vinegar;

¼ cup soy sauce;

2 cups chicken bouillon;

1 cup long grain rice, uncooked;

1 cup celery, sliced diagonally;

1 cup green pepper cut in chunks, green pepper rings.

Season chicken, brown in hot fat about 15 minutes. Remove chicken, drain all except 1 tablespoon fat from pan. Add onion and saute until transparent. Drain pineapple, save syrup. Combine syrup with next five ingredients, add to onion. Stir and cook until thick and clear. Place chicken in greased baking dish. Combine bouillon and rice; add celery, green pepper and pineapple, and add to onion mixture. Pour over chicken, cover and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until chicken is tender and rice is cooked (about 1 hour). Garnish with green pepper rings. 4 servings.

FREEZING: Omit green pepper rings. Cool package and freeze cooked casserole. To serve, reheat covered 2 hours at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for a 4-serving quantity or 1¼ hours for a 2-serving quantity.

Security Guard Better Than Gun

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a small grocery store in a very rough neighborhood. We have been here for many years and make a good living. Two years ago we were held up twice in 6 months. The robbers tied us up and cleaned out the register, but no real harm came to us. After that, my husband hired a security guard. Since then nobody has bothered us.

A few months ago someone told my husband he was foolish to pay a security guard — he should let the security guard go and keep a loaded gun under the counter. Abby, my husband has never fired a gun in his life — but he took his friend's advice.

I told my husband I wouldn't go in the store as long as he kept the gun there. He said I could stay home — he didn't need me. After working side by side with him for 35 years, I am hurt and heartsick. I am so afraid that if a robber comes in my husband will get excited and reach for the gun and the robber will kill him. That's the way it always happens.

Am I wrong to believe we are in more danger keeping the gun in the store? Or am I right? — Worried.

DEAR WORRIED: You are right. Statistics show that guns kill more innocent people than robbers. And law enforcement experts would strongly advice against keeping a loaded gun handy. The security guard is a far better idea.

DEAR ABBY: Do you see anything wrong with entertaining a boy friend in your bedroom? I am 15 and Mike is 17, and I entertain him in my bedroom because that's where the stereo is and all we do is listen to records and talk. Besides, I have two little brats for brothers and if Mike and I didn't lock ourselves in the bedroom those kids would be running in and out and bothering us.

When my mother found my bedroom door locked with Mike inside, she had a cow. We weren't doing anything wrong. I don't know why she doesn't trust me. I've never gotten into any trouble with dudes.

What's wrong with listening to records in my bedroom? Please make your answer short because I don't like long boring answers. — Okay Girl

DEAR OKAY: A bedroom is not an appropriate place to entertain your boy friend. Move your stereo to another room, don't lock any doors, and ask your mother to please discipline the kids.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I am off my rocker when you read this, but I need an answer. I am a woman, over 40, self-supporting, and never married, and I live alone. I'm active in my church and have some nice friends, mostly church people. I never really wanted boy friends and am happy with my life, except for some strong moods I get into once in a while.

Sometimes I wish someoone would turn me over their knee and give me a good hard spanking. I have tried spanking myself with a wooden spoon but it wasn't very effective. A leather strap would be better.

Don't get me wrong. I'm no nut. I just occasionally feel the need of a good sound spanking on my bare bottom with a leather strap, but if I were to ask someone to do this they would think I am off my rocker. Can you help me? No name, please. This is a small town. — Wants To Be Spanked.

DEAR WANTS: I don't think you are "off your rocker," but I do think you should talk to your doctor about your need to be punished. It's not as unusual as you think, and if it's a problem to you, you can be helped by learning more about it.

SUICIDE-PRONE SPURN ASSISTS

TORONTO (CP) — Many people likely to commit suicide are still relatively hesitant to call for help, an official of Toronto's Distress Centre says.

In a recent interview, Rev. Gordon Winch, director of the centre, said men are slow to seek suicide help probably because they think of themselves and their sex as too strong to need help.

He said the centre is trying to overcome this by emphasizing the number of men involved in its work.

Winch also cited statistics from studies of calls to the centre from people "with serious suicidal feelings." They revealed that:

—Sixty-three per cent of the centre's callers are female; yet Statistics Canada reports 74 per cent of those who commit suicide are male.

—Forty-five per cent of the centre's callers are between 20 and 30; yet the Ontario department of health reports that 41 per cent of those who actually commit suicide are between 45 and 64.

—Only eight per cent of the centre's callers are unmarried. The corresponding figure from the department of health is 36 per cent.

—In 1972 the centre's peak month was May but the department of health said the peak month for actual suicides was November.

Addition of Tuna Suits Greek Dish

By MARY MOORE

The Greeks make pilafs of all kinds. Since I am trying to copy some of the Europeans' meat-stretching techniques we borrowed a pilaf idea and introduced Canadian tuna to it.

Maureen clocked herself at thirty-five minutes while making this dish. She is a working gal and started this dish about five-twenty p.m. and served dinner sharp at six. Since the price of the 13-oz. can of chunk light tuna was 89c that adds up to an inexpensive and quick meal.

TUNA PILAF
(Serves 4)

1 c. raw long grain rice.

2½ c. water.

1 tsp. salt (first amount)

1 tbsp. butter

¼ c. chopped onion.

½ c. diced celery

1 green pepper, slivered.

¼ to ½ lb. fresh mushrooms washed, drained and sliced (OR one 4½-oz. can stems and pieces undrained).

3 tbsp. cooking oil.

Two 6½-oz. cans chunk light tuna drained (OR one 13-oz. can)

¼ c. pimiento, chopped.

½ tsp. salt (second amount).

⅛ to ¼ tsp. thyme.

2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

⅛ tsp. pepper.

To cook rice in large pot bring to boil the water, salt and butter. Add rice, stir, reduce heat to simmer, cover and cook 25 minutes.

Meanwhile in large frying pan gently saute onion, celery, green pepper and fresh mushrooms in the oil about 3 to 4 minutes. (NOTE: If canned mushrooms are used, add them later in the method). Add all remaining ingredients including cooked rice and canned mushrooms (if used), toss gently with fork to blend and heat to serving temperature.

Getting There Is Half the Trouble

One of the reasons that summer vacations often turn out badly is that they invariably start off so dismally.

Our typical scenario goes something like this:

During dinner the night before our vacation we resolve to leave no later than 7 a.m., drop the dog off at the kennel, and be well out of town before the early rush hour traffic.

Unfortunately at 1 a.m. my husband and I are still pattering about the house looking for the bottle of suntan oil and spare shoe laces, so when the alarm goes off at 6 a.m. we sleep straight through it. I don't awaken until one of the children breathes on my eyes at 9.

At 10:30 my husband storms off to the car to sulk, bite his lips, and mutter "We should have BEEN there by now."

Meanwhile, the children and I begin searching for the dog, who, sensing that something is definitely amiss, decides to disappear. We cover the entire house on our hands and knees, lifting up bedspreads and chair skirts, waving beef bones enticingly, and crooning "Here, Duke" and "Where is that —— dog, anyway?"

Eventually Duke is wrenched bodily from behind the furnace and placed in the car to bite his lips and sulk with my husband while the children and I rush around the neighborhood distributing African violets, housekeys, and pet gerbils.

Since by now it is high noon, we sit in the driveway and eat the cheese sandwiches and carrot sticks that I had packed for a picnic in a delightful rest area 200 miles from home.

Before we are two blocks from home, the children begin hitting each other over the head with plastic shovels and demanding "When are we going to GET there?"

"Look at the bright side," I say to my husband, who has turned all white around the mouth. "At least we're too late for early morning rush hour traffic."

Every good cook knows that the right spice can make even a simple dish sensational. With the help of the Blue Ribbon Spice Guide you, too, can become a cordon bleu cook.

The guide suggests, for example, to add basil to tomato juice, dill to mayonnaise, oregano leaves to tomato salad and tumeric to welsh rerebit. It recommends sprinkling dill on lamb chops, adding a dash of garlic powder to meat balls and mixing curry powder with melted butter when you roast a chicken.

To make your vegetables more interesting, add dill to cauliflower, green beans or cabbage and rosemary to the water for boiling peas, potatoes or turnips. Add a pinch of saffron when you cook rice and serve zuccini with a butter sauce flavored with chili powder.

To add zest to simple desserts, add mace to your cherry pie filling, sprinkle melons with white pepper, add cardamon to baked apples and caraway seeds to apple pie pastry.

This spice guide is in the form of a large self-stick lable which you can attach to the inside of any kitchen cupboard.

'Bottle' Baby Defects Found by Seattle Duo

Five are girls, three are boys; all have small cheekbones, eyes and ears, an insufficient blood supply and a frighteningly low rate of growth.

Two of the eight children were born with dislocated hips. One child needed glasses at age 2. Three of them can't extend their arms all the way, and five suffer the deviations of the retarded. Their hands shake when they try picking marbles or coins up off the floor, they have trouble holding onto pencils and crayons and they often bang their heads against a wall when left alone.

These eight children have something else in common. They all had alcoholic mothers, with a combined history of 75 years of heavy drinking behind them. Two of the children lay in their mothers' wombs while their mothers were hospitalized with delirium tremens. A third was born at home while his mother was in an alcoholic stupor.

The children are subjects of a study published in a recent issue of the Lancet. a prestigious British medical journal recognized as one of the most important periodicals of its kind. The study was done at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle by a team of pediatric specialists who believe they have found the first set of birth defects triggered by alcohol.

An admittedly small study, involving as id does only eight children and eight mothers, it is also the first known of its kind, breaking new ground in a field where taboos are still very much a part of everyday business.

"We fell into this study almost by accident," explained Dr. Kenneth Jones, the Seattle pediatrician who headed the study, "But we think we have the first reported association between material alcoholism and what I would call malformations in their offspring."

When Jones says he fell into the study, he means it. The study began only six months ago, when he and Dr. David Smith came upon four children suffering malformities who had obviously alcoholic mothers.

"That sent us back to the files, where we'd been compiling facts on children's syndromes," Jones said, "and we found four more children who answered to the same kind of problems and had the same kinds of mothers."

The Seattle pediatricians found a pattern of malformity among all eight children, who came from three different ethnic groups. Two were white, three were black and three North American Indian.

All eight are small for their age, no matter what their age. Their average growth rate is 65 per cent of normal, their average weight gain is 38 per cent of normal, a pattern the pediatricians say is most alarming.

Just as alarming are the malformities the children suffer. Three had heart murmurs at birth, all of which corrected themselves. One was born with a condition that forced her blood to bypass her lungs, a defect that must be corrected with open-heart surgery.

Almost all the children have one cheekbone smaller than the other, giving their faces a lopsided look. All have small eye openings; one has eylids that don't open all the way; and one 4-year-old girl is so nearsighted she's worn glasses since she was 2. Several have ears with a "cauliflower" look, giving them the appearance of infantile prizefighters.

The most striking defect in the eight children is in their limbs, especially their arms and hands. Three have deformed elbows, which means they can't straighten their arms. One has a hand where the fifth finger overlaps the fourth, another has a foot whose toes do the same thing.

The creases in the palms of their hands all show an abnormal alignment, suggesting their hands were stuck in an aberrant position when they were fetuses.

This also suggests that the children had little mobility in their mothers' wombs, which may or may not have been caused by the alcohol crossing the placental barrier from their mothers' bloodstreams.

"I don't want to say that because I don't know that to be the case," Jones insists. "We hope to do more work on this aspect of our study."

Crusader Betters Young Eyes With Orthoptics

WASHINGTON (FWF) — If you ever want to know about orthoptics, the clinical science that uses eye exercises and visual training to restore, or improve, binocular (both eyes) or monocular (one eye) visual skills and the ways in which its methods can elicit and develop single binocular vision, ask Rachael Pietrini. But be prepared for a torrent of messianic fervor. For this determined and compassionate woman in her forties has dedicated more than 20 years of her life to helping people (especially children) to overcome their visual impairment and to educating the public about psychological and emotional damage that usually accompany such afflictions. And she will not summarize her feelings in a few quiet words.

Rachael Pietrini's interest in orthoptics is a logical one — she herself has a visual problem known as strabismus (cross-eyes). Until the age of 21 she wore glasses to stabilize the wandering right eye but they only made her feel self-conscious and ill at ease.

She finally decided to undergo an operation which, cosmetically speaking, was a success. However, she awoke to find herself seeing two doctors instead of one. The surgeon had not told her that to correct the outward appearance of her eyes would not necessarily mean that her visual apparatus would function normally and efficiently. It was a shock from which she might not have completely recovered had she not been introduced to orthoptic methods.

Through these eye exercises she learned to do what people with normal vision had learned very early in life — that is, to fuse the two retinal images into a single mental impression. Because of her stabismus she had developed a faulty eye-brain pattern.

In this, her brain concentrated only on the visual signals from one eye and suppressed the contradictory stimuli from the other eye, in effect rendering one eye useless.

Miss Pietrini became so interested in this process of fusion that she invented and patented a "Visual Fusion Training Instrument" for detecting binocular vision deficiencies and facilitating corrective eye exercises to enable individuals to use their eyes "as a team."

It is a simple but cleverly conceived device incorporating a chamber (which may be placed on a table), with a screen that faces the user with an adjustable lighted aperture as a focal point, a headrest that contains red-coloured glass or transparency for one of the eyes, and a central rod that has an adjustable sliding bar for moving a supplemental focal object — such as a letter or a word towards, or away from, the user's eyes.

If an individual is fusing properly (ie if his brain is receiving both retinal images and projecting them as one) then light from the aperture will be seen by one of the eyes as red, by the other eye as white, and by both as pink. But if he is not fusing properly (ie if he is suppressing visual stimuli from one eye and relying on the other for his sight) then the instrument can help to determine which eye is being neglected. For if both eyes are open and only the red light is seen, then the individual must be taught that he is suppressing one eye and needs exercises to initiate and strengthen proper muscular co-ordination.

Implicit throughout these orthoptic methods is the belief that people have to be taught to see properly and if they have learned bad visual habits they have to unlearn them and learn the right ones.

Miss Pietrini is one of those crusading spirits who are forever hitting their heads against a stone wall. She says: "If people would only understand that seeing is a learning, not instinctive, process and that the brain has to be educated to see properly, then maybe they would realise the need to test for visual problems early in childhood. I have seen so many children develop learning and behavioural difficulties because their impaired binocular vision had not been corrected or at least helped, that it makes me want to cry at the sheer waste of our human resources."

Thus it seems the reason that Johnny can't function well at school is often the result of some very early abnormality in one or both eyes that impaired his eye and co-ordination and forced him to devise compensatory but distractive visual habits long before he ever entered a classroom.

Miss Pietrini has recently realized one of her most sought after goals, the establishment of The Visual Development Foundation, where all aspects of vision and their relationship to the health and development of man will be investigated. The Foundation has its headquarters in Springfield, Virginia.

Now she feels it all seems worth the effort she expended selling fruitcakes and candy, and other assorted items to finance her undertaking.

But to anyone who knows Rachael Pietrini, her greatest sense of satisfaction has come from the knowledge that she has helped many individuals to fuse and function normally when they had almost given up hope of ever doing so.

The Wurst Is Yet to Come

BONN, Germany (AP) — For Germans trying to lose weight, the worst is yet to come.

It often packs more than 70 per cent fat, the health ministry says. But who listens to the health ministry?

"Diet sausages" have been brought out, to accompany "diet beers." Neither has got far.

Germany has 1,456 kinds of sausage, and everyone has his favorite kind.

In Bavaria, Berlin and the north, a popular delicacy is blutwurst, blood sausage. It's as dark red as its namesake and dotted with white specks of fat.

Another kind of sausage, liverwurst, was prescribed for anemic children by German doctors in the middle ages. For some reason, possession of a liverwurst also was a traditional sign of prosperity.

One type of smoked sausage gets a regal change of name when paprika is added to its other spices.

It starts out as jagdwurst, hunt sausage; and its ingredients are lean pork, young beef, bacon, marjoram, nutmeg, ground caraway seed and peppered leeks.

Queen Won't Join Hippies

WINDSOR, England (CP) — The Queen has been invited to a pop festival almost in her own backyard, in Windsor Great Park. Hippies are planning the event for August on the public land which adjoins Windsor Castle. But a palace official said the Queen is always at Balmoral in Scotland at that time of year.

Conservation Effort Aimed At Tortoiseshell

WASHINGTON (WP) — Tortoiseshell may have won the fashion accessories popularity race this season, but it is fast losing the battle with conservationists who want it taken off the shelves.

Not all tortoiseshell comes from the Hawksbill or other sea turtles on the endangered species list, which makes the importing, manufacture and sale of products from the reptiles illegal. But conservationists, such as Robert Boardman, public information director for the National Audubon Society, are urging that all sales of real tortoise items be stopped since most sea turtles are approaching the endangered list status.

"Besides," Boardman said, "it is difficult to tell, once the tortoiseshell has been used in jewelry, if the source is the Hawksbill, which is on the list, or one of the others not on the list."

The Hawksbill tortoise and several other species have been on the endangered list since December, 1970. But the campaign against the use and sale of tortoiseshell jewelry only revved up in the U.S. this May. At that time Bonwit Teller advertised "a rare collection of tortoise jewelry." Several days later, Cartier, the prestige jewelry store, advertised several pieces of gold and tortoise designs by Aldo Cipullo at $185 to $375.

"At that price, an impoverished native is going to trap tortoise, regardlesss of the legality," Boardman said. "It virtually guarantees their extinction."

Once the Audubon Society advised Bonwit Teller and Cartier of the potential illegality of the tortoiseshell, the firms immediately withdrew the items from sale.

This week, in a survey of Washington stores, buyers expressed surprise that certain kinds of tortoiseshell are illegal. All agreed that they would investigate the source of the items they now have in stock at once.

Garfinckel's Department Store immediately consulted experts at the Smithsonian Institution for identification of their tortoise jewelry. A spokesman for Lord and Taylor said the store would take no additional delivery on tortoise items and would remove from sale all those made from tortoises on the endangered list.

Robert Raymond, Woodward and Lothrop Jewelry buyer, said he first became aware of the situation two weeks ago when United States customs agents impounded a package containing cameos and tortoise jewelry from Italy.

According to Marshall Stennett, assistant special agent in charge of international investigation at the interior department, products made from the Hawksbill turtle are being confiscated by agents at all United States ports of entry.

The Hawksbill is popular for jewelry because of its unusual markings and because it can be polished to a high gloss.

Tortoise fanciers willing to settle for imitations, however, can find an unlimited supply of plastic facsimilies made into eyeglass frames, household accessories and jewelry.

While Boardman is primarily concerned with halting the use of real tortoiseshell in jewelry and accessories, he also hopes gourmets will lose their taste for turtle soup.

"It's just a matter of time," he said, "before the green turtle used in soup will become an endangered species, too."
